TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS,

* SAFE REVISION.

It would appear that the President will call congress in extra session on the 4th of next March mainly to revise the schedules of the tariff. This cannot be done at the short session of the present congress but may properly pass over to the new congress, when the newly-elected members will take seats, and the majority of the party will be much increased. If an extra session is not convened the work of revision must await the regular first session of the new congress, a year distant. Whether revision shall be made at a special session or otherwise, the tariff will be revised, protection will not be sacrificed and business will not be disturbed. These things are among the purposes of the party. The people recognized and approved of them and know that no such "measure of iniquity and dishonor" as the Wilson and Gorman tariff will be enacted. The American workman will continue to carry a well-filled dinner-pail.

Something should be done by the city fathers to prevent the indiscriminate use of 22-rifles in the hands of inexperienced boys. Just last week, one evening while two men were standing on the Benton side of the ferry, zip came a bullet and struck a boat a few feet away. Three boys standing on the boom a short distance down the river were the guilty parties and fully ten shots were fired, the bullets glancing on the water when whizzing by, much to the discomfort of the ferryman and others standing by. What makes the case exceedingly aggravating is that the boys paid no heed when warned to cease shooting.

A half a dozen cases of carelessness with these apparently harmless but nevertheless dangerous weapons have occurred during the summer and people are becoming tired, and measures should be taken at once looking to the correction of the abuse.

The New York building at the Lewis and Clark Centennial will cost $20,000, and the state will spend an additional sum of $15,000 for the collection of a suitable exhibit to be placed in the building. Massachusetts will spend in all $30,000, of which $20,000 will be used for the building and $10,000 for the exhibit.

KICK WINS GAME.

Score U. of O. 6, O. A. C. 5, in Saturday's Game.

Never before in the history of Oregon football has a game been played that in its various settings equaled the game of last Saturday between the University of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural College. Never before on the local field or elsewhere has there been a more unquenchable lot of football enthusiasts and never before was there ever seen a muddier lot of players, for there were times when one team could not be distinguished from the other and individual men could not be recognized except by the positions they played.

The rain, driven by a high wind, literally fell in torrents. Wave after wave fell upon the field until it was literally submerged. It smote the faces of those who journeyed to the field, soaked fine broadcloth suits, beat through umbrellas and ruined many a lady's fine gown. Everybody was soaking wet, yet no one budged for was not the game of the season about to be played upon the sodden field, the game upon which thousands of dollars had been staked and upon which men had been in training for months and upon the success of which went the championship of the state of Oregon? People yelled until their throats refused to utter a sound. The OAC bleachers three hundred strong on a stand erected for the occasion, discharged volley after volley until the very ground trembled and to which the feeble efforts of the Eugene shouters seemed but whispers. A traction engine fitted with a big three-foot gas pipe whistle answered the rooters but even this could scarcely be heard when they gave their yells.

Walker was the hero of the day for OAC. Just after the second half began and Eugene was making rapid gains for another touchdown, Walker emerged from a particularly nasty mix-up, with the ball under his arm and made a 95-yard run for a touch-down. Walker weighs 200 pounds and does not claim to be a sprinter, but the way he threw mud and gravel with the whole Eugene pack at his heels, threw the sideliners into spasms of delight. It was several minutes before the sensation subsided and the opposing team realized what had been done. A score of sideliners rushed out and would have borne Walker around in triumph had it not been for the clubs of the guards.

When both teams appeared on the muddy field it was plainly evident that the Agricultural College team was several pounds heavier than the visitors, but the OAC bleachers took heart and their yells broke through the storm like the rattle of rapid fire musketry. But once the ball was kicked off and it fell into the hands of Eugene and she hit the line a few times for yardage, the knowing ones knew that OAC would very likely meet defeat.

It took just seven minutes after Arnsperger returned the punt, and Joe Templeton was shoved over the line for a touchdown. The rain fell in sheets, and a goal seemed a miracle. By a brilliant piece of head work he made the touchdown possible where he would have at least an advantage of the wind. He succeeded, and his trenchant right foot met the ball. Up and outward toward toward the goal posts it soared. The wind caught it, deflected it a little, but all the force of that nimble foot withstood the onslaught of the wind, and the oval, turning and tumbling like a wounded bird, sailed between the posts and the goal was made.

By the mighty booting he gave the ball Templeton won for Oregon the college championship of three states—Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The whistle saved Oregon Agricultural College from another score; for Oregon had the ball on the farmer's ten-yard line when time was called.

A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Ethel Norton. Games were played and a general good time was enjoyed by all present. Before the guests departed they were shown into the dining room, where a taffy-pull was enjoyed.

Judge Hamilton will convene court next Saturday.

F. P. Sheasgreen is expected home from his eastern trip about the 28 inst.

The Apple Show has been postponed to Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Rev. E. L. Jones, of The Dalles, is here for a few days, the guest of T. T. Vincent.

Miss Sarah Wilhelm came down from Monroe on Saturday to see game, and will spend a few days visiting friends.

Miss Edith Owen, of Independence, has been the guest of Mrs. Clarence Ireland for the past few days.

Jas. O. Watson was a visitor here Saturday and Sunday. He is from Roseburg and came to see the football game.

The Ladies Guild, of the Episcopal church will hold regular meetings every Wednesday at 2 o'clock at the parsonage from now on until Christmas.

Attorney F. W. Benson, of Roseburg, arrived Saturday to witness the football game and for a visit with his son, Clifford, who is attending OAC.

Mr. and Mrs. Casteel, who have been absent in the East for several weeks past returned to their home in Yaquina, a few days ago, and Mr. Casteel has resumed his position before the throttle of the regular C. & E. passenger train.

The Barrett Lyceum on Third street, was the scene of a very pleasant social gathering on Friday evening of last week. Rev. G. C. Love was the guest of the evening and it was to meet him and his good wife socially that the guests assembled. The early part of the evening was spent by Mr. Love in answering questions propounded by the audience. Mrs. Love entertained the audience with some excellent music. Mrs. Flint, as hostess gave the guests a cordial welcome, and materially assisted in making the entertainment a brilliant success.

Quite a number of Corvallis people, with their Portland friends, made up a theatre party last week to see The Gay Parisians at the Columbia. They were so well pleased that they are enthusiastic in their praise of the new management of what is getting to be acknowledged as Portland's leading theatre. This week the company will present Dion Bonicault's charming comedy-drama, "Led Astray," a play that has not been seen in Portland for many years and which will be placed on the stage in a manner creditable to the best stock company now playing in the West. Old theatre-goers will remember the play as one of Bonicault's best. If you are in Portland this week, do not fail to see it.

Runaway on Main Street.

A runaway occurred late Saturday night in which the buggy of Robert Gelately, of Philomath, was badly smashed and from which Mr. Gelately jumped just in time to probably save his life. Mr. Gelately had come over to see the football game and took his leave down to Abbot's feed barn. When he started for home and only a short distance from the barn the neckyoke fell, or a strap broke allowing the tongue to fall. The horses being young and fiery got beyond control and ran up Main street at a terrific speed. Mr. Gelately when he saw that he could not manage the team jumped out and let them go. When opposite the post office they collided with a heavy wagon with the result that the horses tore loose from the rig and dashed on toward home and the buggy had lost the two right side wheels. Fortunately no one was hurt.

The Hotel Corvallis will serve a Turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Day from 12 to 2 o'clock.

Valuable Experiments.

Professor Pernot has been experimenting with 300 quarts of cider, put up partly in bottles, partly in tin. His object is to ascertain how long the cider will keep sweet when sterilized and kept sealed. When cider is exposed to the air it will ferment in from three to seven days according to the temperature, but when sterilized and sealed it will keep for an indefinite length of time. The cider with which Professor Pernot is experimenting was obtained from the local cider mill and an ordinary grade such as is made and used by farmers generally. It is kept in the safe in the Agricultural building to better ensure its being unmolested by students who will be glad for the privilege of personally conducting the test.

The cider was obtained two weeks ago, and was heated to a temperature of 160 degrees Fahrenheit and sealed. So far there is no indication that fermentation has set in. Mr. Pernot is also experimenting with canned fruit and vegetables with very interesting results. Some of the cans were purposely not heated to the required temperature and are beginning to burst, showing that a powerful gas is being generated. Among the things experimented upon are tomatoes, corn, peas, plums and pears. The peas and corn have the largest number of failures the reason for which will be determined when the experiment is completed. These and other experiments are going on constantly that are of great value to science and also to the farmer.
