The state sheep inspector of Oregen is appointing deputies in the various sections of the state and the new law will be enforced throughout the country. According to the Polk County Observer it will be the duty of these deputies to in spect all sheep in the country and to supervise all dipping done by the dock owners in future. Sheep afflic'ed with s-ub and other diseases must be dipped until cured. The new stock law will be hailed with satisfaction by the farmers, as it removes the state quarantine and permits them to dip their sheep at hone. Heretofore, all sheep shipped from the state had to be inspected and dipped at Portland, or other distant shipping points, at a beavy expense to the shipper. This inspection will no longer be required and the dipping will be done at home under the direction of the Deputy
