RIGHT PARTISANSHIP.

The evidence of the utter insincerity of the leading democrats in congress who have been vehemently declaring that they stand with the President gains strength every day. Towne, representative from New York, made a set speech in the House of Representatives, a few days ago, in which he most bitterly assailed the President.

Now, in all candor, why are these assaults, first in the senate, now in the house, made upon Roosevelt? Has he changed front on any question? Has he flunked, turned heel and run from the field in any contest? Not for a minute. When he tired of waiting for the railway rate bill to pass the senate while the democrats played politics, he brought the members of his own party into line and the bill was passed, and passed, too, if we might believe the statement of democratic senators, with just the provisions it would have contained had democratic votes been necessary to its passage. Of course the democratic leaders have been angered at the President. He broke in on their game, scattered their cards, overturned their tables and gave the game to his own party.

Has the President changed front? Are not the people, the American people, standing with him? Is it not true that the opposition to the President is made by the great trusts, corporations, corporation-controlled senators and the leaders of the democratic party?

But the people stand with the President. Republicans do so because he is a faithful exponent of republican doctrines. Democrats do so because they accept and believe in those doctrines and their own party gives them no leader who is an earnest, safe exponent of them. Denouncing Trusts, and Corporations and Plutocracy, the democratic leaders selected a candidate for the presidency who was the personification of all these. They failed to deceive all democrats. Thousands of them voted for Roosevelt because he was a safe exponent of things they believed and Parker was not.

The people and the President are at one today. The leaders of the democratic party, the party press, and the self-seekers of the party, have, until lately, declared their stand with the President. Now, to stand with him is partisanship, and they are crying for non-partisanship. No republicans and not nearly all democrats are deceived by this. Partisanship of the democratic sort is not what they desire. They still believe in and accept the sort the President stands for.

To advance the right, on any line of human action men must be partisans. The Founder of Christianity said, "Whoever is not for me is against me." Republicans are for republican principles and policies and are not ashamed to be known as republican partisans. Men who hold these principles have been named for office, from governor down. They are receiving the earnest support of all republicans and will continue to receive it until the polls close June 4th and the whole country is informed that Oregon really is a republican state and that Benton county, without a break in the ticket, is listed with the republican counties of the state—which is her proper place.

A WISE RESOLVE.

In our last issue we published a letter from an Alsea correspondent that states a fact which republicans should bear in mind. Broadly stated it is this: Actuated by non-partisan sentiments, republicans have contributed to the aid and support of the most selfish, offensive and contemptible partisanship.

It is selfish in that it cares little or nothing for the interests of the whole people—the taxpayers of the county—if only it may advance its own self-interest. It is offensive to those citizens, both republicans and democrats who honestly deplore and deprecate petty partisanship. It is contemptible as all selfish and petty things are in the estimation of really liberal minded men.

That republicans are largely responsible for this condition is quite apparent. This is a republican county. Not one democrat can be elected to office in the county except by the aid of republican votes. Yet our county judge, sheriff, clerk and treasurer are democrats and we have the sort of partisanship our correspondent describes.

If all those offices were filled by republicans, partisanship might not be wholly obliterated, but we are absolutely sure it would be minimized and would cease to be selfish and contemptible.

Possibly if the identical county offices were kept in the hands of the same men for periods of six to ten years we might witness a return of such partisanship, but republicans believe in rotation in office, so it could not become an incident of republican administration.

The forest complained that it had magnanimously furnished the axe with a helve, upon which the axe started to destroy the forest. Republicans, in their support of democrats, have been just as silly and should expect to see democratic partisanship "flourish as a green bay tree."

But the evidences are constantly accumulating that republicans see the folly of carrying non-partisan sentiments to the polls. They will be earnest republican partisans until the polls are closed, and non-partisan if the occasion arises afterward. It will not arise for every county office will be in the hands of a republican. Our Alsea friend, and all who have borne him company, will no longer turn the democratic grindstone.

VOTE IT STRAIGHT.

The whole republican ticket—vote it straight. It's a rattling good ticket of able and honorable men, nominated by the republicans at the primaries April 20 and will be ratified by ballot June 4. Every republican in Benton county had a voice in nominating the candidates, or could have had if he didn't, and for this reason is duty bound to stand by the ticket from first to last. Let every republican vote his ticket straight and he will elect every man on it.

Is there any reason why it should not be voted straight? Compare the candidates, man for man, of the republican and democratic nominees for office in old Benton and if the democratic timber proves any better or stronger than that put in the field by republicans, we'll shut up. But you've got to prove it.

Advocates Public Parks.

Mr. Editor: Corvallis is one of the oldest cities in the valley. She might have been its Capital City, but we let that chance slip. Shall we remain as we have been in the past, and grow and enlarge only as it is forced upon us? Should we not rather begin to reach out, and induce to growth, than take it easy? What inducements are before one to come to an apparently finished town?

Look at the shacks on our streets and in many localities, old, uninviting and many repulsive to the lowest order of taste and to the penniless purse. Where is a new building with few exceptions that show marked enterprise, taste or architecture? The man who builds a home simply to save money without inducing others to improve upon his, has set a poor example to others. The man who builds either a residence or business house in advance of his neighbor hoping thereby to induce capital, intelligence and volume of business and looks for his pay from the increasing value of his buildings, is really the business man and the progressive element in his town or city. What have we in a city that has come to us without an effort? True we have a college. It came to us by accident. Are we not looking to its influence to make us grow? What are we, as a city, doing to make it, its influence and patronage grow? To the passerby or to the parent anxious to place his children in the most intelligent society and environments, we can furnish old unsightly buildings, rattling sidewalks, weedy and high grass streets and fine horses and cows tied here and there, and if not dilapidation in many places, at least not so inviting as in many less pretentious places. Are we not depending almost entirely on the college and what we get from it for our income? What a large territory of fine farming and grazing land are behind us, ready to enlarge along every line as soon as we offer enlarged inducements.

When a visitor or a newcomer is with us what have we to show him of any enterprising character? Not a thing or place. Not even a park. By the way, don't you think it high time for the city, fathers and citizens to take some steps along other lines? By this time there ought to be three or four parks, tastefully laid out, planted with trees and rare shrubs and flowers and neatly kept where the weary business people and pent up children could meet and stroll and lounge and mingle in social and recreating exercise. Where is a lot in this city near the center that can be bought for that purpose not without heavy outlay, when it might have been had for that purpose almost for the asking. Nearly every suburb block and plat of land is going in the same direction.

Let the city purchase several for parks, and let us gradually beautify and improve them and in a reasonable time we will grow to a higher and broader plane.

Is Disease a Crime?

Not very long ago, a popular magazine published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must appeal to every reasonable individual as radically wrong.

It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked, and burdened, under the heavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex. Frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of weaknesses, derangements and debility which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewife can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment fails by reason of the patient's inability to abstain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus or other displacement of the woman's organs it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription" they abstain from being very much, or long, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much out-door air as possible, with moderate, light exercise is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the "Favorite Prescription" will do the rest.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 51 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential. A Delightful Affair.

Probably the most elaborate as well as the most enjoyable "spread" of the season was the second annual banquet given at Hotel Corvallis Saturday night by the young men of the Philadelphia literary society of OAC.

Covers were laid for 80, and no trouble had been spared to make the scene one of beauty and brilliancy. The daintiest of menus contained the names of the student and alumni members of the Philadelphia society, the bill of fare and the toasts. The menus were: Oyster soup, plain and mixed pickles, queen olives, lettuce, crab salad, the first course. Second, cold roast chicken, cold boiled ham, Boston brown bread, rye bread, bun, Desert, strawberries, ice cream, orange sherbet, choice assorted cake, coffee, whipped cream.

F. M. Roth was toastmaster, and the following toasts were given:

"To the Ladies," Elmer Rawson; "Mere Man," Violet Hancock; "The Qualities that Win," D. B. Russell; "The Faculty," Mamie Schoegin; "Nihil, nic, nichts," A. A. Garrett; "Looking Forward," Laura Waggoner; "Philadelphia," L. S. Stovall; "College Friendships," Julia Fuller.

Remember the Rose show will be held next Friday night, June 1st. The entries will close promptly at 4 o'clock. The doors open to the public at 8 o'clock.
