HAVE HIM LOCATED.

Many politicians make little of ante-election promises. All know that promises are easily made—and easily broken by one of callous conscience. It is not an uncommon thing in political history of our land to find instances where men have been elected to a certain position by the people on the word of the candidate that he stood for such and such a thing, who, immediately after his inauguration into office went squarely back on all his promises.

This is a traitorous act and unbecoming any office-holder. He no doubt cases his conscience by the statement that he has "changed his mind." It were well for him to remember that "his mind" did not elect him to office. He was put there by the people to carry out their wishes and by the eternals so long as candidates refuse to carry out the principles of their constituency just so long will the question of ours being a representative government be somewhat in doubt.

If a candidate finds after his election to office that his mind has undergone a change and he cannot conscientiously carry out his obligation and be honest with himself, he may resign and preserve his integrity, his self-respect and the respect of others. Governor Cummings of Iowa, furnishes a splendid example of this point. In a recent issue of the New York "Press" we find the following on this changeable governor:

There can be no possible objection, however, to any one, from the President of the United States down, making a direct appeal to the voters to pass on this question, both in nominating conventions of the party and afterward at the general polls for election. If a district convention sends into the field a nominee committed by its decision to flat Free-Trade, clearly it is the duty of that man, if he is elected, to stand for Free-Trade through thick and thin, on public platforms, in the corridors of the party and in the action of Congress. That is representative Government where constituents select a representative to voice their sentiment and carry out their will, so far as it lies in his power, so long as their writ runs in his favor.

Likewise the member chosen to represent constituents who have committed him to the American Tariff system, in their convention platform and pledges has a fixed duty, so long as that writ runs, to uphold not the "Iowa idea," nor the "dual tariff," nor Tree-Trade, but the American Tariff system. Therefore we strongly endorse the movement of Cummins in Iowa, so far as it places him at last in an honest position where the voters may know where he stands and may know what to do with him. As for his plan to get rid of Secretary Shaw—in the fashion that the same elements undertook to get rid of McKinley before his nomination in 1896—we cheerfully leave that consideration to the people who vote at the polls and in convention. In sweeping up the very tiny remnants of Cummins Secretary Shaw will need no assistance from outside the State of Iowa.

WORDS OF PRAISE.

Little Benton Written Up In Oregonian.

Every effort in reason has been put forth by those having the matter in hand to make a good showing for Benton county at the Exposition. How they have succeeded is made clear by the fact that the Oregonian of Sunday run a very fine cut of Benton's booth at the Fair and accompanied the same with the following good write-up:

"Oregon's pride," the smallest county in the state and the richest, "the greatest prune county with regard to size in Oregon"—these are some of the boasts of Benton County, as it proudly displays its products in the Agricultural building, Lewis and Clark Exposition.

On tall panels backed with black velvet are numbers of curling, furling wisps of wheat, artistically arranged in graceful spirals and curves. On the counter at one end are jars of more wheat, and all told there are more than one hundred varieties of the "staff of life" on exhibit at the county's space. But what attracts the attention of visitors more than anything else in the booth is the splendid display of Italian and Dutch prunes. Prune culture forms one of the leading industries of the county. Twelve hundred acres are planted with prunes and are valued, together with what has been termed the largest evaporator in the world, at $300,000. All of the small fruits, including grapes, currants, gooseberries, blackberries, strawberries, dewberries, junberries, and raspberries, are grown to perfection in this county.

There is no irrigation in Benton county yet the soil is marvelously productive, as is evidenced in the fine display of fruits and vegetables at the Exposition. Benton county has been called the natural home of the clover plant. Four tons of clover hay to the acre have been repeatedly harvested, and this has frequently been followed with a crop equally as large. Vetch has been known to yield 25 tons to the acre, and other grains and grasses grow with like prodigality.

"There is no potato bugs in Benton," is the slogan raised by the prosperous farmers of that county, and probably because of this fact from 300 to 500 bushels of the succulent tubers have been gathered from one acre.

Because of the rich forage grasses which flourish within the borders of the county, which are exhibited at the Exposition, livestock attain an enviable state of perfection. Cattle raising is a most important industry of the county. Benton county horses are eagerly sought for by dealers in the market. Sheep and goat raising are very profitable in this county, breeders at times having realized from 50 to 100 per cent annually on their investment. Several fleeces of exceptional fine texture on exhibit in the county's booth, bear out this statement.

Benton county's exhibit has become the Mecca for the visitors to the Fair, as it is the custom of those in charge to give away samples of the luscious fruit on display.

Case Dismissed.

A week or two back we printed the details of the raid made on the Lebanon Club. Trial should have been given Andrew Jennings last Wednesday, but for some reason the case was dropped as though there was something warm about it. The following dispatch sent out from Albany, September 7, may shed a little light on the matter:

A bombshell exploding in the Court room yesterday afternoon would not have caused more surprise than did the action yesterday of Deputy District Attorney

Gale S. Hill, when he asked for and secured the dismissal of the case against Andrew Jennings, charged with violating the local option liquor law at Lebanon.

The case against Jennings was to have been tried before Magistrate W. S. Risley, and many citizens from Lebanon were in attendance at court to hear the trial. Some of the best legal talent of the county appeared for the defendant, and preparations had been made for a desperate fight in behalf of the defendant.

Just after the jury had been selected, Deputy District Attorney Hill addressed the court, stating that an important witness who had not been subpoenaed, but who had promised to be in attendance, and who is now in Portland, had failed to put in an appearance, and that at the request of Dr. W. H. Booth, the prosecuting witness, and a large number of people who were interested in the prosecution of the club, he would move to dismiss the case.

Counsel for the defense protested against the motion, arguing that the case should be tried and a verdict of not guilty rendered if there was not evidence enough to push the suit. The motion was granted, however, and Jennings was freed from the charge.

Considerable wonderment is expressed here as to the next move of the Prohibitionists. Lebanon people who were instrumental in bringing about the arrest of Jennings, assert that the end is not yet. From the District Attorney's office there is no explanation offered.

Took Wheel Off.

Through a miscalculation of distance Merrill Hammell took the hind wheel off the milk wagon of Clyde Beach, Saturday. Merrill was driving the large, heavy bus of Hotel Corvallis and had a load of passengers that had just reached town on the West Side train.

In front of the Pioneer Bakery Mr. Beach had stopped his wagon rather "slaunch wise" on the street, with the hind end of the wagon out. While in this position the milk wagon was struck and deprived of a hind wheel in the twinkling of an eye. At the time of the collision there were ten large cans of milk on Mr. Beach's wagon, and miraculously as it may seem, not a drop was spilled although the wheel was peeled off like the jacket on an onion, and the ax dropped to the ground.

On hearing of the accident Mr. Hammell at once signified his willingness to pay all damages, whatever they might be and according to our information, the matter was satisfactorily adjusted. It might easily have been more serious.

UNSEEN DANGER IS ON OUR TRACK

From the time of our birth till we lie down for the last time.

The best defense from the dangers of disease is vigor of body and activity of the natural functions.

The kind of assistance is important. It must not be stimulation for that gives but temporary effect, and the reaction is more than depressing.

Take a tonic—one that will re-establish normal digestion and assimilation and prove a reconstructive rather than a promoter of waste. This will give nature a fair chance to put in motion normal work of repair and tissue building.

Such a tonic was given in Nature's Laboratory, hidden in the ground and brought thence forty years ago by Dr. R. V. Pierce, who has made the treatment of lingering diseases his life-long study and care.

He uses glyceric extracts instead of alcoholic ones, exactly proportioned and combined by processes of his own invention, first used in his private practice and now given out freely to the world in his "Golden Medical Discovery," which is composed of Golden Seal root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Blood-root and Mandrake root.

Mrs. A. T. Jones, of 928 Hayes Street, San Francisco, Cal., writes: "As a child I was delicate, and great care was taken of me because some of my relatives had died of consumption, although my mother and mother were healthy. I grew up with only the ordinary diseases of all children, but about two years ago I contracted a severe cold, which would not yield to such home-treatment as was handy. Doctors were tried, but after three months of this treatment I was only worse. Then I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and am glad to say that three bottles not only cured me of the cold and cough, but made me feel better than I ever had before. I will always have a bottle of this medicine in the house."

These tiny, sugar-coated antibilious granules regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Do not forget the "pill habit," but cure constipation. One or two each day for laxative and regular three or four for an active cathartic. Once tried always in favor. Put up in vials; always fresh and reliable.
