LAND AGENTS.

WHEN IT COMES TO BUYING lands, new-comers in this county will make no mistake in consulting James Lewis. Mr. Lewis has been in Benton for 30 years and not only knows the county but the entire valley. He has been actively engaged in selling and buying live stock and real estate all of this time and naturally his judgment is sound. He knows soils and values. His knowledge is worth money to anybody desiring correct and sincere information. 25-774

H. M. STONE, REAL ESTATE AND Intelligence office—After 42 years in Benton and Linn counties, I feel justified in coming before the home-seekers of Oregon, and feel that I am competent to locate all such as wish to buy homes here, with judgment and competency. For 27 years I was a bridge builder in Benton, Lane, Polk, Yamhill and Linn counties. I have property in the above named counties to sell, and am thoroughly conversant with the same. I ask no exclusive right of sale and unless property is sold by me I ask no pay. Parties wishing to employ help or if looking for a position, will find it a convenience to phone or call at the office. Kindness and courtesy extended to all. Office, South Main street, Corvallis, Oregon. Office phone 373, res. phone 66.

CAPSIZED IN MID-OCEAN.

Sailor Who Crossed Atlantic in 19-Foot Sloop Tells of Hazardous Trip.

To be capsized when sailing a sloop across the smallest of ponds appears to the fresh-water sailor sufficiently perilous. To be upset in mid-ocean from a 19-foot craft, with no help near, would appear certain death. Ludwig Eisenbaum, however, who has recently completed a trip across the Atlantic in so small a vessel, speaks of it, says the New York Herald, as one of the "incidents" of his journey, and to be regretted chiefly because he lost his watch and some of his supplies.

Eisenbaum is a sailor who believed that if he went alone across the ocean he could make money exhibiting himself in dime museums—a belief which events have rudely shattered.

One morning when he was well out to sea and was riding out a southeasterly gale in comfort, with the head of his sloop held to the wind by a heavy drag, or "sea-anchor," the line to the drag suddenly parted, and his vessel fell off into the trough of the sea.

"I knew what was coming then," he says, "but could do nothing except hold on. As my boat dipped into a valley, I saw a sea toppling over me that looked a mile high. The next moment the boat was keel up, and I was pawing at its sides, trying to find a hold.

"I had put 800 pounds of rock ballast along the keel, and had fastened it in place with boards. That weight, now on top, brought the boat right side up in a hurry, and I climbed in—a heavy job with my sea-boots and oilskins on. Luckily, I had screwed tight the cap to my water-tanks, so my fresh water was uninjured. But my watch was gone, and all my provisions that were not in cans were ruined."

Eisenbaum was 76 days alone at sea, during which time he spoke three steamers. From one of them he secured a cheap watch. When he approached Madeira he hoisted the American flag. A lookout reported to the American consul that a man-of-war's boat was coming in under sail. The consul sent tugs to the rescue, and the report was cubbed that an American battleship had foundered somewhere in that neighborhood.

The 76 days at sea did not prove lonesome, says the mariner, and he found storms no cause of worry, because while riding them out to sea he could sleep in comfort. But he was disappointed in his hope of profit, and had to sell his vessel and come home in the steerage.

RUBBER-CULTURE IN SOUTH

Only Forty Trees in a Thousand Produce Sap Which Is Commercially Valuable.

An interesting parallel is drawn in a report to the department of agriculture between the different varieties of rubber-trees grown in the tropics and those of maple-trees grown in this country. Out of about 1,000 varieties of trees, all of which produce more or less rubber sap, only 40 or 50 have been found whose product is commercially valuable. When a would-be cultivator of rubber goes to a tropical country and sets out a plantation of rubber-trees, which the natives know do not belong to the right variety, he causes amused comment, such as would be excited by a South American who came to the United States and bored holes in soft maples with the expectation of obtaining a sugar-sap. Rubber culture requires expert knowledge. Experience has shown that excellent rubber-trees transplanted from their native habitat to other regions having apparently identical soil and climate may flourish in growth yet lose their producing power.

NOT MEAN; JUST

Native Tells of Constable Who Calculated Number of Miles He Ran to Attach Chickens.

A Boston surgeon of national reputation was spending a few weeks in a little hamlet in the north of Massachusetts. It was before the days of rural free delivery, and the trip to the post office was one of the excitements of the day. Many of the inhabitants exchanged their daily gossip while waiting for the mail, relates Youth's Companion. The doctor now delights to repeat the following pleasant chat which he overheard:

"You live over at the Four Corners, Bill. What kind of a feller is the new constable? I've heard he was meaner than a potato-bug."

"Well, I don't know as you'd call him mean, but he is a little mite prudent, Jim. Knows the value of a dollar and ain't negligent about the cents. I suppose some folks would think he was mean."

"Is he as mean as Jabez Althing?"
"No," answered the other, in slow deliberation, "he ain't quite so mean as Jabez. Now, for instance, Friday he had to set an attachment for the new carpenter on Mrs. Bowles, who wouldn't pay the carpenter for building her hen house. When he got over there he found she didn't have anything he could attach except the hens. So he had to get them all together, somehow, and he chased each one around the house about 40 times before he caught 'em. I guess he was at it nearly half the morning. You know he'd driven three miles to get there, and the law allows so many cents per mile as he has to travel.

"Well, when I went by the house he was figurin' and multiplyin' and dividin' on the back of a shingle, an' I says to him: 'Howdy-do, constable? What are you calculatin'?' An' he says to me: 'I'm calculatin' how much mileage is due me fer chasin' them hens.' That's what makes me think he ain't downright mean, but just prudent."

"FAKE" ANTIQUE FURNITURE

Old Pieces Picked Up in the Country, Aged and Sold at Fancy Prices.

There is such a demand for antique furniture nowadays that the demand is far in excess of the supply. But it is certain, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, that the supply will never be allowed to fail so long as the demand exists. Of course, there is very little genuine antique furniture to be picked up and the dealer must either turn away good customers or else fabricate the furniture. For example, a man will pick up an antique bedstead in a remote country place which costs him only a dollar or less, and from it will fashion an antique cabinet which would deceive anyone except a connoisseur, and quickly find a purchaser who will be willing to pay him from $150 to $300 for it. With the aid of sulphuric acid and French polish he will make it as black as ebony, and a few minutes with a shotgun will riddle it with worm holes in the most realistic and artistic manner.

In the same way an old chest of drawers or a wardrobe, the designs of which are not sufficiently artistic to find a purchaser in that form, can be converted into a costly piece of furniture which has every appearance of a well-preserved example of sixteenth or seventeenth century work. And likewise a genuine antique can be converted into a number of pieces, any one of which will bring the price which the original would have sold for.

An ingenious way of disposing of this bogus furniture is to send it to some remote country cottage, where the custodian, coached for the purpose, will explain to the unsuspecting purchaser that "it has been in the family for centuries."

Jap Women's Hair.

The abundant smooth black tresses of the Japanese woman may be said to form her chief beauty. Unfortunately, however, her hair invariably thins after 30.

Only Horse Marines.

The United States has the only genuine horse marines. Twelve marines have been mounted at the navy yard, Mare Island, Cal., and regularly patrol the island.

Good Health to the Children

Children especially are fond of dainties, and the housekeeper must look carefully to their food.

As good cake can be made only with good eggs, so also a cake that is healthful as well as dainty must be raised with a pure and perfect baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable in the preparation of the highest quality of food. It imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness and flavor noticed in the finest cake, biscuit, doughnuts, crusts, etc., and what is more important, renders the food wholesome and agreeable to young and old.
