Misses Cleo and Zeta Johnson arrived home Friday evening from a New Year's visit to relatives at Scio. They were accompanied home by their grandfather, Mr. Young, who will remain for a visit.

The many friends of Sam T. Thurston will be pained to learn that his health has not improved since he arrived in Phoenix, Arizona, a few weeks ago and that it is feared he will not recover.

J. C. Lowe who was called to Oklahoma on Christmas day by the serious illness of his mother, reached the bedside the evening before death claimed the sufferer. Mr. Lowe is expected to return to Corvallis about the 20th. He has the sympathy of all in his sorrow.

The United Artisans installed officers at their lodge hall Thursday evening with the following result: P. M., H. H. Cronise; M., T. Brien; sup't, Mrs. Frank Cole; insp, Mrs. Scott King; sec'y Miss Eva Starr; treas, Levi Wooster; Sr. con., Mrs. R. C. Wills; M. C., Guy Clark; Jr. con., Mrs. T. Brien; field commanders, Scott King and Mrs. Tillie Reed.

The Alsea stage driver arrived in Corvallis Thursday with a 1600-pound load and a six horse team, and even then he had a desperate time in getting over the mountain road. The mud is reported as something frightful, and as soon as the water sinks and the mud thickens and settles somewhat it will be impossible to haul a load over the road.

Samuel Moore is going into the saw mill business on a large scale. He has purchased 200 acres of land of Mike Legrande, west of Corvallis, and in addition has leased 400 acres of P. A. Kline for a term of years. Mr. Moore has purchased a portable saw mill of Lindsey Bros. of Woodburn, and as soon as it arrives he will take it to the scene of action west of Corvallis.

An orchardist who has recently been traveling through the Willamette Valley, states that in his opinion the great increase of interest now shown in fruit growing in the Willamette Valley and the general disposition to clean up and care for orchards will result in making the fruit crop of the Willamette Valley within a few years worth more than the whole fruit crop of the state is worth at the present time.

New Year's day, just after the close of the football game between the "Corvallis Juniors" and the Brownsville team, a couple of youths circulated a paper among business men on Main street, stating that the OAC boys had lost money on the game and were trying to "make good". Some kind hearted parties "dug up" before they discovered that the names on the list had been forged and that the whole thing was a bold fake. It is not known how much the youths secured. It is presumed they came from Brownsville as they were strangers here.

Friday evening from a trip to California.

The city of Independence is in darkness now, according to the Enterprise. No street lighting of any sort is in use, because of a disagreement between the city council and the Willamette Valley company.

Mrs. M. S. Bush gave an "at home" Friday to about 50 of her friends. The rooms were very prettily decorated with ivy and fern and light refreshments were served. The afternoon was a very pleasant one for all.

Miss Cecil Rowland gave a very enjoyable party at her home Friday evening to about 15 young friends. Games and refreshments, together with a social time generally made the hours pass very pleasantly and a good time is reported.

Cathey & Haynes, the sign painters, were obliged to move their office Friday, on account of the cave in of the bank at the O. R. & N. dock near which they were located. They have moved to North Main street, near the Strong saw mill.

It is understood that Carl Porter, the genial employe in the Hammel meat market, has tendered his resignation and will engage in farming operations with his brother-in-law, John Whiteaker, on the Whiteaker farm near Corvallis. Carl has many friends who wish him success.

On account of the high water which resulted Friday and Saturday from the continued downpour of rain, travel from the south was shut off, Saturday, as Mary's river was too high to allow of passengers crossing. The Willamette was out of its banks on the East side and was 30 feet above low water mark Saturday morning.

The contest in which Miss Aida Metcalf and Miss Anna French participated to secure a free trip to the Jamestown Exposition as representative from Benton county, closed the night of December 31st. Miss Metcalf won by a majority of 121, her total number of votes being 335 against Miss French's 214. The winners, one farmer's daughter from each county in the state, will be taken to the Exposition May 1st by Philip Bates, editor of the Pacific Northwest, for whose paper the young ladies secured subscriptions during the contest. Both of the Corvallis girls made a fine showing and did good work, and the most friendly spirit was manifested between them during the race.

Eugene bids fair to have paved streets within the next year. The City Council has adopted a resolution that a total of 41 blocks be paved as soon as necessary preliminaries can be arranged. The city attorney was instructed to prepare the ordinances under which the pavements will be laid, and the street committee was instructed to correspond with the city officials of Portland and other Northwest cities to ascertain the cost of pavement and the best material to be used, says a dispatch in the Telegram. The streets to be paved embrace the entire business district of the city, and Eleventh street is the thoroughfare leading to the university and on which the finest residences are built.

The postoffice people do not attempt to state just when they will move into the new building. Owing to the time required in putting the inside finishing touches to any building, and to the further fact of the trouble that has been on for several days with delayed mails, it seems impossible to say just when the change in location will occur. Earnest Miller is to occupy a position in the new postoffice room, with his telegraph office, and in addition will operate a news stand. He is now getting the place in fix to move in.

Miss Bertha Watrous has arrived to re-enter OAC.

The city of Philomath has levied a special city tax of 12 mills; the city of Albany, 6 mills and the city of Corvallis, 7 mills.

Special road tax levies have been approved by the Benton county court in the following districts, in the amounts given: District number 2, 5 mills; number, 12 five mills; 13, ten; number 15, four; number 16, two; eighteen, five; 22, seven; 25, three.

The will of the late John Fisher has been filed for probate at the clerk's office. The instrument was executed November 13-1906, and names Mrs. Lena C. Rayburn as executrix, to serve without bonds. It states that the estimated value of the real property is $6,500, and of the personal property $8000. William Knotts, Richard Kiger and Gus Harding have been named as appraisers.

A walk of a couple of blocks almost any morning will convince any thinking person that Newberg ought to pass an ordinance against spitting on the sidewalks and enforce it to the letter. Think of a man unloading the contents of a catarrhal throat on the walk, not only for every passer-by to be forced to see, but for women to brush their skirts over. We are aware that the scripture text reads "Let him that is filthy be filthy still," but we suggest that those who insist on fulfilling the text should take to the woods.—Newberg Graphic.

When the turpentine and alcohol plant, soon to be built on the bank of the Willamette opposite the city, begins operations, cheap fuel in St. Johns will disappear. Although it does not come from headquarters, we have heard it said that the new plant has contracted for and will use all the refuse lumber of the mills, and even the sawdust. This means that our people will have to depend on the ranchers bringing in cord wood from the hills across the river, or else use coal from the mines in Wyoming.—St. Johns Review.

A story of the high water that prevailed the last of the week, is related about town. According to report two young men, one of whom is said to be named Montgomery, were engaged in cutting wood on Kiger island, and they lived in a "shack" nearby. Friday night they retired as usual but in the morning the water was a foot deep under the bed having flooded the place during the night. The young men hastily arose, put their cook stove up on their table and managed to get some breakfast, after which they clambered to the roof of their shanty and awaited an opportunity to get out. The day was bitterly cold and they were drenched to the skin, but when a friend remembered them and went in a boat to their rescue he found the boys almost frozen but whistling bravely as they sat on the roof. The water had almost reached the eaves of the house when they left their uncomfortable perch.

The frame of the A. J. Johnson building is now going up, and the scene is a busy one from early morning until late in the evening. The cold weather of the past few days has made outside work rather unpleasant, but the laboring man has no choice in matters of this sort.
