

TARIFF.

Republicans have wisely said that "the tariff should be revised by a Republican congress," the friends of the protective system continuing the idea of protection to home industries instead of its enemies, the Democratic party, who would conduct the revision along the lines of free trade. The Democratic National Platform of 1904 contained the startling announcement that "We denounce protection as a robbery." On the other hand the Republican National Platform for the same year stated that "Protection which guards and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the Republican party." Thus we find the two great parties directly opposed upon this great question. The idea of levying a tax on commodities entering a state or country from another country it is said originated in order to require the persons from abroad trading in the country to pay their share of the expense of administering the government.

The good order and laws of the country and its commercial conditions were maintained by the government, for whose support the local producers, merchants and all other citizens were taxed, and it was held that merchants and manufacturers from abroad enjoying the privileges of trading in that country should contribute their share to the support of the government, which thus assured them these trade conditions. This seems to be a doctrine founded upon equity and correct principles, because the foreign trader carried away with him all of his profits and spent it in a foreign country, while the domestic dealer expended his profits in his home country and in the employment of the laborers of the community. A tax in the way of a tariff was therefore placed upon commodities entering a country from abroad.

As to what classes of commodities this tax should be levied upon has given rise to the contentions between political parties ever since the questions of tariff have been discussed. The Democratic party contends that "free trade" is the better plan and consequently tariff should be levied for revenue only, and solely upon such articles as are imported into the country and not raised therein. On the other hand the Republican party asserts that while the tariff should be used for the purpose of raising revenue, it should be levied upon such classes of articles shipped in from foreign countries and also produced at home, thus protecting home manufacturers and producers and affording better and more remunerative wages to the laborer at home.

During the next four years the plans for constructing the Panama canal will be under the friendly counsel of President Roosevelt and much material progress will be gained in the work during that time. The President's action in recognizing the new republic of Panama and treating promptly with them so as to make it possible for an early beginning of that important work has been approved by the large vote accorded to him in the late election, and the prosecution of this great work is truly in the hands of its friends.

Early in the sixteenth century the statesmen and intelligent men of the nations of the world dreamed of an interoceanic canal across Central America. In 1527 men in Portugal, Spain, England and other countries proposed plans for a canal across the isthmus. In 1826 delegates from the United States to the Panama

Congress were instructed upon this subject. John Quincy Adams and Henry Clay were earnest advocates of a canal. It was the subject of a resolution of the United States senate in 1835 asking the President to open negotiations with other nations for the protection of parties who might undertake to construct a ship canal across the isthmus. On December 12, 1846, a treaty between the United States and the Republic of New Granada was concluded on that subject, which is still in force.

Under the recent prohibition vote it is decreed that Benton county and Corvallis especially shall be on the dry list for the next two years. It is freely talked by considerable numbers of people that under the dry system drug stores and other places devised for the purpose will sell liquors for intoxicating purposes and not the saloons. It is safe to say that the people maintaining the present drug stores in Corvallis are law-abiding citizens and they will not sell intoxicating beverages except strictly according to law. The law applies as strictly to drug stores as it does to saloons. A drug store has no special privilege under the law to sell intoxicating liquors. A penalty is directed against every person who may undertake to sell liquors contrary to the law. The law permits to be sold pure alcohol for scientific and manufacturing purposes, wines to church officials for sacramental purposes, and alcoholic stimulants as medicine in cases of actual sickness. It further provides that such stimulants shall only be sold upon the written prescription of a regular practicing physician dated and signed by him, and certified, on his honor, that he, the physician, has personally examined the applicant naming him, and that he finds him actually sick and in need of the stimulant prescribed as a medicine; and that every person selling such stimulant upon such prescription shall cancel such prescription by endorsing thereon the word "canceled" and the date of cancellation, and shall file it away.

Daily Boat to Portland.

In accordance with the regular yearly custom of the Oregon City Transportation company, the boats of the Willamette river route have commenced running from this city to Portland. The company have shown more than their usual enterprise this season, and will give Corvallis a daily boat service. This will be appreciated by our merchants, who have found the boats a great convenience in the past. The outlook for plenty of water in the river is good, and the service will be regular and reliable. G. T. Buckingham takes charge of the office this week and will do the hustling for business. See their ad. in this issue.

The company will have two regular boats on the run this season, the Pomona and Oregona. The Oregona made the first trip up, arriving in Corvallis at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, with Capt. Raabe in command. This boat is of only 13 inches draft, being perhaps the lightest draft stern-wheeler in the Northwest. Capt. Graham, the builder, accompanied her, and he reports a very successful trip up the river. She carried 60 tons of freight as far as Albany.

Capt. Graham informed our reporter that just as soon as the water is of sufficient depth, the larger boat, the Pomona, which has been on the run for a number of years, will resume her Corvallis-Portland run.

Farmers Deserve Credit.

The requests for samples, made by the committee in charge of the exhibit for the Lewis & Clark Fair, have met with such liberal and ready response that the collection is assuming large proportions and is exceedingly attractive. The farmers of Benton are to be commended for their sacrifice and zeal in this matter. When the farmers of Benton undertake to do anything they usually do it and do it well and quickly.

This exhibit can be made better, however, and farmers are still asked to bring in the very best they've got. This exhibit is on display at the office of Ambler & Waters in the Hotel Corvallis and every man interested in the development of Benton county should go in and see it and make suggestions as to how it can be improved.

The time for receiving awards closes Saturday, Nov. 26th, but the time will probably be extended for a few days longer.

A plateful of any sample of dried fruit is sufficient. Not less than three apples or pears are necessary for a sample of these. The best among all the samples are to be preserved in the green state and so placed on exhibition at the fair.

About 20 varieties of apples are already in the preliminary exhibit, and the whole number of samples 52. The fruit is nicely polished and is especially attractive. There are on exhibition 25 samples of wheat and oats and a large variety of grasses including vetch, clover, rye, red top, alfalfa, orchard grass, etc. Samples of Benton county corn in the ear, are also a surprise to many on account of their size and perfection.
