Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Horner were to arrive in New York City from Europe a week ago last Wednesday and were expected to reach Corvallis last evening or today. They have visited the Holy Land, as well as various other parts of the far East, and have had a splendid trip.

A visit to the court house Tuesday disclosed the fact that every one in the clerk's office had on his working clothes and was unusually busy and their work showed for itself, as there were over 40 pension vouchers, a dozen or more hunters' licenses and about the same number of fire permits, in addition to which probate court was moving and rushed with business.

The biggest and best excursion of the season will be run next Sunday morning from Albany, Salem, Eugene and Detroit. It is the annual Elk's crab feed and outing and the antlered herd of the valley will gather for the event in large numbers. The train will run on the regular Sunday schedule between this city and the bay. At the seaside the greater part of the summer guests are now gone but a program of entertainment will be provided for the Elks that will be novel and enjoyable so that the visit to the bay for the party will be one of the events of the season. The rats for the round trip will be only $1.50 and this rate will also apply to the Saturday to Monday tickets. A large crowd is expected to be in attendance.

The search for houses is becoming more lively as the date for the opening of college draws nearer, but only an occasional student is as yet seen on the streets. Many will go to the hop yards before coming to Corvallis to begin their year's work at OAC, and the coin thus earned will later on be put into circulation in Corvallis stores and shops.

The annual exhibit from Benton county to the state fair is to be shipped from this city to Salem today. It will include the permanent exhibit that is kept at the court house, and which was at the Lewis and Clark fair, and many additions will be made from this year's supply of cereals, grains, grasses and other products. H. P. French accompanies the exhibit to Salem and remains there in charge.

An epidemic of sore throat seems to have been going the rounds in Corvallis recently, and it is said many men working on the various threshers have suffered from the ailment. It is declared that never before has there been so much difficulty experienced in keeping threshers crews through the season as this year, and some machines have been obliged to quit because their men have deserted and accepted other employment at higher wages.

The Corvallis Business College is looking forward to a year of more than ordinary prosperity, owing to the fact that the work of its graduates is proving so satisfactory to employers, and that its graduates are in demand. This week the rooms in the First National bank building have been undergoing repairs and receiving a general cleaning up preparatory to the opening of college on the 17th. Miss Emma Yoder has been superintending the work.

The report is current that the Walters saw mill, a few miles from Monroe, has been purchased by Eastern capitalists, through an agent named Back, for $40,000. Eight sections of fine timber land are said to also have been purchased. On one of the sections the Alsea Falls are located, which could easily furnish 500 horse power for any purposes desired. Another statement is that the purchasers are to build a saw mill at Junction City or Corvallis, with a capacity of 100,000 to 150,000 feet, and that a railroad for hauling logs from the timber to the mill will be built. The rumors, however, are not confirmed.
