

STILL HAS FAITH.

L. L. Brooks, of This County, Again Gives His Experience on a Benton Farm.

L. L. Brooks, who resides on a farm a few miles north of this city, contributed quite a letter to the Pacific Homestead of February 2. Mr. Brooks says that for some time he has pondered over the matter of how to make money on a valley farm and we quote his deductions as given in the Homestead, as follows:

As the Homestead asks for the experience of people in success and failure, I can give a little of mine. The two first years I did not make a success of farming; as farming is so much different it has to be learned over. Now the outlook for the future is encouraging. I have come to the conclusion that the Willamette valley farmer can make the most out of vetch, alfalfa, cows and hogs; these four handled right there can be considerable made from them. I mean the valley farmer. I don't mean those living out in the foothills or mountains where there are mountain pastures and plenty of out range.

First.—If you have an old worn-out wheat farm sow it vetch; it will pay if seed is 5 cents a pound. It will grow a good profitable crop on this old ground.

Second.—Sow a 25-acre hog pasture to alfalfa; put it in right; use land plaster and inoculated alfalfa dirt. The first year do not pasture, but cut it every three weeks all summer. I might say, to prepare the ground before sowing manure the ground heavy, then plow very deep, then pulverize down very fine and sow about May 1st.

Third.—Get a few of the very best milch cows, and keep no worthless cows that don't pay their board. The number of cows should depend on the size of farm and the help you have.

Fourth.—Get from three to 10 of the very best Poland China brood sows; the number should be counted by the feed you have and the size of pasture. It takes time to get ready to raise hogs. You must have good fences, shed, and the alfalfa pasture to make them pay. Then cut the largest portion of the vetch for hay, as hay the past four years has been a good price, and thresh a few acres for seed. Grind up the vetch screenings to fatten out the hogs' feed with separated milk, but let the hogs run on the alfalfa or clover all the time. I don't think it pays to put a hog up in a tight pen and fatten on wheat; the ground feed with pasture is much cheaper and gives the best results.

I have just lately made up my mind that alfalfa will do better than clover, as my experience has proved that way. With several trials with red clover it has not been satisfactory; it kills out too quickly and its yield was too light. It may be that people expect too much of it before the ground gets inoculated so it will do well. I prepared two acres of ground and sowed to alfalfa the 26th of May, 1904, and used land plaster and inoculated dirt from an old alfalfa field, and after all the extremely dry year the alfalfa did fine.

I want to say for the benefit of any Eastern people that may read this, that this Willamette valley is a fine place to live—such an even climate; people don't have to freeze all winter and in the summer set up all night and fan themselves to live as they do East. Can go to bed and sleep comfortably any night in the year. I notice that after an Easterner comes here and stays a year or two he seldom goes East to stay; several to my knowledge went back East but in less than six months found themselves back here again. If I had known of this climate it would have found me here 15 years ago, instead of enduring those extremes of the eastern states so long. I don't wonder people live so much longer here; they can enjoy life in comfort, but if back East they would have to wrestle all winter to keep warm and all summer to find a cool place to rest. I have had my share and all I want of that.

The inducements of Benton county are increasing, especially at the Experiment Station and Agricultural College where more students are numbering every year, and the town of Corvallis has made a wonderful growth the last seven months, and times are generally good. Every thing the farmer has to sell has demanded a good price and ready sale, with the exception of cattle and sheep, but I think they will be good in the spring. Hay is $11 a ton, wood $5 a cord, potatoes 80 cents per bushel, vetch seed $2.40 per bushel, rye 8 cents, rye clover 16 cents, speltz $1.25 a bushel, oats 45 cents and wheat 80 cents.

Resolutions of Condolence.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Supreme Commander to call our care-worn Comrade Chipman home to rest from his labors, where no clash of drums or bugle call can disturb his peaceful slumbers until the last trumpet shall arouse him, with those who have long slept, to receive the rewards of merit due them, consequent on a well spent life, and a faithful performance of their duty while here on earth, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That by the death of Comrade Chipman the community has lost a useful citizen, his family a kind father, his wife a devoted husband and protector, and Ellsworth Post a useful and honored comrade, and his death has created a void which can never be filled, and be it further

RESOLVED, That we tender our heart-felt sympathy to the family of the deceased comrade, and bid them look forward to a happy reunion in the great beyond. Be it further RESOLVED, As a mark of our esteem the charter banner and other fixtures of Ellsworth Post be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days, and these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the Post and a copy thereof be sent to the widow of deceased.

Is Now in Charge.

Last Monday, T. H. Curtis, of Astoria, appointed by A. B. Hammond to the position of manager of the Corvallis & Eastern railroad to succeed Edwin Stone, deceased, entered upon the duties connected with his new position. He was fairly well acquainted with the affairs of the road to begin with as he had frequently passed over the entire line and was personally acquainted with nearly all of the railroad officials. It is assured that he will have the healthy cooperation of all employees of the road, as he is a pleasant gentleman, of quiet manner, and thoroughly informed regarding the needs of the country the line traverses.

Mr. Curtis is one of A. B. Hammond's right hand men in this state. At present he is vice-president of the Astoria & Columbia River railroad, and for the present at least, cannot give all his attention to the C. & E., as part of his time must be given to the affairs of the Astoria & Columbia River road. However, there is no apprehension of the affairs of the C. & E. suffering from a division of his time.
