COLOR FLOWERS TO ORDER

Beautiful Effects Are Obtained by Horticulturists Who Practice Forced Culture.

Horticulturists create almost at will flowers of varied colors by practicing forced culture, artificial selection and hybridization, in this way obtaining a very extended scale of colors, says Cosmos. Still, in any case, the color of the flower, although it is possible to give birth to millions of varieties, can only be modified within certain limits. With reference to this fact the colors of flowers have been divided into two great categories, the xanthic series—yellow, yellowish green, orange, red—and the cyanic series, blue, indigo, violet. Never has a flower of the first series passed into the second, nor has the reverse taken place; never has a gardener, no matter how clever he may be, been able to obtain blue roses.

The florists, however, obtain this color. The method of the florists is that classic one which has been long employed on the case of violets, for example, making them green with ammonia, white with vapors of sulphuric acid, etc. In this case, however, it is the coloring matter of the flower itself which is modified, although in the production of green carnations the method adapted is that of artificially introducing coloring matter into the tissues of the plant. The coloring matter then being incorporated into the petals.

When the first green carnations appeared in Paris the city was seized with astonishment, and many persons willingly paid as much as two francs apiece for the flowers. The municipal authorities instituted an investigation and soon discovered how the flowers were colored. It appeared that a young girl accidentally poured into the water of a vase containing white carnations coloring matter with which she was painting a rose leaf green. What was her astonishment to see the carnations lose their white color and assume a beautiful green tint. From this to the regular manufacture of the flowers was only a step.

All plants, however, do not lend themselves in an equal manner to these vagaries. The carnation, yacinth, orange flower, gillyflower, iris, chrysanthemum and amellia are the most easily colored, and in this respect it is amusing to experiment with the many colors that can be obtained. It is only necessary to prepare a coloring solution, then cut the stem of the flower and place it in the solution. The plant draws up the water, and little by little the coloring matter is distributed throughout the plant's tissues. A commonilly flower placed in a solution of light green aniline dye is quickly transformed, at the end of 20 minutes the white parts being blue, the yellows green and the reds violet. Many other effects may be produced in the same way.

A HALF-POUND OF SLEEP.

To Reduce Weight a Fat Man Curtails His Slumber Instead of His Food.

"I'll allow myself a half-pound of sleep to-night—a full half-pound—for I'm dog tired," said a man, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"A half-pound of sleep? What do you mean by that?"

"Well, I'll explain. I am taking, you must know, the sleep cure for corpulence. To reduce my weight I am curtailing my sleep instead of my food. An old herb doctor in Oshkosh advised me to try the sleep cure, and I have been using it on and on, for six months now. I have lost eight pounds in that time."

"What I do is to sleep only six hours a night instead of eight. It is very hard at first to get up at seven instead of seven o'clock every morning, but I got accustomed to it and gradually my weight went down."

"But just as sure as I go back on a single night to my old allowance of eight hours up my weight jumps a half-pound. That is the way, you see, of a quarter of a pound an hour."

"I sleep now six hours a night, and, though my health is perfect, my weight is slowly descending, but it goes up whenever, as is the case to-day, I get dog tired and allow myself an eight-hour night."

CARVED DIAMONDS A FAD.

All Sorts of Jewellies Engraved on Precious Stone—Paris Jeweler Foremost in Art.

Diamonds can be engraved in a very artistic manner. This development of the diamond-cutting art brings into existence a new class of jewelry, for which a considerable demand is expected, declares the New York Herald. It was long believed that the diamond could not be engraved with safe or satisfactory results. A few stones roughly engraved were found in India, and a diamond was exhibited at the Paris exposition in 1878 on which a portrait of the king of Holland was scratched. But the work was imperfect and the stones were rather depolished than engraved.

Some of the finest specimens of engraving on diamonds are the work of M. Bordinet, a Paris jeweler. One is a scarfpin representing a yataghan, of which the blade is a slender diamond and the handle a ruby. Another is a large circular stone on which a pansy with its foliage is engraved. In another case the design is a knife made with two diamonds. An elaborate piece of work is a bicycle of which the wheels are two circular diamonds. The spokes are represented by lines engraved on the diamonds. A small hole is pierced at each axle. Another diamond is carved like a fish. A handsome brooch is a scarabaeus, surrounded by sapphires and brilliants.

The most remarkable is a ring made of one diamond, the interior surface being polished and the exterior elaborately engraved. Other examples are brooches, representing flies, of which the wings are thin engraved diamonds, and two diamonds engraved with armorial bearings, the imperial arms of Russia being used in one instance on shirt and cuff buttons.

Formerly it was only possible to produce the polish on flat surfaces, but M. Bordinet has been able to do this on concave portions, as on the body and tail of a fish and the interior of the ring. His tools produce not only straight lines, as in the wheel, the racquet and the flies' wings, but a free modeling, as in the pansy; the Russian arms and the scarabaeus. He has invented these tools himself and intends that his son alone shall have the use of them. They are exceedingly delicate and difficult to handle. He has spent 35 years bringing them to perfection. It is comparatively few years since it was possible to pierce holes in diamonds. This feat made possible the placing of diamonds on a string, alternating with pearls. This work now is done generally in diamond-cutting establishments.

NERVE OF YANKEE CAPTAIN

Old Sea Dogs Frightened by Amount of Sail Carried, But Skipper Lets It Stand.

In parallel 57 degrees, in the dog-watch four to six p. m., when the chief officer came on deck to relieve the second officer, he swiftly cast his eye toward the horizon in the direction of the wind, then at the struggling canvas, and particularly at the main topgallant sail which threatened every minute to blow away, says Frank J. Mather in Atlantic. As nautical etiquette forbids the officer in charge to alter canvas when the captain is on deck without his command or consent, the chief officer, after his hurried survey, said: "Capt. Mather, that main topgallant sail is laboring very hard." "It is drawing well—let it stand, Mr. Bartlett," was the reply. At six o'clock, when the second officer in turn relieved the first, he also gave a rapid glance about, and said: "Capt. Mather, that main topgallant sail is struggling hard." "It holds a good full, let it stand, Mr. McFarland," was the reply. Even the old sea dogs among the crew begged the petty officers to send them up to take it sail, while it was held safe to do so. As the helmsman turned his wheel, every turn of a spoke would make the ship jump in the water like a frightened bird. Men were stationed at every belaying pin, holding halyards and clew lines by a single turn "under and over," ready to let go and clew up, at a signal. We were making a record passage, and sail was to be carried to the last minute, the utmost the ship could bear, while every ex-
