THE SEASON FOR CULLING.

Now Is the Time for Sending Every Old and Superfluous Bird to the Market.

The season is at hand when all loafers in the poultry yard should be culled out and sold. Old hens, unlikely pullets and superfluous roosters, young and old, should be placed in fattening quarters and fed for the market. It pays either the fancy poultry breeder or common market poultryman to winter prime birds only. There is no room to spare for non-paying fowls, and quite an amount is lost by keeping the culls that are found in the best as well as the poorest flocks.

It is blooded poultry is always in demand, and those who would sell at fancy prices must be very careful to closely cull down to the best specimens of varieties according to standard requirements. The breeder makes a mistake in keeping any fowls that are undersized or lacking in good natural vitality though they come from a high-priced strain. The best is none too good for breeding purposes in the production of market poultry just the same as in the direction of the show room. Culling severely now and keeping only the best is the way to get business chicks next spring, strong enough to get out of the shell and grow and thrive in spite of the vicissitudes they may encounter during growth. It is a good plan to dispose of hens that are late in molting unless they are of extra value. Such hens won't lay eggs enough in winter to pay their board.

Spring chickens are a fair price on the market the latter part of September, and the whole flock will be in better condition if they are sold closely with the other surplus fowls at this season. Then in November before the first cold snap comes to cause them to lose flesh, we fatten and dispose of the rest of the culls to give the laying hens plenty of room. Crowding the poultry house causes disease and discomfort, and it is the healthy, happy hens that lay the high-priced winter eggs.—Fanny M. Wood, in Ohio Farmer.

KITTENS ADOPTED BY HEN

Biddy Made Her Own Chicks Shift for Themselves to Care for Feline Stepchildren.

This white leghorn hen has adopted as her charges four frisky kittens which were abandoned by their own mother. The kittens have become the objects of all the hen's maternal affection, says the New York Tribune, while her own chicks have been driven off by her to wander in the barnyard and shift for themselves as best they can.

The kittens follow the hen about by day, and at night they nestle under her soft, warm wings and enjoy the comfort and protection which should go to her discarded chicks.

The hen will allow no person to handle the kittens when she is near. Ah who attempt to do so are attacked by her. She is owned by Joseph Hockberger, of York, Pa.

PROTECTION FOR CHICKS.

An Arrangement Which Prevents the Old Birds from Trampling Little Ones to Death.

Many times the little chicks are deprived of their feed and often trampled to death by older ones at feeding time. This trouble can be avoided by providing a pen or a cover such as is shown in the illustration. Slat may be substituted for wire. Under this the little chicks may be fed without being crowded away by the larger ones. It is so arranged that the frame may be raised on stakes as the chicks grow.—B. M. Briggs, in Farm and Home.

An Incubation Experiment. In the incubation experiments, 8,677 eggs from various sources have been set in the incubators. Of these, 7,206, or 83 per cent, were fertile. Three thousand three hundred and forty-eight, or 46 per cent, of the fertile eggs were hatched. This was 38.6 per cent of the total number. The efficiency of hatching under various conditions ranged from 0 per cent, to 84 per cent. These experiments were planned in the direction of testing the efficiency of the machines and the influence of moisture and room temperature upon the hatch.—Rhode Island Station.

Farm Management That Wins. Industry is not the only thing required on the farm. If it were, a great many men that fail would succeed. Keeping eternally at a thing does not always bring success, in spite of the trite saying that it does. Intelligent management is also required, and this kind of management often requires a good deal of information in several directions.

MRS. CECELIA STOWE, Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902. For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

"And I'm doing it," groaned he as he paid the milliner's bill.—Houston Post.

Why He Wept.
"Death is a sad thing," said the stranger to the man who stood weeping beside a grave.
"It is indeed," sobbed the other.
"I suppose," remarked the stranger, "you are sorrowing over the grave of a very dear friend."
"I am sorrowing over the grave of a man I never knew," replied the mourner, "yet I deeply regret his demise. He was my wife's first husband."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Excused with a Frown.
A juror having applied to the judge to be excused from serving on account of deafness, the judge said:
"Could you hear my charge, to the jury, sir?"
"Yes, I heard your honor's charge," said the juror, "but I couldn't make any sense out of it."
He was excused.—Tit-Bits.

Blissful Ignorance.

Useless Languages.
Church—I understand your brother speaks six languages?
Gotham—That is correct.
"Which language does he use when with his wife?"
"Oh, he doesn't have a chance to use any of them then!"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Correction.
"Ethelinda's suitor represents one of the best families in Europe," said Mrs. Cumrox.
"No, he doesn't," answered her husband. "I've heard about that family an' it's a purty good one. He misrepresents it."—Washington Star.

His Belief.
"Do you believe that marriage is a lottery?" she asked.
"Yes," he replied, "and I also believe that every woman is anxious to take one or more chances."—Chicago Daily News.

A Natural Mistake.
"I'm afraid that Biggins' new baby has turned his head. He does nothing but talk baby talk all day."
"That's all right. It isn't baby talk. Biggins is composing the words for a popular song."—Washington Star.

Sure Test.
Miles Standish was figuring out how he stood with Priscilla.
"I guess I'm ace high," he reflected, "because I notice that she doesn't take me around and introduce me to the other girls."—Cleveland Leader.

Practical Definition.
"What is your idea of a strong-minded woman?" she was asked.
"One who can pass three days in another city and return home without purchasing a souvenir spoon," he replied.—Chicago Daily News.

To the Manner Born.
"I was surprised at the admirable self-possession of the bride."
"Why, yes; considering that this is only her first marriage she certainly acquitted herself with credit."—Chicago Tribune.

What a Question.
"Mistress—Did the fisherman who stopped here this morning have frogs' legs?"
"Nora—Sure, mum, I dinnae. He wore pants."—Cornell Widow.

An Advertising Mystery.
Whipper—I advertised for a job and didn't get a reply. How was it you received so many answers?
"Snapper—I advertised for a wife."—Town Topics.

Two Questions.
He—If I propose, will you say "Yes?"
She—If you knew I would say "Yes" would you propose?—Judy.
