PERIL IN STONE SETTING.

Rewards Are Offered for a Method to Remove Risk of Lead Poisoning—Little Hope.

Advices from Washington are to the effect that the government of the Netherlands has offered a prize of 6,000 florins, some $2,000 in the currency of this country, for a complete solution of the problem involved in the setting and re-setting of diamonds without incurring the danger of lead poisoning.

It is to be feared that nobody will come forward to claim this reward. For years scientists on both sides of the water have been experimenting with a view to remedying the defects of diamonds, eliminating their dangerous properties, but thus far their efforts have not been productive of the desired results. Many diamonds, particularly the larger stones, can be set without the metallic background which threatens the health of the gold and silversmiths, but in every instance they lose their brilliancy, and, attached to the shirt bosoms of "dressy gentlemen" or the bodices of portly dowagers and matrons attract scarcely more attention than window glass. Four and even six-karat white diamonds, shorn of a thin, filmy under surface of lead or lead and tin composition, frequently become transparent and fail to refract the light. Unhooked and presented as pledges after banking hours these gems are appraised at from $2.45 to $3.60 a quart, which is but a tithe of their apparent value.

The lead which enters into diamonds of "purest ray serene" not only imperils the lives of those who handle them for the market, but also stains the clothing of those who wear them. Some little time ago the French bureau of chemistry announced that it would give 50,000 francs to the person who would devise a process which would free diamonds from the taste peculiar to alum which many of them possess, but the department mentioned still has the money.

WILL POWER AN ESSENTIAL

The Man Who Believes and Has Confidence in Himself Is He Who Succeeds.

What would you think of a young man, ambitious to become a lawyer, who should surround himself with a medical atmosphere and spend his time reading medical books? asks Orison Swett Marden, in Success. Do you think he would ever become a great lawyer by following such a course? No, he must put himself into a law atmosphere, where he can absorb it and be steeped in it until he is attuned to the legal note. He must be grafted into the legal tree so that he can feel its sap circulating through him.

How long would it take a young man to become successful who puts himself into an atmosphere of failure and remains in it until he is soaked to saturation with the idea? How long would it take a man who depreciates himself, talks of failure, walks like a failure, and dresses like a failure—who is always complaining of the insurmountable difficulties in his way, and whose every step is on the road to failure—how long would it take him to arrive at the success goal? Would anyone believe in him or expect him to win?

The majority of failures began to deteriorate by doubting or depreciating themselves, or by losing confidence in their own ability. The moment you harbor doubt and begin to lose faith in yourself, you capitulate to the enemy. Every time you acknowledge weakness, inefficiency, or lack of ability, you weaken your self-confidence, and that is to undermine the very foundation of all achievement.

So long as you carry around a failure atmosphere, and radiate doubt and discouragement, you will be a failure. Turn about face, cut off all currents of failure thoughts, of discouraged thoughts. Boldly face your goal with a stout heart and a determined endeavor, and you will find that things will change for you; but you must see a new world before you can live in it. It is to what you see, to what you believe, to what you struggle incessantly to attain, that you will approximate.

FIND TREASURE OF A KING

Hoard of Gold, Ivory and Precious Stones Lies Hidden in African Soil.

Treasure hunting continues to occupy the attention of many people in various parts of the world. A hoard of buried wealth not as well known as certain others is that supposed to have been secreted by Lobengula, king of the Matabele in Southern Africa, before he met his death at the hands of the British. This treasure is said to consist of gold, ivory and precious stones. It was brought into the limelight of public notice not long ago by the arrest of a Dutchman named John Jacobs. He arrived at Bulawayo, told something of his plans, was put into what they call the "goal" and has since been deported.

Lobengula succeeded his father as king of the Matabele in 1870 and boldly opposed European civilization. He made Bulawayo his capital. After the discovery of gold in his territory in 1872, Portugal, the Transvaal and Great Britain strove to win the supreme control over Lobengula's kingdom. In 1888 he signed a treaty with Great Britain, admitting her suzerainty. In 1893, provoked by the insolence of the British South Africa company, he attacked the English. He was terribly beaten. His capital was taken and in his flight he himself was killed.

John Jacobs, the treasure seeker, was a school-teacher. He claims to have been private secretary to King Lobengula and that in this way he learned where the treasure was hid. The Bulawayo authorities, however, discovered that he had a bad record. Hence his deportation. Jacobs is an elderly man, bearing evidence of long exposure to wind and weather. The treasure is still to be found.

Old Age and Late Hours.

A statistician affirms that the majority of people who attain old age have kept late hours. Eight out of ten who reach the age of 80 have never gone to bed till after 12 at night.

OUR HISTORY IS MASCULINE

Hard and Uncolored Is the Chronicle of the Events Connected with America.

Our history is hard and masculine; colored with few purple lights; too little related to our tenderer sentiments and deeper passions. When older peoples have paused, as we did then, they have looked upon far different scenes, says William Garrott Brown, in the Atlantic. Fairer companies have stood about more stately figures of triumph or of tragedy than that America and the world now gazed upon. The common chamber, the gaunt, pale president, the strong, bearded counselors at his bedside—this was unlike the scenes which European peoples have fixed in their memories. Charles I. and Mary Stuart on their scaffolds, the barons and the king at Runnymede, Maria Theresa appealing to the nobles of Hungary to take up their swords for her child, Marie Antoinette and Mirabeau, and many another pageant of human love and sacrifice are treasured up by other people as we have treasured up this crude, unlacekeyed martyrdom.

Even the great personality of Lincoln, now potent in so many individual lives, intimate and familiar to so many of our hidden moods, was not yet fully revealed to his fellows. It was the emancipator only that had fallen, the leader and shepherd of men. Outwardly at least his experience was limited as theirs was. Dying in the midst of multitudes, master of armies and of navies, he was still of the frontier; as, indeed, all our American life was still, in a sense, only the frontier and western fringe of European life.

True, Lincoln also leads us back to the princes whose peer he was, but we can pass from his death bed with no irreverence, no sense of shock or change, to look out, in the plain light of day, upon the whole wide field of work and strife and progress which was always in his thought, and glimpse the attitude and state of the republic when his summons passed, like an angelus, across the continent.

LACE-BARK TREES ARE FEW

But Half a Dozen of This Species Now Exist—Reason for So Naming.

There are in all about half a dozen lace-bark trees in the world, so called because the inner bark yields a natural lace in a ready-made sheet form, which can be made up in serviceable articles of apparel. Only four of these curious species of trees are of much practical value. Tourists who have stopped at Hawaii or Samoa may recall the lace-bark clothing of the natives—clothing of a new brown color when new, of remarkable strength and of a fragrant odor, like freshly cured tobacco leaf. The native tapa cloth, as it is called, is made from the bark of the brunsonia papirifera, but it is not usually included among the real lace-bark trees.

In its natural state the real lace-bark is of a delicate cream-white tint. It is probably a kind of fibrous pith. When the outer bark is removed it can be unfolded and unwound in one seamless piece, having a surface of a little more than a square yard. Washing and sun bleaching give it a dazzling white appearance. The fabric is airy light. It is used in the West Indies for mantles, cravats, collars, cuffs, window curtains—in a word, for every purpose that ordinary lace is used. In making up shawls, veils and the like it is customary to piece two sheets of lace-bark together. Delicate and apparently weak as it is in single mesh, a bit of lace-bark, if rolled into a thin string, will all but resist human strength to break it.

Despite its practical use there is no essential demand for lace-bark. It has been used by the natives for hundreds of years and yet is comparatively little known to this day. A few specimens of lace-bark articles exist in different countries of Europe. These were made hundreds of years ago, yet, although their age is considerable, they are said to be in a good state of preservation.

Business Changes.

A movement is on foot that will cause several plays on the local business checkerboard. It is authoritatively stated that arrangements have been perfected whereby Moses Bros. will soon move into other quarters.

We understand that carpenters are to go to work at once at the task of repairing and making such improvements as Moses Bros. desire in the Fisher Brick. This firm will have the two large rooms just south of the Berman grocery.

When this move is made it is understood that C. A. Gerhard will move his stationary store into the building vacated by Moses Bros. We are also informed that Milton Morgan will move his business into a part of this building. These changes are expected to occur within a month.

Cured of Bright's Disease.

Geo. A. Sherman, Lisbon Red Mills, Lawrence Co. N. Y., writes: "I had kidney disease for many years and had been treated by physicians for twelve years; had taken a well known kidney medicine and other remedies that were recommended but got no relief until I began using Foley's Kidney Cure. The first half bottle relieved me and four bottles have cured me of this terrible disease. Before I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure I had to make water about every fifteen minutes, day and night, and passed a brick-dust substance, and sometimes a slimy substance. I believed I would have died if I had not taken Foley's Kidney Cure." Sold by Graham & Wortham.
