BANKING

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF Corvallis, Oregon, does a general, conservative banking business. It guards safely its customers' banking business through the panics of the last two decades, which merits proper consideration. It affords banking privileges at home and abroad, first-class, not excelled by any institution in the United States. The members of the Board of Directors were born and raised in Benton County, except one, and that member has resided in the county forty-six years. The business history of each is as an open book before the people of the county. Loans to customers solicited, properly secured. 40tf

Notice for Publication.

United States Land Office, Portland, Oregon, July 7, 1905.
Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," as extended to all the Public Land States by act of August 4, 1892, EUGENE BOGERT, of Monmouth, county of Polk, State of Oregon, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement No. 6284, for the purchase of the E. 1/4 of S. W. 1/4 of S. E. 1/4 of Section No. 18 in Township No. 13 S, Range No. 6 West, and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber or stone than for agricultural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before Register and Receiver at Portland, Oregon, on Tuesday, the 19th day of September, 1905.
He names as witnesses: Charles H. Newman, Wilhard Church, Philip H. Johnson, Ernest K. Allen, all of Monmouth, Oregon.
Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 19th day of September 1905.
JALGERNON S. DRESSER, Register.

HOLBEIN AND TITIAN.

To the Former Pilgrim the World Was a Toilsome Journey, to the Other a Pageant.

The genius of Holbein blossomed early, says St. Nicholas. In 1515, when he was 18 years old, he moved from Augsburg, where he was born, to Basel, the center of learning, whose boast was that every house in it contained at least one learned man. In 1520 he was admitted to citizenship at Basel and to membership in the painters' guild, good proof, as he was only 23, of his unusual ability.

But the times were lean ones for the painter. Holbein found himself in need of money, and accordingly set out for London with a letter of introduction to Sir Thomas More, the king's chancellor. "Master Haunce," as the English called him, arrived in England toward the close of 1526. During this first visit to England he painted portraits of many of the leading men of the day. But two years later, in consequence of an outbreak of the plague, he returned to Basel, only to be driven back to England in 1531 by poverty and the death of his old friends.

In 1537 Holbein came to the notice of Henry VIII, and was established as court painter, a position which he held until his death. This seems to have occurred during another visitation of the plague in 1543; for at this date knowledge of the great artist ceases. When he died or where he was buried is not known.

What a contrast between his life and Titian's! One the favorite, and the other the sport of fortune. For though the greatness of both was recognized by the men of their time, Titian lived a life of sumptuous ease in the beautiful surroundings of Venice, while Holbein, often straitened for money, never wealthy, experienced the rigor of poverty; forced by need and circumstances to become an alien in a strange land, dying unnoticed and unhonored.

The world to Titian was a pageant, to Holbein a scene of toil and pilgrimage.

BIG FAMILIES OF ENGLISH.

North of Britain Is Rooseveltian Paradise as Far as Race Suicide Is Concerned.

The north of England seems to be a fertile soil for large families, for in 1797 we read of a Cumberland man and his wife, accompanied by 30 of their children, all attending the christening of the 31st child; and in earlier years another north countryman, Thomas Greenhill, applied to the then duke of Norfolk, earl marshal, for an augmentation to his coat-of-arms on the singular ground that he was "the seventh son and 29th child of one father and mother."

In Conway churchyard there was to be seen—it can scarcely be there to-day—a tombstone bearing the following remarkable epitaph: "Here lyeth the body of Nicholas Hocker, of Conway, gentleman, who was the 41st child of his father, William Hocker, by Alice his wife, and the father of 27 children. 1637."

The man's family he considered as including all his descendants, that of Peter Smith, who flourished in New Jersey in the seventeenth century, is entitled to a high place of honor, for at a recent annual gathering of Peter's progeny no fewer than 7,000 met and dined together under the apple trees in the orchard attached to the ancestral homestead.

In families it is not an uncommon thing for one child to be old enough to have a sister or brother young enough to be his or her great-grandchild. Thus the eldest son of Thomas Beatty, of Devon, had passed his 73d birthday when his youngest brother quitted for the cradle. When William Frost, of Galphay, near Ripon, died in 1780, his eldest child was a sturdy boy of 88 summers, and his youngest was barely 16, and the Lady Powerscourt of to-day is a half century older than her latest brother.

MAY PUT BAN ON QUEUE.

Chinese Government Said to Be Considering the Abolishment of Old Style Appendage.

Some time ago it was announced that the members of a Chinese revolutionary reform movement had decided to abandon the custom of wearing the queue, and that hundreds of the Chinese in New York and California colonies were cutting that hirsute appendage. The Chronicle expressed its incredulity of the revolutionary source of the reform at the time the announcement was made on the ground that the cutting of the queue would be a distinguishing mark of the disloyalty to the imperial dynasty of the Chinese who submitted to it, and be an absolute bar to his return to his own country.

According to the local Chinese papers, the inspiration favoring queue cutting comes from an imperial and not from a revolutionary source. These papers represent that a mandate directing the cutting of the queue is being seriously considered by the Chinese government, and its issuance at an early date is anticipated. It is expected that within the next six months the custom of wearing queues will disappear entirely in the local colony.

If the Chinese government is contemplating the issuance of such a reformatory order it has doubtless been influenced in its course largely by the example set by Japan, which, before its adoption of western civilization, was a queue-wearing nation. Whether the wearing of the queue by the Chinese grew out of a condition of servility or possesses a special religious significance, its abolition will mark the abandonment of one of China's oldest and most persistently cherished traditions. But it will be accepted generally as the initial step of the Chinese government toward the modernization of the nation. If the government favors the change there can be no doubt that the people will promptly comply with its edict.

ASPHALT COMES FROM LAKE

Venezuela Bodies of Water Are Source of Chief Supply of Great Commercial Product.

Although the asphalt lakes of Trinidad and Venezuela furnish over 90 per cent. of the asphalt used, small deposits are found in the limestone of Val de Trivas, in Switzerland; Seyssel, on the Rhone; Cuba and America, declares a writer in the New York Tribune. The largest South American asphalt lake consists of a dark brownish deposit of a semi-fluid and semi-solid substance surrounded by banks from three to six feet high. In the center of this lake is a continual ejection of hot fluid asphalt, accompanied by large bubbles of gas.

The dark-skinned workmen excavate it in pieces weighing in the neighborhood of 25 pounds, sections 40 feet in area and about four feet deep being worked at one time. As quickly as freed from its surroundings it is placed in large tubs, resting upon small flat topped trancars operated upon a narrow gauge road. The entire surface is constantly moving, thus necessitating a continual relaying of the tracks.

The freshly excavated asphalt is conveyed to the shore, where the tubs are lifted by hydraulic power to an aerial tramway, by which it is conveyed to a large wharf situated on the Guanoco river, about five miles distant from the lake. Here it is weighed and dumped into the vessels which convey it to the foreign lands.

Upon its arrival at a factory it is heated until the water is expelled and the earthy matter is cast to the bottom of the large vats, and it is poured through a sieve into barrels, where it solidifies. It is then ready for commerce.
