VICTORY WELL WON

Large Crowd Witness Defeat for the Utah Team.

(By Roy Irvine.)

When those seventeen big husky, broad-shouldered fellows from Utah unloaded themselves in Corvallis Monday, OAC stock took on a decided slump. We do not mean that the locals were booked for a defeat, but we did look for one of the hardest-won victories seen in Corvallis for many years. If anyone had suggested that OAC would beat those brawny fellows from Brigham Young's state by a score of 45 to 0, he would have been jerked up before the county physician for a decided lack of gray matter in his think tank.

But to the game. There was simply nothing to it at any stage of the play that looked favorable to the visitors. With the exception of a few line plunges in the first half, they did not make yardage. No end plays were attempted by them, the reason being, so the captain informed us, that Wednesday's game was the first time they had used the present set of backs. This is a plausible reason, for anyone acquainted with the game, knows full well how much practice and signal work it requires for a successful end play. Not only were their three backs in strange positions, but also several of their line. Utah players, while allowing a reasonable limit to this as an answer for their defeat, admit that they cannot play ball with a team as strong and swift as the local collegians—and they push the point still farther by saying that, looking from a neutral standpoint, OAC has a team equal to Berkeley and Stanford. In answer to a query regarding Williams, Root and Pilkington, our set of backs, the Utah boys make no exception to the case—they are the best on the Pacific Coast today.

The game Wednesday was called at 3:16, Utah getting the kick-off, and at 3:20 Williams circled right end and by a 20-yard run made the first touchdown. The entire game was a repetition of the first few minutes of play. When OAC had the ball, with few exceptions, they made yardage. Some line plays were used and Root and Pilkington made several good gains through the line. The sensational plays were made mostly by Williams. More than once he threw the grand stand into a spasm of delight by his magnificent hurdling and running. Root also shared the honors for the big gains. He did not attempt to hurdle, but more than one Utah player sincerely wished he had, for when John Henry bumps an antagonist, the other fellow generally takes the full count. But all these pretty end plays were only made possible by the splendid interference on the part of their team mates. Never before has a Corvallis crowd watched such interference as was used in Wednesday's game.

In the first half OAC scored 28 points. At the request of the Utah team the second half was cut down to 15 minutes. During the first 10 minutes of the last half OAC made three more touchdowns and two goals, making the final score 45 to 0.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Two of the Utah players will be out of the game for some time owing to a "head-on" collision between themselves. They were both tackling the same man and by some mishap cracked heads, breaking the skin and laying the flesh open to the bone. Both required the services of a doctor, it being necessary to take twelve stitches to sew up one of the cuts.

Williams was put through for five touchdowns, Pilkington for two and Root for one. Pilkington kicking five out of eight goals.

Four of the visitors were put out on the side lines, while Bundy was the only OAC player hurt in the game, he receiving a badly sprained ankle.

Last year the UAC had the best team in their state, and were not scored against the entire season. Their college is located at Logan, in the northern part of the state.

A reception was tendered the visiting team at the College Armory in the evening of the game, dancing being the feature.

We always feel a certain amount of pride when we ask a visiting team of the treatment they received during their stay in Corvallis. It is always the same story, clean playing by the OAC team; courteous treatment at the hands of the Athletic Association and a hospitality equal to none, accorded them by Corvallis and her people.

The Utah team left Thursday for Portland where they play Multnomah on Saturday. The boys are so bruised up and many out of the game their fight will be a feeble one.

"Dad" Trine had his "boys" on parade at the game. He takes them to Eugene Saturday to do things to the U. of O. second team.

The Utah team has some good football players, but most of them are new at the game, only five of their last year's men being in the line up this season and most of them are playing new positions, which will hurt the work of any team. OAC had a dose of it last year and knows how it goes.

Give us a chance at Berkeley and we will be satisfied for this year.

The receipts of the game amounted to something over $600. The Association guaranteed Utah $250, this leaving a tidy sum in the treasury.

Chauncey Bishop, coach of the Willamette team this year was umpire, and Lair Thompson, coach of the McMinnville squad, acted as referee.

At the request of Columbia University and Whitman College the games with OAC have been cancelled. The local boys were willing to keep their dates but the other teams saw it was useless to try and defeat OAC, hence the games have been called off. No other games have been decided upon to fill the dates cancelled, but it is hoped that arrangements can be made to get a game with Berkeley when they come north to play Seattle.

Williamson--Cauthorn.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Williamson, near Wells, Tuesday noon, October 25, 1904, Mr. T. B. Williamson, of Oak Grove, and Miss Ruth Cauthorn, of Wells, were married. Only a few of the near relatives were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. W. Launer, pastor of the Evangelical church of Albany. After the ceremony the wedding party passed into the dining room, which was richly decorated for the occasion, and partook of a wedding breakfast, after which the bridal couple took their departure for their home followed by the best wishes of their many friends. Mr. Williamson has spent most all of his life in Benton county and is one of Oak Grove's best citizens. He is well known in Albany. Mrs. Williamson has spent her entire life in Benton county and is widely known as the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cauthorn, of Wells.—Herald.

A O U W CELEBRATES

A Pleasant Gathering in Which Degree of Honor and Workmen Unite.

Friendship Lodge A. O. U. W. under the auspices of the ladies' Degree of Honor celebrated the 36th. anniversary of the order on last Friday evening.

Master Workman, W. B. Lacy introduced Grand Master, Prof. F. Berchtold, who gave an interesting and instructive address devoted to the history, purposes, growth and work of this grand order. To this Mrs. Sarah E. Moore, Grand Usher of the Degree of Honor made a fitting and happily worded response, in which she explained the object of this gathering and assured all of a hearty welcome.

The following entertaining program was rendered: Vocal duet, Mr. and Mrs. Green; reading, Miss Sadie Dixon; vocal solo, Mrs. Berchtold; recitation, Miss Gladys Moore.

After the program candies in different shapes and sizes were passed to the guests by the ladies with the instruction not to eat them. When all had been served they were told that the ladies' candies corresponded with the gentlemen's and in this way partners were secured for refreshments, which proved no small part of the entertainment. When all had found their partners, all sat down to tables well laden with both the substantial and luxuries necessary to keep the workman fitted for his appointed task. Each guest was presented with a dainty souvenir, representing the emblems of the order—the heart and shield, with the motto and date of organization and reception neatly inscribed.

After partaking of the liberal repast, music, dancing and good fellowship followed for an hour when the company after bidding their charming entertainers goodnight and wishing the Workmen many more pleasant anniversaries, left for their homes, each one feeling that a most enjoyable evening had been spent.

Oregon English Walnuts.

Colonel Sobeiski in his recent lecture given in this city, said that in a few years, when we have prohibition, he expects to see the vast acreage now planted with hops in Oregon, planted with English walnuts. It has been demonstrated that the nuts will do well here, for they have been successfully grown in several parts of the state. The Independence Enterprise has the following:

The first Oregon grown English walnuts marketed in Independence were sold here today. A. Nelson was the seller and Craven & Moore were the buyers. The quantity consisted of a 20-pound flour sack and were disposed of in the town after being placed on market at a local store.

The nuts were of good size and the shells well filled with plump kernels. They were grown on the trees in A. Nelson's yard, within sight of Independence. He has seven trees. They were set out nine years ago and are coming nicely into bearing. When in full bearing a tree at present prices will yield $10 to $15 worth of nuts. A moderate sized orchard of English walnuts in bearing, is a pretty sure crop to fall back on and that it is a money making industry in this valley has been sufficiently demonstrated to engage the attention of some of the most wide awake orchardists and farmers. J. B. Stump has already set out 40 acres and contemplates putting out 100 more. Near Dundee in Yamhill county is a fine orchard of 50 acres and in a few years hence the production of English walnuts may be classed as one of the staple industries of the valley.
