nor That Aztecs and Africans Were Joined by Treaty Given Bise by Discovery.

Were the men who built the prehistoric structures at Zimbabwe in Africa of the same race as the Aztecs and other native races that have left pyramids and monuments of various kinds throughout Central and South America? This speculation takes its rise from the uncovering at Umtali in Africa of an "arrastre" stone. An arrastre is a rude apparatus used in Mexico and in some parts of the United States for grinding, and, at the same time, amalgamating ores containing free gold and silver. It consists of a vertical axis with horizontal arms attached. To these arms huge masses of rock are fastened by chains and dragged over the ore, which is placed on a bed of stones within a circular inclosure usually about 12 feet in diameter. The arrastre stone at Umtali was discovered by mining engineers in the region of the prehistoric gold mines. It is believed that the people who built the old temples and courts at Zimbabwe must have been the same as those who ground and amalgamated the metallic ores with those crude implements.

"A marvelous field of speculative archaeology is opened up." says a writer. "It has been dem onstrated by Herodotus that the Phoenicians, who went very nearly everywhere, paid a visit to South Africa in the year 600 B. C. The ancient ruins of Rhodesia have been ascribed by more than one authority to these hardy, enterprising people of the old world. It has been contended, also, that the natives of South Africa, other than those of Spanish stock, derived their origin from a Phoenician immigration. The word 'Phoenician,' in Greek, means 'a red man.' The builders of Tyre were a mixed race, Semitic and Mongolian. Does not the American 'red man' possess facial characteristics peculiar to those two nations?

"A well-known mining engi neer says: 'I have been much struck with the great similarity between these ancient ruins and those of the Aztec Indians in Colorado and New Mexico.' It would be a strange coincidence if, with the aid of the arrastre stone. a relationship were traced between the early gold diggers in South Africa and those pre-Columbian miners of South Amer-

BOOKWORMS NOT WORMS

Some Haunt Books to Prey Upon Other Mites Which Inhabit Same Places.

The name bookworm is made to cover an army of little creatures of various sizes, shapes and kinds which can be found in books, says the New York Herald. Really, no one of them is a worm, though perhaps the "fish moth" or "sil ver fish" comes nearer to it than an; of the others.

There are the book scorpions and mites, which are not insects, are primarily carninerous.

Their presence in books may be due the fact that they find tuere animal as well as vegetable food. This is certainly true of the scorpions, which feed on mites, booklice and other small insects.

The book lice, cockroaches, "silver fish" and "fish moth" can have no reason for infesting books except their liking for farinaceous substances such as are used in and about the labels and bindings of books. The damage done by them is largely confined to the exterior or interior of the bindings themselves.

The "white ants" feed principally on wood, and in and about books there is more or less wood fiber, which is to the liking of these voracious feeders.

The moths and beetles are the borers and burrowers. They seek retired places to lay their eggs. where the larvae will have plenty of food at hand when hatched. They will sometimes tunnel from one cover to the other.

LARGEST MILL IN WORLD.

Big Device Located Near San Francisco-Pumps 200,000 Gallons of Water Every 24 Hours.

The largest windmill in the United States, if, indeed, not the largest in the whole world, has recently been constructed near San Francisco, says the American Inventor. This gigantic mill is located directly on the ocean beach, near the famous Seal Rocks. It is used for pumping water up into Golden Gate park.

The huge, strong wooden tower supporting the wind arms rises 150 feet. It is 40 feet square at the base, very securely anchored and gradually tapers upward, assuming a round shape. There are four immense wooden arms or vanes. Each arm measures 80 feet from the center or hub-thus making a diameter of 160 feet in the describing circle. The wind yanes are six feet wide and extend nearly the entire length of the huge arm, thus affording the greatest possible amount of wing space for catching the air.

The windmill is located upon a prominent elevation, so that it may catch every available wind arising in that section.

This colossal windmill is ble of developing about 50-horse power-its maximum capacity. Its pumping capacity is 200,000 gallons of water every 24 hours. The water is taken from the wells and forced through a large iron RATE mense reservoir several hundred feet higher than the ocean beach. through the park.

Stoical Mikado.

Mutsohito, the emperor of Japan, is about as stoical and impassive as an American Indian. When Prof. Milne, the greatest living seismologist, was studying earth quakes in the far east he spent some years in the Tokio university. In that island empire earthquakes occur two or three times a day sometimes. The professor's researches and experiments attracted the attention of the mikado, for whose pleasure a sham earthquake was arranged. On a waste piece of ground the professor caused to be erected some buildings, beneath which were quantities of powerful explosives. The emperor pressed the button and the mines exploded with terrific force. His majesty remained calm and imperturbable. He had neither started nor blinked. Motionless and impassive, he watched the scene. Then, just on taking his leave, he remarked the one word "Really!"
