Gen. Horace Porter, who found the remains of John Paul Jones, and forwarded them to the United States, will not allow Congress reimburse him for the expense incurred. He appreciates the motive that actuates the members of Congress who are favorable to the plan. Gen. Porter says he regarded the work as a personal undertaking and asks that any amount which Congress may consider due him be added to the proposed appropriation for the crypt in the chapel at Annapolis. This is very nice on the part of Gen. Porter, who has shown himself on many occasions to be a patriotic citizen and a liberal gentleman. The expense was heavy, but fortunately the private resources of Gen. Porter were equal to the outlay. As only very wealthy men can be foreign Ambassadors under the prevailing system, Gen. Porter had means to gratify his historical tastes in the manner that resulted so favorably. Congress can make an appropriation for the crypt in which the remains will repose and this will be in a sense a monument to the service which Gen. Porter has rendered his countrymen.—Ex.

Speaking of Punishment.

Last Saturday, John Fawver, a farmer of Southern Benton, deserted his wife and children, and eloped with 19-year-old Lillie Howard. They floated down the Willamette river past Corvallis in a skiff so far as Salem, the girl attired in men's clothes. At Salem they were apprehended and thither Sheriff Burnett, accompanied by the girl's grief-stricken father, went during the fore part of the week. Fawver was held in Salem under $500 bonds on the charge of adultery and the girl returned home with her father, Orin Howard, of Linn county. Commenting editorially on the matter the Oregonian of Wednesday has the following:

The sheriff of Benton county has overhauled at Salem one John Fawver, who abandoned his wife and four children near Monroe, a few days ago, taking all the family funds and the 19-year-old daughter of a neighboring rancher with him. The father of the deluded girl bore the sheriff company in his quest, with intent to take the folly-stricken daughter back to her home. It was well that the pursuit was successful. Not that the recreant husband and father was worth pursuing, even upon the basis of the probable return to the duty of supporting his wife and children. He has left duty and responsibility too far behind to justify the hope that they will overtake him, even though the sheriff has arrested his flight. But the common sense of decency that he has violated so flagrantly will be appeased somewhat by the infliction of such punishment upon him as the law provides.

As to the deluded young woman, it is charitable to hope that paternal forgiveness will work in her the miracle of reform. The chief objects of solicitude in such a case, however, are the deserted wife and children. If both offenders could by some process be compelled to work ten hours every day and turn over the wages earned to the support of the cruelly wronged family until the children were able to maintain themselves, restitution would in a measure accompany penalty. It is only in an ideal condition of society, however, that penalty and restitution go hand in hand, and such a condition would preclude the possibility in this case by abrogating the first cause. To come down to things practical, how would it do to add the wife-deserter to the list of disinherited creatures for whom the whipping-post has been revived in this state?

GIVES BENTON MENTION.

Splendid Write-up of Our Many Resources.

The Christmas issue of the Pacific Northwest, published in Portland, is at hand. It is one of the neatest and finest of all holiday publications to reach us so far. Benton county is written up in fine style, giving our various resources proper mention and the article is profusely illustrated with half-tones of W. B. Johnson and John F. Allen, president and secretary of the Benton County Citizens' League, also of our college buildings, court house, and numerous public buildings and private residences throughout Corvallis and the county. The accompanying write-up is a small portion of the matter appearing in the Pacific Northwest, and as dairying is destined to become one of our great industries in the future, we reprint the following:

Benton county offers exceptional advantages to the dairyman. The mild winter weather makes it unnecessary for us to use such quantities of food as is used in colder climates to keep up the heat of the animal's body. The cool days and nights and the comparative absence of the flies, mosquitoes and other pests enable the cow to expend her energies naturally in her business of producing milk rather than in an unnatural fight for existence against a swarm of insects and adverse weather conditions.

The warm, moist climate insures an abundance of nutritious pasture from early spring till late fall. The cultivated land furnishes immense crops of leguminous plants, clover, vetch, and peas for silage. These plants, while enriching the soil by their appropriation of atmospheric nitrogen, also furnish a food stuff rich in the essentials of milk production. Thus cheap and abundant food is assured the year round.

The water supply could hardly be improved upon. In the foothills there is an abundance of purest mountain water supplied by small streams and springs, and on the lowlands excellent well water is secured anywhere at a depth of from 20 to 40 feet.

Last year there were established in the western part of the state 20 new butter and cheese factories. This fact shows that the dairying industry is now on a firm basis. Corvallis has an excellent creamery and butter factory now receiving about 6000 pounds of milk daily.

Farmers have not given dairying the attention it deserves and many of the established factories have not received the support they should. The fault in such cases is all with the land owners and not with the cows, soil, climate, or market conditions. Last year the Corvallis creamery paid an average price for the year of 22 cents for butter fat and if the supply had been a dozen times as large it could not have met the demand.

There are in the country many herds of only fairly graded cows which produce annually over 250 pounds of butter to a cow, while some exceptional milkers run up to 300 pounds and more. From this data it will readily appear that a single cow will produce from $50 to $75 according to grade and care.

The quality of the milk is exceptionally high. Tests at the Corvallis creamery for last year show an average of a little less than 4 per cent of butter fat for all milk received. The excellence of the milk, however, rests not alone in the quality of the better butter fat contained, but

No Case of Pneumonia on Record.

We do not know of a single instance where a cough or cold resulted in pneumonia or consumption when Foley's Honey and Tar had been taken. It cures coughs and colds perfectly, so do not take chances on some unknown preparation which may contain opiates, which cause constipation, a condition that retards recovery from a cold. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered. Sold by Graham & Wells.
