ROAD BUILDING.

The last Oregon legislature provided for a State Road Commission to investigate the feasibility of employing convicts on the public roads. It is understood that the resolution passed authorizing the road commission provided for a certain specified road. Now, if it proves practicable to employ convicts in the building of a certain bit of road, may it not be found practical to establish a permanent state road-building department?

All classes deplore the condition of our highways and everywhere there seems a demand for better roads, but comparatively few of our citizens really take kindly to road work for some reason. Of all things proposed and discussed for the general up-building of this or any state it is doubtful if any single item is of anywhere near the importance that attaches to the road question. Good roads are a good investment for any people. A good, possible thoroughfare facilitates the transportation of the inland products to market—this is a boon to both producer and consumer.

Our criminal class must have bread and meat during their period of sentence, and why not compel them to earn their keep? There is scarcely any field of labor that convicts could be set at that would bring them less in competition with the average laborer than in the building of good and permanent highways for the state. If there is any other field for the employment of convicts where they would be brought less into competition with labor as a whole we should like some one to name it.

The commissioners appointed are: G. W. Jett, of Baker City, president; R. A. Harris, Portland, secretary; W. K. Newell, Dilley; A. B. Cavender, Brownsville, and W. J. Shattuck, of Gresham. It is the duty of this commission to report to the next legislature upon the feasibility of thus employing convicts and the citizens of the state should see, if possible, the report is favorable.

For Deeper Channels.

At present there is considerable agitation regarding a deeper channel, both in the Columbia and Willamette rivers, as far up as Portland, also on the bar of the Columbia. We fully realize what this means for the country at large and sincerely hope that the dreams of many industrious and enthusiastic Portlanders may in a measure come true. The Columbia river and her bar, and a portion of the Willamette are the same to the metropolis that the latter river alone is to Corvallis.

The people of this section, backed by the Benton County Citizens' League, have yelped themselves hoarse in the past in an effort to secure a deeper channel on the Upper Willamette in order that light draught river boats could ply here the year around—but all in vain. Nevertheless, we would like to see what Portlanders plan in the present instance come to pass, as we realize that a fulfillment of these plans would benefit us, although in the past Portland people never would assist the people in the valley in their efforts to open up the Willamette where it winds through the great valley of Oregon.

"With a deep-water channel between Portland and the Pacific Ocean, Oregon and the interior country tributary to the Columbia River will experience a permanent rise in land values millions of dollars more than the cost of river improvement would be," said Tom Richardson, secretary of the Oregon Development

League, recently. Mr. Richardson is familiar with the advantages that obtained for the Middle West with the improvement of deep-water facilities at Galveston, Texas, and says that with deep-water improvements here the same benefits would result.

"Noteworthy in this connection," said Mr. Richardson, "is the fact that the advance in the land values would hold good. The moment there is competition between deep-water harbors, the value of land in the vicinity of and tributary to these harbors advance. If Portland is given a deep-water channel from the Pacific to her docks, competition between big sea-going vessels will be on. Rate competition would immediately ensue between the Columbia River and Puget Sound."

"Less than ten years ago people were burning corn in the Middle Western States and raising more wheat than could be marketed. That was when the only traffic competition was between the lake routes and New Orleans. The deepening of Galveston harbor broke the back of this combination, and two years after Galveston had 25 feet of water the price of wheat raised in Kansas, and in one year the profit on crops was more than $6,200,000, which sum was appropriated by the Federal Government for the improvement of Galveston harbor.

"The benefits to Portland from the improvement of the Columbia river would be indirect, but very material. The point is that competition in freight and shipping rates will have the effect of increasing the value of land all over the productive districts of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and for a distance of 500 or a 1000 miles inland. It is these sections that people will build up and develop. Portland can take care of herself, and Portland interests in this regard do not count. The object is to develop the vast sections of fine territory lying in the interior, and deep-water accommodations will certainly have that effect in this instance, the same as it has in all others."

An Albany Squad.

In certain circles about Corvallis the idea that Albany would have no football squad has prevailed. It seems things are ordered differently in Albany, as the following from Friday's Herald will show:

A squad of college students assembled on the college campus last evening for the first hour of football practice, and great interest was shown in the game and the promised sport. Charles Stewart is the coach, and while he has no heavy material, such as played in the college team last year and the past two or three seasons, he has a promising bunch of players, and hopes to turn out a good team composed entirely of bona fide students to represent Albany college on the gridiron the coming season.

Charles Monteith has been selected as captain of the team and a suitable manager will be chosen soon. Arrangements for games are being made with the Corvallis, Eugene and Salem high schools for games, and also with the H. M. A. and the N. R. A., both of Portland. Those mentioned for positions on the team are: M. Lennan, center; M. Rogoway and Stalnaker, guards; Stevens and R. Stewart, tackle; Wallace, Simpson and Curran, ends; Fortmiller, quarter back; Crews and Schultz, halfbacks; Monteith, fullback.

Cadet Rooster.

Lieut. Quinlan has just completed the task of organizing the military department for the year '05-'06. The plan of organization has been different from those of previous years. In contrast to the former way of assigning the cadets directly to a company, the plan of this year has been to have all men drilled in the "Setting up" exercises before the companies were organized. Satisfactory work having been done along this line, the organization was then perfected and the men assigned to companies. The following is a list of officers and non-commissioned officers:

THE DANGER TO THE CHILD

May be real or the stake may be a harmless one, but there is danger that menaces every child's life if the mother is deficient in womanly health and functional vitality.

Thousands of women have borne their sufferings and kept their troubles to themselves from motives of delicacy and feeble childhood has paid for it. Dr. Pierce's forty years ago, consulted Nature, and found that she had provided remedies in abundance for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments and weaknesses. He found that non-alcoholic, glyceric extracts of Golden Seal root, Blue Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Black Cohosh root and Lady's Slipper root, combined in just the right proportions, gave such surprising results that this compound soon became a standard favorite of his in the treatment of such cases. In a little time the demand for it became so great that he determined to put it up and provide for its general sale so that the multitudes needing it could readily supply themselves.

This is now known all over the civilized world as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and its unparalleled record of hundreds of thousands of cures, in the last forty years, justifies all that can be said of it.

It is non-alcoholic, non-narcotic. It is safe and reliable for any woman, of any age and in any condition, to use.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—only one or two a day will regulate and cleanse and invigorate a foul, bad stomach, torpid liver, or sluggish bowels.

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.
For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Consumptives Made Comfortable.

Incipient consumption is cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, but we do not hold out false hopes to consumptives by claiming that it will cure that dread disease in the advanced stages; but if the lungs are not too far gone Foley's Honey and Tar will effect a cure, as it stops the racking cough and soothes the inflamed air passages giving them a chance to heal, and even the advanced stages it always gives comfort and relief. A. A. Herron, of Finch, Ark., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar is the best preparation for coughs and lung trouble. I know that this has cured consumption in the first stages. Graham & Wortham."
