SAID IN PASSING.

It is a matter for regret that those claiming to be republicans failed to support their candidate for governor in Monday's election.

Not one well rounded objection was made or could be made to the candidate. In fact, his integrity, his correct and accurate knowledge of the needs of the people, and of the things necessary to the development and progress of the state made him a candidate meriting the support of all good citizens.

There is no difference among republicans relative to party measures. Every honorable consideration moved for the loyal support of his party associates.

It remained for republicans to defeat him. Why? Because old party bosses have been deposed in the interest of the people, and as they passed down and out under the primary law they were determined to register one parting "kick."

In this county republicans showed more spirit and better metal. For years enough of them had given "aid and comfort to the enemy."

That democrats aided in making these changes is doubtless true, for not a few of them are opposed to long tenure of office.

Says It's False.

Mr. Editor: Kindly permit me to make the following statement in your paper: It has come to my ears since election that a story was circulated in which I was quoted as saying, Mr. Paul Dodele, candidate for commissioner, "was a drinking man."

GEORGE W. DENMAN.

To the Voters.

I desire to express my gratitude to the loyal republicans who valiantly supported me in my candidacy for the office of sheriff. I also wish to express my appreciation of a like courtesy shown me by many democrats.

The Packing House Scandal.

The Chicago packers are receiving a large amount of free advertising, but it is not of a nature that will tend to increase their profits. The President in his message urging passage of the Beveridge amendment, alludes to the practices indulged in at the Chicago packing houses as "revolting," and the plain statement of what has actually occurred in the handling of food products in that city warrants much stronger condemnation.

Mr. J. Ogden Armour and his multi-millionaire associates undoubtedly cared nothing about the sanitary condition of their packing-houses, or the condition of the diseased animals which were converted into a merchantable product in their houses. So long as the product could be placed on the market and sold at a liberal profit there was no concern over the health of the persons who bought it and used it in blissful ignorance of its true condition.

The packers have been guilty of incredible nastiness and cruel disregard for the health of the consumers, but until they were brought up with a round turn by the Government there was no evidence on their part of any acknowledgement of wrongdoing or a desire to do better.

This essential feature of the President's message regarding the matter is embodied in the assertion that "a law is needed which will enable the inspectors of the General Government to inspect and supervise from the hoof to the can the preparation of meat food products."

The date for the city clean up has been set for Friday, June 15th and in the meantime there is general activity in the work, by individuals, which will when taken altogether, be a very good step in the task of beautifying the city.

The Institute.

An enthusiastic crowd gathered at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening, the occasion being the first entertainment session of the annual institute of Benton county school teachers.

The opening number on the program was an overture by F. R. Overlander's orchestra. Mayor A. J. Johnson then made the address of welcome on behalf of the city, and while brief it was most appropriately worded and voiced a real and hearty welcome.

Rev. M. S. Bush made an address of welcome in behalf of the churches of the city, and while at times facetious, in the main he quite ably outlined the position of the church in the matter of education.

The response to the addresses of welcome was made by President E. D. Ressler, of the state normal school of Mouthout. While brief, the gentleman was in excellent good humor and in a light vein entertained those present in a happy style.

Miss Lulu Spangler contributed a vocal number and was accompanied by Prof. Taillandier. Mrs. C. E. Peterson, in her vocal solo was accompanied by Miss Margaret Fowles. Both ladies sang splendidly and to the evident satisfaction and appreciation of all.

The principal address of the evening was made by President B. F. Mulkey, of the Ashland state normal school. Oregon has few, if any, more able public speakers than President Mulkey. He took for his subject "Hamlet," and before he was half through with his lecture all were convinced that there was "something rotten in Denmark."

The day session of Wednesday and yesterday were well attended and many splendid talks and papers read, together with discussions made them of unusual interest to teachers. Last evening the entertainment was to have been furnished by Miss Gertrude N. Johnson, elocutionist of Philomath college, and a male quartette from the same institution—but this was after we went to press.

J. M. Howard has sold his dray to D. D. Bergan, who took possession yesterday morning.

Mrs. A. Kyle left yesterday for Pendleton, for a month's visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ena Swingle.

The annual "Junior hop" occurs tonight at the Armory. Music will be furnished by Steelhammer's orchestra of Salem.

Presbyterian church, M. S. Bush, pastor. No service in the morning. C. E. meeting at seven. Evening service at 8, sermon to the graduating classes of the public schools. Subject, "The City of Enoch."

A Heavy Load to Carry.

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be properly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. The blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion and in turn the nerves are not fed on good, red blood, and we see symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness and general breakdown.
