LIVE STOCK POINTERS.

Corn smut will not injure cattle unless they eat too much of it.

Hogs will fatten on alfalfa, but should be finished off with some grain.

Horses are very fond of artichokes and do well on them as a partial food.

Infuse some new blood into the swine herd and you will find that it pays.

At night in hot weather animals should be kept out of doors as much as possible.

Is the animal panting and no shade or water to partially relieve the distress? Bad, very bad.

Flies do not like kerosene oil, and just touching the hair of the animal with sponge saturated with the oil will help keep the flies off.

The country butcher is an advantage to the farmer because he will buy an animal occasionally and furnish fresh meat for the farmer's table.

Oxen are not much used in the west, but you will sometimes see them in the far west. They are not profitable for team service, but the bull could be worked with profit.

An alarming report from swine breeders is that there is not much buying of pure bred swine. This is a detriment to the farm breeders, we fear. Keep the standard high, and that can only be done by an occasional introduction of new blood.—Western Plowman.

Exercise for Brood Mares.

Mares with suckling foals should be exercised plentifully with slow and light work. After the foal is a month old it may be left in a box stall or feed lot out of sight and hearing of its dam from morning till noon, when it should be allowed to suckle. If the mare's udder is very full of milk it should be partly emptied when the animal comes home at night and before the colt is allowed to get its evening drink.—Farmers' Review.

PREVENTION OF ROUP.

Germs of the Disease Do Not Develop Without Assistance of Filth and Dampness.

Roup is a disease that is not feared by those that have never had it in their flocks. A person will sometimes raise poultry for many years and never have a case. It is our belief that it is possible to keep the disease out of the flock altogether by using due precautions. Bad weather conditions seem frequently to be the cause of the disease, but it is certainly due to a germ, and however bad the weather the disease could not come without the germs being present. But even if the germs are present they may not find a chance to develop without the assistance of filth, dampness and drafty roosting places. The way to keep roup out of a flock is to keep the henhouse clean, supply it with an abundance of light, have it so tight that the fowls will be exposed to no drafts, and then be careful about introducing new birds. New fowls must be purchased now and then, but such ones should be kept by themselves and away from the rest of the flock for a month after purchase to make sure that they are healthy. When the disease is once introduced it is likely to prove a very stubborn visitor to eject. Prevention is far easier than cure.

Roup is frequently very destructive, but at other times the disease seems to be mild in form, carrying off no birds at all. This has led to the suspicion that there are several diseases that we ignorantly named roup. We are certain that there are at least two, one being common in winter and the other most fatal in summer. The bacteriologists are working on the diseases at the present time and may ultimately bring light out of the darkness. But with our present knowledge we must treat all of these diseases as one and call them simply roup. This word is an old one and means "to cry out." It was probably given to this disease because birds affected with it cry out. A synonym is the "rip."

When this disease gets into a flock the losses from dead birds may be great; but the incapacitation of the live birds may be even greater. One man claimed to us that he had a recipe that had cured his flock of roup. It was quite an extensive combination of drugs that were made up into pellets. Each bird had to be caught in turn and have the pellets crammed down the throat. It took several months in the winter to cure the flock, and this work had to be done just at the time when the fowls should have been laying eggs. "But," said the man, "I cured them anyway, and without losing a single fowl, but I didn't get any eggs till the middle of the next summer." It may well be doubted if the cure was worth the trouble. Doubtless it would have paid better to have chopped off the heads of the well fowls as soon as it was apparent that the disease was likely to take them.

Roup is indicated by the birds having swelled heads, watery eyes, nostrils clogged with matter, by diarrhea, and by a high fever. Sometimes all symptoms except fever and diarrhea are wanting. It is better to kill cheap birds that are sick than to doctor them. But if it is desired to doctor them, their heads and throats should be washed in antiseptics and the well and sick birds should be separated.—Farmers' Review.

His One Act of Wisdom.

"That young Jollings seems to be about the biggest fool I ever saw. All he does is go gallivanting around, spending money like water and letting the girls who want to have a good time making a monkey of him. What good does such a fellow do the world?"

"You've got me guessing there. And yet, in spite of his general foolhardiness, he did none thing once that was much wiser than anything you or I ever did."

What was that?

"Picked out a millionaire to be his father."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROSELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better. S. P. BROOKINGTON.

Choral Union to Open Fair.

The Willamette Valley Choral union which conducts a large musical festival every year in May in one of the valley towns, will meet in Portland this year, and unusually elaborate preparations are being made for it on account of the Fair. The representative choruses from each city will probably be much larger than heretofore.

It is hoped to have each town included in the union, send about 75 or 100 local singers. Mr. Otto F. L. Hase, leader of the Corvallis local union, says he thinks this city will easily furnish her quota, though at this date no definite arrangement has been made.

It is intended to have about 1,000 voices to assist in the opening ceremonies of the Fair, besides several days' work, presenting some of the greatest oratorios.

Conductor Cressey Killed.

While attempting to board a moving train at Monmouth Saturday afternoon, Warren Cressey, a conductor on the motor line between Monmouth and Independence, fell beneath the cars and received fatal injuries. He died while being taken to Portland that night for surgical treatment.

Mr. Cressey was for a number of years conductor on the C & E and also on the S. P. He was about 70 years old, and had been railroading for 50 years, but was on the retired list. At the time of the accident he was only taking the regular conductor's place temporarily.

The Good Work Started.

Friday evening a banquet was given by the Y. M. C. A. in the College Armory. A number of prominent speakers were present, and at this time $3,200 was subscribed toward the erection of the Y. M. C. A. student building.

Ralph Shepard, secretary of the local association started the ball going by subscribing $150. He has a scholarship at Harvard, but has postponed taking his course there for a year in order to assist in getting the proposed hall started.

The speakers of the evening were: Withycombe, Lake and Shepard, of OAC, and H. O. Hill, of Chicago; Leslie McLain, of New York; H. J. McCoy, of San Francisco; S. W. Stone, of Portland, was toast master.

All of the money was subscribed by college students. The money is to be payable in four installments, covering about four years.

Four Hundred Babies.

St. Vincent's Infant Asylum, Chicago, shelters homeless waifs awaiting adoption, and there are nearly 400 babies there. Sister Julia writes: "I cannot say too much in praise of Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough." Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and insist upon having it, as it is a safe remedy and certain in result. Refuse substitutes. Go to Graham & Wortham's drug store to get it.
