Multnomah vs. OAC.

What will be the temper of our citizens on their return from Portland tomorrow evening after the big football struggle? It is generally conceded that we will give the club team the hardest battle that they have had this year, but let nobody overlook the fact that Multnomah has a horde of players—good ones, too—to draw from. But OAC has today what is perhaps the best team she ever had and it would not be surprising if she plucked the plum. There will be a special train leave here tomorrow morning at seven o'clock to take football enthusiasts to Portland. The fare for the round trip is so low that a large crowd is assured—$2 is the price of tickets. Portland does not seem over confident to judge from the following:

Now that the decision has been reached that Oregon Agricultural College and Multnomah will play their annual game next Saturday, the football fans are busy trying to pick a winner. The announcement as made in The Telegram last night to the effect that the Corvallis manager would not play the Christmas date was not unexpected, and in many ways was not received with satisfaction as it undoubtedly means a harder game.

Corvallis can never expect to be in better condition than at present. Steckle's men are on edge, whereas, should they have delayed the match two weeks, there would have been plenty of time for the men to have gone stale. Cooper, the Corvallis end, is the only man out of the game and he may yet be able to play. Williams, picked as an all-star halfback, will undoubtedly be in condition and this will enable the Corvallis men to put forth their best efforts.

On the other hand Multnomah certainly would have profited by the additional training that could have been secured and would further have been strengthened by the addition of such men as Chalmers, Koerner, Stott and Fenton of Stanford University. Manager Stimson, of Corvallis, realizes that his prospects are better this coming Saturday. The Farmers are anxious to win and no one will deny that they have good chances of turning the trick.

Steckle has some men that have turned out exceedingly well this year and none more so than Dolan and Walker, who are hailed as among the best tackles, if not the best, in the Northwest.

Multnomah will line up much as the team did against Oregon. Keller will be in shape to play and Overfield will play center. Jordan and Dowling will be the ends; McMillian and Pratt, tackles; Sanders and Burt, guards. In the backfield, there will be Horan, if his leg is in shape, Dudley Clark, the Portland Academy boy, Chauncey Bishop and Frank Lonergan. Dolph and James will be available for the fullback position.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE.

BELLFOUNTAIN.

Mr. Reader has been running his chopper for two days for the accommodation of neighbors who want chop for dairy cows.

There has been three coyotes and one Cougar killed within the last few days. There are some fine varmint dogs kept here.

Misses Bertha Coon and Laura Persinger, who are Monmouth students, spent Thanksgiving with their people at home.

Several OAC students spent a few days at home during Thanksgiving.

Miss Belle Edwards, who is teaching the Mountain View school, came home Tuesday and returned Sunday evening.

John Simpson, of Corvallis has placed a substantial heater in the basement of Simpson Charet at a cost of about $175.

There will be a social at Simpson Chapel Christmas night under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. A large attendance is expected as a good programme will be rendered and refreshments served.

Emil Howard's house presents a much improved appearance since it has been repaired and painted.

The subject for discussion at the next meeting of the Bellfountain Literary Society is "football." Prof. Mack and J. H. Edwards are leaders.

Frank Dinges has gone to Portland with another shipment of live stock.

Mrs. J. H. Edwards has been quite sick for a few days but is now improving.

Plans for enlarging the church building here are being discussed, as the present room hardly accommodates the congregation.

There is a growing interest in a more extensive telephone system.

Coming.

Recent reports of "The Missouri Girl" through the dramatic paper, show that the company is meeting with the same dramatic and financial success as in the past years. The cast is said to be far better than ever before, and the company playing to "standing room only" in nine-tenths of the theatres in which they appear. This company in its entirety will be seen here at an early date.

OAC Will be Strong.

The team that will represent OAC in the battle with old Multnomah next Saturday is without doubt the strongest aggregation ever sent against the clubmen by the farmer college. In their last two games Coach Steckle's men have put up such a splendid exhibition of the game that they have enlisted the admiration of all lovers of this sport. From the game at Seattle nothing but the highest compliments can be seen in the papers of the Northwest. Their work has been of such a superior quality, that so far as the best team is concerned, OAC undoubtedly is without a rival in the Northwest, yet centering on the games won that honor will probably go to Idaho.

Practically the same lineup that played in the last two games will be sent against the winged "M" Cooper, the crack end goal kicker of the team, may be out of the game on account of injuries in the Seattle struggle. Should this be the case, his place will probably be filled by Rose, who held down that end of the line during the first part of the Washington game.

No one but Coach Steckle knows just in what positions the boys will appear in the first of the game. They have been trained to fill every position and probably every man on the team will have a chance to hit the line with the ball.

The last week of training has been most satisfactory. The men are all out every evening to go through a hard practice. Considerable time is spent in bucking the charging machine, then the big fellows line up for signal practice and go through some strenuous drilling. Never in all the past seasons were the men in such splendid condition. They will be speedier and harder line plunges will be made next Saturday than at any previous game this season. It will be a surprise to the supporters of the local team if even the strong Multnomah line can withstand their terrific onslaughts.

Manager Stimson has made preparations to run an excursion to Portland tomorrow and there will be a large number of rooters accompany the team.

DRESS OF THE JUNGLE LADY

Low Caste Siamese Live Like Animals—Never Known to Settle Permanently.

The low-caste Siamese of the jungle have few wants, and live like animals, eating chiefly wild fruits and rice, which they raise in small cleared spots, wherever they happen to temporarily settle, says Outing. Like the Karens, the jungle people of Burma, they are always on the move, and in common with all low-caste Siamese are petty thieves of an incurable propensity. Yet they are obedient—servile to an unpleasant degree for white blood. They manufacture nothing save crudest domestic household necessities and personal ornaments from bamboo. Clothes are of slight consequence. On the jungle edge they go uncovered, men and women, above the waist, the paning reaching within four inches of the knee; but deep in the jungle they are practically naked. Their single implement is a long-bladed, butcher-like knife, used as pathmaker, as weapon (together with a wood spear) and industrially in fashioning out of the ubiquitous bamboo their ornaments, their buckets, their rope, their string, their houses and the food receptacles which take the place of pots and pans and plates. Nearly all of the jungle folk on both sides the Siam-Burma line tattoo the thigh, sometimes from knee to hip, more often from the knee to only six inches above. The design may be a turtle, or the much-dreaded tiger done elaborately, but the one most frequently seen, and the simplest, is a sort of a lace or fringe pattern in the middle of the thigh, or just below the knee, like a garter. The women do not tattoo, believing in beauty unadorned; heaven knows they need adornment.
