New Departure.

The Superintendent of the United States Military Academy recommended to the Secretary of War that a committee of three, consisting of an engineer, a landscape gardener, and a forester, be appointed to formulate a general plan for the improvement and systematic management of the lands of the reservation, in keeping with the general improvement provided for by Congressional appropriation.

The preliminary report made by an agent of the Forest Service showed that a large part of the wooded area is and always will be of greater value for the systematic production of wood crops than for any other purpose, and that a plan of conservative management based upon the principles of practical forestry could be carried out without detriment to the value of the reservation from the standpoint of landscape architecture or engineering. Therefore the report recommended that a working plan or a detailed scheme of management be prepared by the Service.

The Superintendent of the Military Academy then requested the Service to make such a plan, and, in compliance with this request, the Forest Service entrusted the work to a forest assistant and the members of the senior class of the Yale Forest School, who served as volunteer assistants for two months during the spring of 1903.

A Christmas Present.

The following dispatch sent out from Washington, D. C., December 26, shows the kind of Christmas present one man got:

As a reward for defending the postoffice at Emma, N. C., four years ago, against four burglars, President Roosevelt has waived the civil service regulations upon the recommendation of Postmaster General Cortelyou and S. H. Alexander's Christmas gift was a promotion from a laborer to a clerkship in the department. Not only has the brave North Carolinian been promoted, but to accentuate the honor, an official statement was issued today which gives a full account of the deed.

The attempted robbery took place on the night of February 6, 1901. All the burglars were arrested, two of them, together with two companions, after the trial, were given the extreme penalty of the law, which, for the offense committed in North Carolina, is death. Afterwards the sentence was commuted in the case of two of the burglars to life imprisonment. The other two were hanged February 26, 1902. Alexander was shot in the abdomen in his fight with the men.

Teach Boys a Trade.

The present educational systems were attacked by Rev. E. A. Paddock, president of the Industrial Institute, in an address delivered before the cooperative class at the First Congregational church, Chicago, on Sunday. The speaker declared the average college graduate is a complete failure when called upon to make his living by manual labor, and the whole educational system tends to create a feeling of caste. He urged as a remedy that students be required to devote at least half of the day to learning a trade.

"I believe that the social disorders which are prevalent in this country today arise from the fact that our system of education is all wrong," he said. "We are training one faculty only and sacrificing the others." The remedy is to be found in a half-time school, where the student will be kept half a day at his books and taught some trade during the other half. The half-time school system would arouse a wholesome feeling of respect for fellow workers and would tend to break down feeling of caste.

"Many prominent employers have told me the poorest recommendation a young man can bring them is his college diploma. The fault lies in the fact that too much attention is paid to theory, while practical work, the thing most needed in the battle with the world, is almost entirely overlooked. Give the boy an education, but give him also the means of applying that education."

Railroad Lands for Lease.

Lands of the Oregon and California Railroad Company, in Oregon, will be leased for the year 1906, subject to sale. Owners of farms and ranches adjoining railroad lands should file their applications not later than February 1, 1906, after which date applications from others will also be considered.

How to Avoid Pneumonia.

We have never heard of a single instance of a cold resulting in pneumonia or other lung trouble when Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken. It not only stops the cough, but heals and strengthens the lungs. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered. Dr. C. J. Bishop, of Agnew, Mich., writes: "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar in three very severe cases of pneumonia with good results in every case." Sold by Graham & Wortham.

Prizes for Essays.

John Barrett, United States Minister to Columbia, has offered prizes of $100, $75 and $50 for which students in any American college, university or technical school may compete during the academic year of 1905-06. The papers, typewritten, are not to exceed 10,000 words in length, and must be sent by September 1, 1906, to the President of Columbia College, New York. There are five political and economic subjects to choose from and five historical. The political subjects deal with the Monroe doctrine, the Panama canal, possibilities of trade with South America, the present progress of South America and the practicability of the Pan-American Railway. The historical subjects include reviews of the influences and conditions that worked for the independence and establishment of the South American republics also those of Central America and Mexican, of the character and achievements of Bolivar and San Martin, also of the conditions influencing the overthrow of the empire and the establishment of the republic of Brazil.

On learning of the above S. L. Kline attended chapel at OAC yesterday morning and the information was given out to the student body. At this time Mr. Kline went on record to the effect that should any OAC student compete for a prize as above mentioned and secure one he would add $25 on his own account. This is certainly an offer worth while and should any OAC student win a prize we know of nothing that would be a bigger card for our college.

Coaches the Lyceumites.

Among his other duties and occupations, Mr. Elias Day, the characterist who will appear in this city next Friday, January 12, coaches the lyceum—at least such members of it as are fortunate enough to find a vacancy in his summer school. For two months, May and June, he drills lecturers in the art of lecturing, elocutionists in the art of elocuting, impersonators in impersonating and all the other platform speakers each in his line.

Swipes.

The man who invented the Waterbury watch is at last wound up. He made a lot of trouble during his life.

The Chinese have a proverb that "whoever borrows to build, builds to sell." In this country the sell is at a profit.

Somebody has said that Banquo would have made a poor specimen of a Yankee because he had no "speculation in his eye."

The newspapers do not agree as to the age of William R. Hearst, but there is no question as to his anxiety to reach his majority.

Hetty Green says that if Dr. Oster seriously means that 63 years is the deadline of activity, he doesn't know what he is talking about.

It is said that there is more available water power in the State of Maine than in any other portion of the earth's surface of equal extent.

A dancer said to a Spartan, "You cannot stand so long on one leg as I can." "Perhaps not," said the Spartan, "but any goose can."

"We want more snap and life in Boston," remarks Mayor-elect Fitzgerald. Some of the hotel keepers are not complaining of a lack of snap.

Admiral Bob Evans claims for his sailors that when they are ashore they behave far better than college students. "That's easy," remarks the Mexican Herald.

Win Both Games.

If the pace set by the OAC basket ball team in the games played Friday and Saturday evenings continue championship, honors bid fair to settle in our midst. Captain Oates with his quartette of assistants departed on the afternoon train for the Normal last Friday. About 9 o'clock "Dad" Trine received a message from acting manager Paul, that the boys had won by the score 23-16.

From all reports the game was a whirlwind from beginning to end. Our boys were at a great disadvantage, having practiced in a large, free hall and then playing in the small hall at Monmouth. This, to a large extent, accounts for the comparatively close score. Had the game been played on OAC's field a much larger score would undoubtedly Topics for the Week.

Following are topics for the "Week of Prayer" now being held in this city:

Monday, Jan. 8—Believers Purified and Quickened.

Tuesday, Jan. 9—The Church Wholly Renewed in the Love and Life of Christ.

Wednesday, Jan. 10—The Unsaved Aroused to Seek Salvation.

Thursday, Jan. 11—Society Evangelized.

Friday, Jan. 12—Missions Reinforced.

Saturday, Jan. 13—All Mankind Redeemed, Restored.

Select Question.

The question has been selected for the debate between OAC and W. U. The Willamette speakers have taken the affirmative of the question submitted by the local team. The question to be discussed is, "Resolved, That the Federal Immigration Laws should be so constructed as to give every alien an equal chance for entrance into the United States."

The local team is composed of leaders of three strong society teams of last season and will no doubt put up a good defense against the eloquent Methodist brethren. Arrangements have not been completed, but the debate will probably be held in Salem sometime during February.

Additional Local.

This is the week set apart by the Evangelical Alliance of the United States, as the "Week of Prayer." Union meetings of the local churches, Congregational, Presbyterian and Baptist, will be held during the week Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church; Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings the meetings will be held in the Baptist church. So elsewhere in this paper the topics for these meetings.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. installed officers Saturday night in their hall. The ceremony of installation was beautifully conducted by Mrs. Maddana Thorp, assisted by Mrs. Agnes Young, and a banquet was the concluding feature. Officers of the G. A. R. are as follows: C. W. G. Lane; Sr. Vice, S. H. Horton; Jr. Vice, Wm. Bullis; Q. M., M. L. Hubler; Officer Day, J. C. Young; Adj. Wm. Deidrich; Officer Guard, Henry Gerber; Q. M. S., Levi Oren; Surgeon, J. W. Woods; Chaplain, Wm. Whitesides; Serg. Maj., Mr. Slack. W. C. R. officers: Pres. Mrs. Sarah Cronk; S. V., Melinda Robinson; J. V., Elizabeth Hubler; Oren. Sec., Emily Henkle; Con. Agnes Young; Guard, Frankie Smith; 1st B. B., Vista Kerr; 2nd B. B., Tillie Reed; 3rd, Sarah Elgin; 4th, Abbie Stone; Asst. Guard, Ada Farmer; Asst. Con., Mary Wilkins; Pat. Inst., Maudana C. Thorp; Press Corres., Emma T. Kline; Musician, Miss Hubler.

As Expressed by His Secretary Under His Signature, They Were to Be Wondered At.

"I have been requested," said the great captain of industry, addressing his third assistant secretary, according to the Chicago Record-Herald, "to write a magazine article on how to become a magnate. I want you to get up something that will reflect credit on me and make my friends wonder at my literary style."

Three days later the great man read the article to which his name was signed, and again addressing his third assistant secretary said: "This is excellent. My reasoning is perfectly clear. The young man who can't after reading this article of mine start right out and become a captain of industry is a hopeless case, and don't deserve success. My logic can't be beat, my literary style is beautiful; I have free and easy command of a whole lot of fine, big-sounding words that I don't know the meaning of, and, taking it altogether, I'm mighty proud of my ability as a writer."

"In fact, I've never read a better article than this one of mine on how to get to the front. The qualifications needed; how to secure the best returns for the efforts expended; where, when and how to begin; all these things are so clearly set forth that I don't see how anyone who can read them without understanding why I have clum to the top."

"That's a mighty good point you make there about the importance of asking for what's wanted, too. That's always been one of my principles. Things don't come to people in this world. You've got to reach for them, and if you can't see what you want, you've got to ask somebody to pass it along. I'd be mighty sorry if you'd forgot to put that in. Everybody who knows me will at once recognize them as my sentiments."

"What! Raise your salary? Young man, do you know $18 a week is a whole lot more than you're worth? You ought to get down on your knees to me every day and thank me for keeping you here. But I'm a liberal-minded man, and I'll tell you what I'll do. I'm to get $350 for this article, and I'll give you $20 of it as a present, just to convince you that I'm generous to a fault."

"I'm glad you put in that passage about honesty being needed by a man who's trying to succeed. There's no use of anybody trying to win without it."

have been made by the local team. However, the boys do not wish to detract any credit from the pedagogues. They have nothing but words of praise for their opponents and all have the highest compliments for the manner in which they were entertained. The best of feeling prevailed and the officials, Wilkins, OAC, Thorp, O. S. N. S., gave entire satisfaction. After the game the boys were given a reception by the Normal students. The OAC line up was as follows: Swan and Reid, forwards; Cate, (capt.) center; Rooper and Bilyeu, guards.

The following evening the OAC girl basket team won its initial game over the Salem girls by the score of 8-2. Being the first game of season the game showed slow playing and lack of team work, compared with the ladies' team of last year. However, with a few weeks of practice the girls will be in first-class condition and able to put up a good exhibition of the game. The lineup was: F., Gallatly, Logan; C., Moore; G., Linville, Holgate.

West Side Men Killed.

Lafayette, Ore., Jan. 4.—Henry Martin and Conrad Heineman, section hands on the Southern Pacific, living here, were killed this morning about 2 o'clock while returning from work at the "sink" at Lathlin's Gap, near North Yamhill.

The crew of eight section men was on a car, and owing to the dense fog prevailing at that time and a short curve in the track, did not notice the unexpected approach of an extra freight train, which was carrying materials to the break in the line. Six of the men managed to get off the handcar in time, but apparently Martin and Heineman had not been warned in time. Two other men were slightly injured.

Martin was thrown to one side by the engine. He lived for sometime afterward, but died before the train had reached Carlton as it brought them back. Heineman was instantly killed. He was caught between the handcar and the pilot of the engine and his body was badly bruised and his legs broken in two places.

Both bodies were brought to Carlton and held pending an investigation, should one be necessary. Martin was an elderly man, an Odd Fellow and married. Heineman was younger and single.

No blame is attached here to the crew of the freight train. The handcar carried no lights, but it is doubtful, owing to the sharp curve in the place where the accident occurred, whether lights would have prevented the fatality.

A True Artist.

The "Lyceumite," a magazine of the lyceum, recently published this criticism of the work of Elias Day, the "characterist":

"When first I heard of Day, with makeup and dress suit, it seemed to me a little 'far-fetched'—incongruous. In other hands, it might still be 'stretching a point.' But not so with Day. His art shines through it all so vividly, yet so sweetly, that the make-up enhances—rounds out—the picture. It never, for a moment detracts. Just as fine illustrations intensify the works of an author, and make them mean more to the reader, so Mr. Day's make-up intensifies the character he is portraying, and brings it closer to the imagination of the listener. His make-ups are not done in fun; they are done in art."
