It affords banking rivileges at home and abroad first-class, not ex-celled by any institution in the United States. ODD INDUSTRIES OF PARIS

The Members of the Ragpickers' Society Often Find Rich Prizes in Their Search,

The ramasser de nuit is the humblest member of the ragpicker's' corporation. He is generally a laborer out of work, and collects whatever he can find and judges salable, from a scrap of paper or an orange peel to a dilapidated stove. Take old boots, for example, says the Pall Mall Gazette. However bad, they have a market value, for they always contain in the instep one sound piece that can serve again, and generally two or three more at the heel and at the back. Old provision tins again, are full of money; the lead soldering can be removed and melted into cakes while the tin goes to make children's toys. There are about 6,000 of this class of night birds in Paris. Another quaint night bird is the "guardiar angel." The "guardian angel" is a person attached to the establish ments of some mastroquets-low barkeepers-and certain public houses for the purpose of looking ifter the safety of drunken cus omers. He accompanies then to their homes, defends them in case of need, as often as not has to put them in bed, and leaves then only when they are without the each of mischief. He earns abou 5) cents a day. Cases are also o: ecord where grateful drunkards igve remembered the "angel" i heir wills. To return the compli nent, the "angel" has investo ome of his funds in the purchas of a barrow, the object of which s but too obvious.

An important night bird is the member of the guild des pattes mouillees. He deals in tobacco nanufactured from stumps of cicars and cigarettes picked up in he street, and holds assizes on the lace Maubert, the statue Etiener Jolet, twice a week at three a. m. n these days the square is called he "xiarket of wet paws."

The industry is quite remuneraive on a modest scale, of course nd would be even more so were t not for the government, which repped in with characteristic reed and on the grounds of the conopoly it holds proceeded to tax the tobacco collected with se much painstaking care.

SEA SHELLS THAT EXPLODE

Small Marine Crusts When Dropped Go Off with Loud Report-Cause of the Phenomenon.

Nature has made many kinds of mbs in the shape of seed pr hich open with great force at ojects the conteats to a consi able distance. There is a sec ...ti which explodes with a foridable noise and suggests a critable dyr, mite bomb.

Not long ago a young lady wan laring on the shore of Maria and icked up a handful of shells is. v the tide. Among them were e shells of a small marine spall he largest of which were not fore then a half inch in diameter. the dropped them into her pocket and forgot all about them until some days afterward she noticed an uppleasant odor which acres be'n her wardrobe. On taking to

The shells were then exemined by a scientist, who found he mouth of each firmly closed by membrane of greater or less lickness, formed by the drying of he animal's slime. This had probbly occurred soon after removal roin the moisture of the beach, and the inhabitants of the sheil lyir the gases of decomposition I rively filled their space. On exerting a little pressure a loud x losion was produced, the shell agments flying in all directions. but of a dozen shells only two failed to explode. The conditions most successful in making the experiment seemed to be removal from the beach in hot, dry weather, which caused the slime to be exuded in greater quantities than usual and dried it up rapidly.
