Children in Pain

Never cry as do children who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all babies who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. Sold by Graham & Wortham.

THOUSANDS COMING TO SEE

Big All-Benton Fair—Orchestra and Quartette From Portland—Other Features.

As the hour for opening of the All-Benton School Fair draws near, our citizens realize the magnitude and grand success it is to be. Arrangement after arrangement is being perfected so that everything will go off like clock work. Attraction after attraction is being secured so as to surpass in entertainment anything that has been witnessed by the citizens of the county. One thing about the Fair that appeals to all is that everything is to be free except the merry-go-round. No admission is to be charged for viewing exhibits, free electrical moving picture show, the concerts by the band and orchestra and quartette, the ice cream social, the elocutionary treat, in fact everything as stated is to be given free. Such an opportunity for amusement and pleasure has never been surpassed in the memory of the oldest citizens of old Benton. How the little hearts of our boys and girls are going to be gladdened when they come and see the many things arranged for their special pleasure which is making every father and mother in the county exert themselves to the extreme to bring them to the Fair.

Carpenters are at work, preparing the court house for storing the exhibits. It is to be decorated immediately, and the beautiful sight to be presented cannot be described by words. The only way to be able to enjoy it is to come and see the room of floating bunting, electric lights and fluttering ribbons.

The grove is to be arranged so that the seats will be in the form of a circle, that the farthest person in the rear of the audience can see and enjoy the orations of the day.

Reports are being received relative to the parade of school children. From reports the largest assemblage of children in the history of the county will march down Main street to be reviewed by the Governor and United States Senator Fulton.

One of the things appealing to the farmers is the free camping privileges. As has been stated, free wood and mountain water will be supplied to all. A large number of farmers have indicated their intention to bring their families to camp. The camp ground will be policed so that everything will be safe and secure.

The Eiler Piano House of Portland is to bring an orchestra of talented musicians and a quartette of rare ability from Portland for the Fair. Their orchestra and quartette will dispense music during all hours of the day free. This house is now arranging most spectacular decorations in the court house.

The large flags for decoration have arrived and have been hung in place this week. A good surprise is in store for our citizens. The flags instead of being four feet wide and six feet long are six feet wide and ten and eight feet long. Over one hundred such flags are to decorate Main street, the side streets leading to Main, the street leading west from the Occidental Hotel to the Opera House, thence north to the northwest corner of the Court House, and west on street south of Court House. There will be run a streamer of flags from the top of the flag staff on the Court House, clear across the street east of the Court House, besides flags fluttering everywhere in the grove Corvallis, during the Fair, promises to be a city of flags waving, fluttering and rippling with every passing zephyr.

The entire system of lighting is to be turned on Friday evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. Look out for the sparkling lights of red, white and blue.

On account of the congested condition of the city during the Fair, the committee has asked every person having spare rooms to report the number and location to Secretary Russ. This is being done so as to render the stay in the city of the many visitors one of pleasure and comfort.

Exhibit cards have been ordered and sent every day; already a large number of exhibits have arrived. The exhibit promises to be a hummer, an eye opener. Old Benton will be more than proud of herself after the work of our children is installed in the Court House.

Will Hold Meeting

A meeting for the purpose of perfecting the organization of the Benton County Horticultural Society will be held in Corvallis August 31 at 1 o'clock at the court house. Every resident of this vicinity who is interested in fruit growing, directly or indirectly, is invited and urged to be present.

The objects of the Association are to arouse and maintain an interest in horticultural subjects among the people of Corvallis and the surrounding country; to unite the people in demanding and upholding the enforcement of the laws; to promote the study of horticultural and of the best methods for growing, protecting and marketing fruit; to secure the location of packing houses, canneries, and other enterprises for the utilization of fruit and its by-products; to combine its members for all of the purposes mentioned, and for the further purpose when deemed expedient of co-operate marketing of fruit.

Trying To Forget.

Recent rumors that Holy Rollerism yet exists at Waldport, a seacoast town on Alsea Bay, have been found to be untrue, says a dispatch to the Oregonian. They arose from the fact that O. V. Hurt, whose home was wrecked by Creffield, is residing with his family near Waldport, and on a mountain ranch, almost isolated from communication with the world, is trying to live down the memories of that time.

Once a leading business man of Corvallis, Or. and high in the political and social life of his county, O. V. Hurt is now content to spend the remainder of his life on this far-away foothill farm. He shuns ordinary acquaintance, not because he is a devotee of Creffield's faith but because he wishes to forget it.

A Good Trade.

Every boy, no matter how rich or how poor his ancestry, should learn thoroughly some good trade, so that if his circumstances become reversed at any time he could immediately do service at his trade and start again on a successful road to prosperity. The printing trade is not only artistic when completely learned, but it is also highly educational in every particular, and one of the best trades that anyone can learn, as opportunity for labor is ever ready each working day in the year.

There is one of the best opportunities in all the land for a young man of steady habits, good principles, well educated, having a will to work and excel, to learn the printing trade in the Gazette office. Proper explanation will be given on application. 671f

KILLED ON C. & E.

Fireman Meets Death Tuesday En Route to Yaquina.

Arthur Hassman, fireman on the C. & E. train between Corvallis and Yaquina, was killed Tuesday afternoon near Blodgett, in a manner that will always remain a mystery. The body was found, badly mangled, on the bank of Mary's river, at one of the bridges, but how the young man happened to fall from the train will never be known.

Engineer Casteel was looking out the window, and upon addressing a remark to Hassman and receiving no reply he noticed for the first time that the fireman was not in his customary place. When an investigation was made it was found Hassman was not on the train, and the engine was run back several miles and a search made for the missing man. Finding no trace of him, the train was obliged to proceed to Yaquina.

Residents of Blodgett, the section hands and loggers engaged in the search, and about 7 o'clock found the mangled body on the bank of the river.

A young man who was in the party of searchers that found Hassman was in Corvallis Wednesday. He stated that Hassman's head was mashed, that he was covered with blood and dirt and was in a shocking condition. This would seem to give weight to the theory that the fireman might have been going along the outside rail of the engine and on crossing the bridge had leaned too far out and been struck by the timbers. Or the fall to the rocks below may have mangled the body as it was. How it happened will of course remain a mystery.

Hassman's body was taken to Yaquina, where he resided with his parents. The funeral was held Thursday, an inquest having been conducted Wednesday forenoon.

Deceased was aged about 25 years and was not married.

The Man at the Lever.

Have you ever paused, as you went on a trip by rail, steamer or launch, to think of the man at the wheel or lever? Have you taken time to consider that when you stepped aboard you were placing your life in the keeping of the dirty-faced, smoke-begrimed engineer or electrician who sat so unconcernedly puffing his little stub pipe or a cigarette in the caboose or engine room?

The uncertainty of it all, the tremendous risk of it all comes home to one as one boards the noisy little tub of a boat that is now in use on the run between Newport and Yaquina. Down in the engine room—a tiny 2x4 sort of a room, it is, too—a beardless young man with square set jaws and careless demeanor handles the lever which starts the machinery that sets the boat in motion and propels it to its destination up or down the bay.

It is a gasoline engine that this cool, keen-eyed young fellow handles, and with the smoke and fumes of gasoline all around him he stands with his eye on the lever and his attention riveted on the jerky, sputtering machine at his side and under his control.

It is a place for cool men, brave men and men with calm, clear heads. The lives of the passengers are in his hands, it is neither time nor place for the man of intemperate habits, with mind clouded by drink or the cigarette habit.

It is well that a crusade has long since been inaugurated against men of bad habits holding positions of responsibility. The movement is not sweeping enough. It should spread and be adopted by all companies who take the lives of the traveling public into their keeping, even for an hour.

Give us clean, clear-sighted, temperate men at the lever and on the engine. Man's duty to man demands it.

Additional Locals.

Arrangements have been completed for the Summer Course in agriculture at the OAC, beginning August 26 and continuing to the 31st inclusive. The purpose of the course is to give the teachers of the State such preparation as they may need for the use of the agricultural book to be introduced next year in the seventh and eighth grades of public schools. The work will consist of lectures on the different subjects treated in the new text book on agriculture with such illustrations and demonstrations as may be helpful to teachers in getting an understanding of the subject. The professors will indicate the parts of the text which may be advantageously omitted, and will give supplementary material to be used by the teachers in adapting their work to local conditions. It is of the utmost importance that as many as possible of the teachers who will use the agricultural textbook arrange to take this course.
