Notice for Publication.

United States Land Office, Portland, Oregon, August 19, 1906. Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber land in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," as extended to all the Public Land States by act of August 4, 1892, IVA SHERWOOD PATTY, of Corvallis, county of Benton, State of Oregon, has this day filed in this office her sworn statement No. 684, for the purchase of S. 1 SE 1/4 of Section No. 28 in Township No. 10 S., Range No. 6 West, and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber or stone than for agricultural purposes, and to establish her claim to said land before the Register and Receiver of this office at Portland, Oregon, on Monday, the 6th day of November, 1906.

She names as witnesses: Erwin R. Alexander, Thomas R. Graham, James H. Patis, all of Corvallis, Oregon; Robt. A. Miller, of Portland, Oregon. Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 6th day of November, 1906.

ALGERNON S. DRESSER, Register.

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that after marriage many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., says: "For years my wife suffered intensely from Dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Allen & Woodward druggists, sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle.

250,000 Tons at a Single Blast.

A monster blast has been carried through at Bonawe, near Oban. A 70-foot shaft was made, then a charge of 24,000 pounds of gunpowder was placed in position and fired by electricity. A mass of rock 150 feet high by 260 feet in width was displaced. The weight of the mass was roughly estimated at 250,000 tons.

Attacked By a Mob.

and beaten, in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon sound and well. "I use it in my family," writes G. J. Welch, of Tekonsha, Mich., "and find it perfect." Simply great for cuts and burns. Only 25c at Allen & Woodward's drug store.

BLOCKING OF PORT ARTHUR

Writer in Vigorous Description Tells of Perils of Japanese Before Doomed City.

This vigorous description is from "The Yellow War," by "O." The scene is the blocking of Port Arthur harbor by the Japanese vessels. "The officer in command of the doomed ship stood in front of the wheel with his eyes glued upon the deepening base of the black darkness in front of him. The increasing shadow betokened the land he was trying to make. The only light was the binnacle. The slow grind of the half-speed engines and the swirl of the displaced water was in itself sound enough to render almost unbearable the overpowering feeling of silence. Suddenly a great flood of light cleft the darkness ahead. It was so white and clear that the faces of the three men on the bridge looked pale and deathlike. The man at the wheel winced with the stroke—it was literally a stroke of light—but the officer only moved his hand. The enemy had defeated their own ends; they had shown him the passage—half a point to starboard and the point was true.

"All was dark and dreadful again, but only for a second. A long meteorlike rocket shot up from the center of the overpowering mass ahead. Its sinuous course closed in a mass of sparks. The great beam of the Golden hill searchlight leaped into life. But there were other lights—lightning flashes from the breast of the mountain, flashes which seared the gloom and vanished. The forts of Port Arthur were firing the guns which at night are always trained upon the harbor approaches. The tumult was deafening. The great bare flanks of the mountains behind caught up the deadly roll of discharging quick firers and flung the sound back in mocking reverberation. But that was not the worst sound. The hissing rush of projectiles, the ear-splitting swish as they struck the water and exploded, or shrieked in ricochet overhead—the tension bred of apprehensive darkness had changed to an inferno of modern war.

"At last the Japanese officer gave evidence of sensibility to the shades which surrounded him. He had brought his ship far enough into the passage. He blew the whistle, which his teeth had bitten almost flat: "Port, had a port!" As her head came round a heavy shell hit her forward. Then another shock. It was as if an earthquake had struck her. Instantaneously the engines stopped. They were twisted out of all semblance to symmetry. A torpedo had struck her amidships. Again the whistle sounded. It was the order to take to the boat. . . . The ship was listing heavily. The officer shouted to his men in the boat. His foot was on the rail when the destroyer opened with its quick firer. A shell took him in the neck and shoulder and bursting on impact carried the brave man's head and brain away with it. His mutilated trunk fell forward among his anxious men.

"He was aboard. They pushed off and as they handled the oars they gave a cheer. Then they discovered that it was the warm, thick lifeblood of their chief and not the spume of the sea which had made them wet in the darkness."

Poor Johnnie.

Mose Chigley, a friend of the Sentinel living in Davis, and certainly a representative Indian of his tribe, a man always ready to appreciate the situation, was blessed a few months since with a male heir. The little fellow, however, did not arrive in time to get on the approved government rolls. This grieved the fond father not a little; in fact, he took it so to heart that he was determined in some way to commemorate lastingly the matter. He accordingly christened the portionless heir Johnnie No Land Chigley.—Paul's Valley (O. T.) Sentinel.

Smallest Installation.

What is said to be the smallest electric light installation in the world is to be found in the village of Bremen, near Dornbach, Thuringia. It comprises a single arc lamp installed in a church, the lamp being operated by a small dynamo driven by the wheels of the village mill.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Following was Contributed by Mrs. E. H. Belknap.

Leaves have their time to fall,
And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath,
And stars to set,—but all,
Thou hast all seasons for thine own,
O Death!

We know when moon's shall wane,
When summer birds from far shall cross the sea,
When autumn's hues shall tinge the golden grain,—
But who shall teach us where to look for thee?

Death at all times and places is sad. It carries with it that which checks the flow of laughter, dims the eye, saddens the heart, and makes life appear less desirable. It calls upon us in the busy rush of life to pause and consider that this is the certain fate that awaits us all. But when it comes to a home or community as it has to ours, it is, indeed, overwhelming.

On last Friday morning, Sept. 1, Clyde C. Tharp, a young man of twenty-five years, arose early and started out to haul a load of gravel for a new road they were constructing. The sun shone brightly, the birds warbled gaily their sweetest songs, as he went whistling about his work, while life seemed to lie all before him and everything gave promise of years of happy, useful life.

But what a sudden change awaited us! A team had run away, a wagon overturned, a heart had ceased to beat, a soul had entered eternity, all in one short hour. How changed was all! His loving wife and child, his fond father and mother, who so shortly before had bidden him a happy goodbye were now so sorely bereft. Ah what hopes had been blotted out! What plans so suddenly ended! What awful disappointment, grief and desolation in that once happy home!

Clyde was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Tharp. He was born near Belfountain, Jan. 3, 1880, and his entire life had been spent in this community. Here his childhood and boyhood were spent; here he grew to man's estate, and his sudden death cast a deep gloom over this neighborhood, over every home, for he was our boy. He was an exemplary young man with no bad habits to mar his moral life. He was always an obedient, frugal and industrious boy and his amiable manners drew to him a host of warm friends.

Being the only child of loving parents, he was ministered to with greatest care and kept ever near those who loved him far better than life itself; thus he might have chosen for himself an easy dependent life, but he scorned such a life, and entered boldly upon the field of action, choosing rather to minister, than to be ministered to.

On May 1st, 1901, he was united in marriage with Martha Hixson, a charming young lady of this community, and together they had begun to build for love selves an ideal home, where love should reign and happy children play. To them one little daughter was given and she is left to comfort the broken-hearted who will now turn to her with added love.

While Clyde thus interested in building a new home, he did not forget the old home, scarcely a day passed that they were not there. Together the parents and children worked and planned for all and were thus kept in closest touch and sympathy. But neither care, love, nor devotion could turn aside this sable-winged messenger. He entered and all is changed.

Too much can not be said of the tender and high esteem in which this dear boy was held, especially by our young people. He grew among us was associated with us in the school, the grange, the church, the home and we loved him as our very own, hence his removal has left an ache in every heart, a tear in every eye, while the unmeasured love and sympathy of all is extended to his loved ones in this, their great bereavement.

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Geo. A. Sherman, Lisbon Red Mills, Lawrence Co. N. Y., writes: "I had kidney disease for many years and had been treated by physicians for twelve years; had taken a well known kidney medicine and other remedies that were recommended but got no relief until I began using Foley's Kidney Cure. The first half bottle relieved me and four bottles have cured me of this terrible disease. Before I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure I had to make water about every fifteen minutes, day and night, and passed a brick-dust substance, and sometimes a slimy substance. I believed I would have died if I had not taken Foley's Kidney Cure." Sold by Graham & Wortham.
