GRATIFYING TO ALL.

It is gratifying to republicans, as well as to all good citizens, the vitality, courage and zeal which the party displays in purging itself of bossism with its attendant chicanery, bribery and corruption. If a party do not have the courage and vitality to do this it deserves to be, and surely will be, put out of commission and stand dishonored and discredited in the eyes of the world.

There are no differences among republicans touching the principles of the party. The strife is within party lines. It is between those who long and largely have controlled the party organization for their own selfish purposes, and those who believe the prime duty of the party is to serve the best interests of the people. Such was the conflict in Wisconsin. On these lines it is now waged in Pennsylvania, New York and Iowa. The party reformers, or better, purifiers, led by La Follette in Wisconsin, triumphed, and they will triumph in Pennsylvania, Iowa and elsewhere.

This is made possible because the principles of the party commend themselves to the masses. If there were any other party advocating principles as beneficent and free from the evils of party bossism, large numbers of men would turn to it. But there is no such party, so they stay in the party and wage war against its upworthy leaders, and those who have prostituted party power to infamous purposes.

The most remarkable thing in these contests for party direction and control is the evidence that the rank and file, the republican masses, are determined to select new leaders who are above suspicion of domination by the trusts and corporations. Such a leader is La Follette, of Wisconsin, Cummins, of Iowa, and the candidates named by the Lincoln republicans in Pennsylvania. We thus see that everywhere the people are determined there shall be government control, in the interests of the people, of those combinations which, under whatever name, are oppressing the people and robbing them of their rights.

This conflict will go on until the corporations controlling the transportation of the country administer their trusts in the interests of the people. Interstate commerce must be freed from the intolerable conditions which prevail, and which for long have been an incubus resting on the yet greater prosperity of the whole people.

When our trade is freed from these restrictions, as it surely will be, we shall have within our own borders, the conditions of absolutely unfettered trade contemplated by the framers of the federal constitution. Protection will then be accepted by all as the American doctrine which preserves to the American people a market for their labor and their products many times more desirable and profitable than the combined markets of the world besides.

The republican party is the dominant party. The people look to it for a solution of the problems which confront and sorely perplex them. They shall not look in vain. The party has never failed the people and it will not now. If it would, it dare not, for a party would quickly be formed which would serve the people.

It is gratifying to all that the party has lost none of its vitality nor any of its progressive spirit.

LACK COURAGE.

Frail, indeed, is mortal as a general thing. It seems that the average man lacks moral courage more than any other quality. Few men, no matter how strongly convinced that a certain thing to do or course to pursue is right, will prove possessed of sufficient courage to carry the matter out on lines of equity such as their own minds and consciences dictate, especially if opposed by a clamor from the masses. This is a sad weakness in men of any walk in life, but when it comes to a point touching national legislation poor, indeed, is that country depending on men who are deficient in moral courage.

Too often in the halls of congress do we see evidences of a lack of moral courage. For instance, when the matter of the army canteen came so prominently to the attention of our lawmakers a few years ago that august body hesitated—and was lost. Despite the fact that the majority of the senators had little faith in what was to be accomplished by the abolition of the army canteen; in spite of the protest of worthy and able army officers who foresaw a condition worse than that then prevailing, the canteen went. And why? Because our representatives lacked moral courage and allowed themselves to be swayed by a class whose work in the main is along theoretical and impractical lines.

The abolishment of the canteen entailed a worse condition than prevailed with it and now the matter is again occupying the minds of some of our foremost men. Our ministers in many instances are taking a broad view of the matter and courageously advocating that the canteen be re-established at the various army posts.

Where this country suffers most from lack of moral courage on the part of her sons who are honored with the framing of her laws is in the matter of foreign emigration to our shores. Every year sees hundreds of thousands of foreigners domiciled in this country for no other reason than that a lack of moral courage on the part of those in power allows them to come here.

It seems strange in view of the feeling against foreigners coming here and locating like locusts that neither of the great parties has possessed the courage so to act that our home people and their interests may be safeguarded. Here is a real moral weakness, apparent to all, and an evidence of the existence of many more.

Increased Travel to Oregon.

All lines entering Oregon have enjoyed a greater business in passenger traffic for the month of June up to date than during the same period in 1915, contrary to the general assumption that the Lewis and Clark Exposition opening drew a larger number of persons to the state. The increase over June of last year is 40 per cent, which is strong evidence of the constantly increasing interest in Oregon and the Northwest.

A prominent railroad man, in commenting on the heavy travel, said: "San Francisco's misfortune has contributed in no small way to the improved conditions. You would be surprised if it could be made known how many Californians are seeking investments here. Coupled with that is the travel from Eastern points, as the tourist season has opened and it all tends to forecast a record-breaking period."

Congregational Church. Sunday school at ten, Junior Endeavor at three, and Senior Endeavor at seven. Regular services at 11:00 a. m. and 8 p. m., and preaching by Rev. J. Leiper, D. D., of Portland, and by the pastor in the evening. Evening sermon, "Was the Catastrophe at San Francisco because of Its Wickedness? What Does the Bible say about it?"

Additional Local.

Presbyterian church, M. S. Bush, pastor: Bible School, 19 a. m.; worship, 11 a. m.; subject, "Blessings from our God." C. E. meeting, 7 p. m.; evening service at 8. Good music, beautiful decorations.

General T. J. Thorp left yesterday afternoon for Chicago, in the interests of the Agricultural Automobile of which he is the inventor. He was accompanied to Portland by Mrs. Thorp, who will visit her daughter, Miss Bettie, for a few days.

At Turner, Wednesday T. S. Handaker of this city, was elected third vice president of the Oregon Christian Missionary Convention. The convention closes its sessions Sunday night. A number of Corvallis people are in attendance.

A well-known citizen was arrested in this city Wednesday for leading a horse on the sidewalk for a block or more. This is not the first instance in Corvallis where horses have been led on the walk, and hereafter such cases will be dealt with by the officers.

The old school building is to be repaired during the vacation weeks now at hand. A notice asking for bids for work and material appears elsewhere in this issue. The work is to be first-class and the improvement will certainly be very marked.

Miss Bettie Thorp, who recently underwent a surgical operation in a Portland hospital for removal of a tumor, is recovering as rapidly as could be expected and will shortly be able to return home. Friends in Corvallis will be glad to hear such favorable news.

According to present plans some Corvallis people will spend their Fourth at Mary's Peak. A party is now being made up, and there is no doubt but that this will be a very enjoyable trip, and that the Peak will be a delightfully cool place to celebrate—especially if it rains.

Invitations are out for the marriage of George Cooper and Miss Kate Whiteside, both of the immediate vicinity of Corvallis. The event takes place at the home of the bride, Sunday morning, and Rev. E. F. Green will perform the ceremony. Congratulations in advance are extended.

Many Corvallisites are planning to attend the celebration at Bellefontaine, Peoria, Alsea and other nearby places, but the popular idea seems to favor the trip to the Front. This excursion is to be run by the I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs, and as there is a limit to the number of passengers that can be accommodated, those desiring to go should secure their tickets at once.

Bad Stomach Makes

Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a four wheel churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it be weak, sluggish and foul the result will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad, impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition. Chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion. Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs; especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of prostrated heart and excessive gastric acidity. It is useful in chronic intestinal dyspepsia, especially the flatulent variety, and in certain forms of chronic constipation, stimulating the secretory and excretory functions of the intestinal glands."

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot and Mandrake root, or the extracts of these, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficacy in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements. These several ingredients have the strongest endorsement in all such cases of such eminent medical leaders as Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Robert A. Hare, M. D., of Medical Department, University of Pa.; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Medical Department, University of New York; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., and Prof. John M. D. J. Authors of the American Dispensary, and scores of others among the leading medical men of our land. Who can doubt the curative virtues of a medicine the ingredients of which have such a professional endorsement? Constipation cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One or two a dose.
