dlers of hardware, stoves, etc., at $5.00 per annum.

The road poll tax was fixed at $3, to be collected in cash.

The county clerk was ordered to draw warrants in favor of T. H. Wellsher for $30, for a roadway near Monroe.

The court ordered the clerk to draw warrants for damages in the road known as the Frazier-Bicknell road.

The boundary was changed in road district No. 20 to take in the farm of C. A. Hopson. It was taken from district No. 19.

The tax levy for Benton for 1905 was also made by the court, as follows: State, 3.2; county, 5.5; school, 3.7; county road, 2 mills; public libraries one-tenth mill. Total, 14.5. Last year the total was 15.2. The tax roll is a quarter million less than last year.

Memories of Rose Eyttinge.

Miss Rose Eyttinge, who is to give a dramatic reading at the Opera House on Friday night of next week, is the author of a book which has but recently appeared. In the course of a two column notice of the publication, The Boston Herald says: "A first place among readable books must be given this chatty volume, notable on every page for its human interest."

The Boston Courier says: "In this little book, the authoress has gathered a wealth of anecdote, and in it she throws many new lights upon relationship, little understood before. The book is of interest not only to the dramatic profession and to the student of the American drama, but as well to the general reader, who would have an interesting sidelight upon the history, taste, feeling and personality of a most interesting side of the American life. Rose Eyttinge was in the hey-day of her popularity during the Golden Age of the American Drama. She was the associate and personal friend of Edwin Booth, J. W. and Lester Wallack, E. L. Davenport and Austin Daly, and played with nearly all the greater lights of that interesting period. [The memories of Rose Eyttinge. An Actress' Autobiography. New York. Frederick A. Four Hundred Babies.

St. Vincent's Infant Asylum, Chicago, shelters homeless waifs awaiting adoption, and there are nearly 400 babies there. Sister Julia writes: "I cannot say too much in praise of Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough." Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and insist on having it, as it is a safe remedy and certain in results. Refuse substitutes. Sold by Graham & Wortham.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE.

BEAVER CREEK.

Mr. and Mrs. Gove and Henry Starr were Corvallis visitors one day last week.

Ben Ireland visited relatives in Corvallis a few days last week.

Martin Butler paid his homestead on Bald Mountain a hurried visit last Saturday.

J. S. Ireland is at present making boards. He contemplates building a stock barn.

Public school began last Monday for a term of two months with Prof. G. A. Paterson at the helm.

Henry Starr left Monday for a few days' visit with his brother, who lives in the Lake Creek country.

Mr. Winters boasts of some exceedingly early garden. He says he has radishes and lettuce large enough for table use. These vegetables have grown out in the open all winter.

How to Avoid Pneumonia.

We have never heard of a single instance of a cold resulting in pneumonia or other lung trouble when Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken. It not only stops the cough, but heats and strengthens the lungs. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered. Dr. C. J. Bishop, of Agnew, Mich., writes: "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar in three very severe cases of pneumonia with good results in every case." Sold by Graham & Wortham.

shall be paid by said A. Welch, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to said City at the close of each calendar year. The failure to pay which shall work a forfeiture of this franchise.

Section 12. In consideration of the rights herein granted the City of Corvallis shall have the right to suspend upon the poles or other fixtures placed by the person or corporation enjoying this franchise any or all wires which may be required for fire alarm or police telephone service.

Section 13. The rights, privileges and franchise herein granted shall continue and be in force for the period of thirty years from the date of the passage of this ordinance and the approval by the Mayor of said City.

Section 14. Anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding, said A. Welch, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, shall not have, or be deemed to have, the right, franchise or privilege under or by virtue of this ordinance or any of its provisions of selling or otherwise disposing of or furnishing electric light to the inhabitants of, or any person or corporation within said City of Corvallis, or of maintaining within said City a plant for that purpose prior to the 28th day of November 1913.

Section 15. Notice of the assignment of this franchise giving the correct name of the person or corporation to whom the same may be assigned shall be given in writing to the Police Judge of said City of Corvallis, before such assignee shall take or have any rights hereunder or under assignment, and any notice provided for herein to be given to the person or corporation enjoying this franchise shall be sufficient if given to the person or corporation appearing from the records of said city to be the person holding or enjoying this franchise or to the person in charge of such local plant.

Section 16. Within thirty days after this ordinance is approved by the Mayor of said city or otherwise goes into effect the said A. Welch shall file with the police judge of said city written notice of his acceptance thereof, and unless such written acceptance is filed no rights or privileges shall be taken or deemed to be granted hereunder.

Additional Local.

A. C. Miller returned to his Kings Valley home yesterday. Recently he was in Salem and secured a contract whereby he is to furnish C. K. Spaulding a million and a half feet of logs. Mr. Miller recently purchased a logging engine and complete outfit of L. G. Price.

JAP EXHIBIT AT ST. LOUIS.

Shows That the Mikado's Empire Has Made Wonderful Strides in Recent Years.

There can be no question that the most spectacular and most significant exhibit at St. Louis is that of Japan, writes Walter Wellman, in Success. It is the handiwork of a new nation, a marvelous one at that, which the people here have spread before them. At Chicago the Japanese appeared as interesting and picturesque makers of toys and knickknacks and articles of virtu of characteristic form but limited range—a sort of half-developed, peculiar people, with a hazy past not far removed from actual savagery and with an uncertain future. At St. Louis they appear as one of the first nations of the world. The greatest world-event of the last ten years is the rise of Japan, and the Japanese have taken good care that their attainment of manhood's estate shall be duly and fully celebrated in this exposition cosmos. To best realize what Japan is, to-day, one need not go to Port Arthur nor to the plains of Manchuria. It may be taken for granted that the little brown people have startled the world with their military prowess, with their unprecedented combination in one national character of the most thorough preparation and prevision, the highest type of strategy, the most fanatical bravery, and the most abundant caution—the travesty which assaults desperately with torpedo boats and charges savagely with battalions, and the caution which never risks a battleship near the big guns of a foe. Finer than Japan in war is Japan in peace.

California Real Estate.

The value of real estate in California is officially estimated to be worth $82,104,539, the improvements on real estate $316,208,123, the value of personal property $230,623,282, the money and solvent credits, $42,906,248, and the total value of property as returned by auditors is $1,420,842,155, exclusive of the railroads, which are assessed at $69,669,566 by the state board of equalization.

BOOK GLUTTONY NOW A FAD

Lord Rosebery Elucidates on Wise Reading and the Sin of Borrowing Books.

In a speech made at the opening of a new Carnegie library in London Lord Rosebery said: Knowledge is power, but that does not necessarily mean book knowledge. Book knowledge is only a part of the knowledge that constitutes power. Books are excellent things; it would be high treason to deny that, coming here to open a free library; but a glutton of books is just as bad as a surfeit of anything else, and there are a great many excellent people in this world who spend all their days in reading and who are of no use to themselves or to anybody else.

The fact is that an appetite for reading without digesting is as unwholesome as any other form of gluttony. The man of vigorous life among men would beat the man of books always and at everything in this world. Libraries, however, give them the tools with which they can work out their own salvation.

Mr. Gladstone, by the aid of immense industry, was perhaps the only man I have ever known who was able to adjust the balance between his life of study and his life of action satisfactorily to himself and to others.

But books can also be an end in themselves. The man with a happy taste for books can come in, tired and soured though he may be, and fall into the arms of some great author who would raise him from the ground and take him into a new heaven and a new earth, where he would forget his bruises and rest his limbs and return to the world a fresh and happy man.

No limitation of means can in these days excuse anybody from not buying books, and we must distinguish between books to be read and books to be bought. There are two further classes of books—the books that are borrowed from friends and returned and the books that are borrowed and not returned. The non-returning of books has ended more friendships and terminated more affections than any other cause of which I am cognizant. The man who borrows one volume out of a set of volumes and never returns it is a man who should be treated like vermin—trapped or shot at sight, or any other of the punishments which might be extended to the lowest and vilest of mankind. (Loud laughter.)

TYPICAL SOUTHERN HOUSE

Either a Rambling Bungalow or Modern Frame Structure, Declares This Writer.

Externally the typical southern house of the present is either a rambling bungalow like Witchwood—one of the most attractive places near Asheville—an Italianesque structure with white columns, a reproduction in part of some old antebellum mansions, for the like of which the south was famous—or a modern frame structure quite architectural and compact, with leaded windows, half-timber borders, and an open terrace built upon a foundation of gray stone with coping of the same, or modifications of these three ideas.

In its interior arrangement, says a writer in the House Beautiful, the southern residence has always been called upon to meet not only the demands of convenience and comfort, but also those of hospitality and entertainment as well, for the southerner is decidedly a social being, given to entertainment in all its forms. This characteristic was not only gratified, but actually fostered by the big rooms of the white-columned houses of the old south.

Soon after the war the popularization of the sliding door made it possible for small rooms to perform the functions of large ones on occasions, and for a while the southern builder cut his house up after the manner of northern brother, though not quite in the same restricted proportions. That phase may now be said to have passed, and general taste in the south is once more in favor of spacious chambers. So genuine is this preference, that even in small houses the space usually divided between two rooms is now given to one. Usually the room thus formed is a long one, a sort of salon.

Cured Lumbago.

A. B. Carnon, Chicago, writes March 4, 1903, "Having been troubled with Lumbago, at different times and tried one physician after another, then different ointments and liniments, gave it up altogether. So I tried once more, and got a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment, which gave me almost instant relief. I can cheerfully recommend it, and will add my name to your list of sufferers." Sold by Graham & Wortham.

Strikes in Russia.

When strikes occur there is no delay in dealing with them. Troops are mobilized at once. The printers in Moscow, for example, struck last autumn. The strikers marched in procession along a few streets, clamoring for shorter hours. They complained that they had been compelled to work overtime and that no compensation had been given for the extra labor. Gen. Treper, chief of police, issued a notice that any man refusing to return to work would be excluded forever from Moscow. This stopped the movement. Such notices have stopped similar movements elsewhere.—World's Work.

Rev. Caristo P. B. Martin, L. L. D.

Of Waverly, Texas, writes: "Of a morning when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quantity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is all over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a remedy for throat or lung trouble. Sold by Graham & Wortham."
