PATIENCE AND TIME.

Many men beside Secretary Taft have appealed to the South to break up her solidarity for the Democratic party. Some of these men have been southern men, and all have been friends of the South. They have shown how this solidarity prevents the southern people from participating in the conduct of the government to the extent of exerting even a little influence in shaping its policies.

The Southern people see they should not adhere to the one party so pertinaciously. Many of them favor protection yet act with the party that would destroy protection. They desire to participate in the benefactions of the general government yet solidly array themselves with that party which, for more than forty years, has obstructed and opposed the principles and policies that make the benefactions possible. They will acknowledge that their own best interests require that their party solidarity should be broken up, yet they waver not in their support of the Democratic party.

The Southern people cannot fail to see that their adherence to the democratic party has wrought them no good for quite fifty years, works them no good now, and bodes them no good though they maintain their Democratic solidarity for fifty years to come. Surely the Democratic party can promise nothing now nor ever again to delude the Southern people. The last delusion practiced on them by that party led thousands of their brave and best to glorious and unavailing death. Yet the southern people unflinchingly follow the standard of that party.

Why is it so? The answer is not easily found. We much doubt if any southern man could give an answer satisfactory to himself. It is not fear of negro domination, for she has been permitted to deal with her race problem, even to the disfranchisement of the negro, without the interference of any party. It is not because she objects to the policies, for the main part, of the republican party, for it is almost certain if these policies were not placarded "Republican," the South would fall in with them.

It is probable that antipathy for everything bearing the brand of the Republican party—or rather deep-seated dislike of the brand itself is the main reason why the South clings so tenaciously to the Democratic party. Force of habit doubtless also contributes no little to hold southerners to that party.

The South has not yet outgrown these. The New South is yet too young, and has not outgrown the domination of the Old South. Patience and time, rather than anything Secretary Taft or any one else may say, will bring the South into her old time place in the councils of the Nation to her own advantage and the glory of all sections of our common country.

NEVER HERETOFORE.

Whatever may be the truth concerning the physical evolution of man there can be no question that he has reached his present intellectual, moral and religious or spiritual status by the slow but unerring process of evolution. Gradually, slowly, indeed, by times, man has advanced and developed intellectually, morally and spiritually, and now stands on a high level than ever heretofore in the whole history of mankind. Well developed intellectually as were the old Greeks and Romans, their intellectual development was of the few, not of the masses. To-day, in all civilized and enlightened nations, the masses may justly claim intellectual development superior to that of the favored Greeks because men now live, think, act in a much wider and more diversified zone of intellectual activity.

More pronounced has been man's moral development. Never in human history has the mass of civilized mankind stood on a higher moral pinnacle than now. The history of any people, scanned but for the last century, shows almost amazing moral development. It is plain and evident that, whatever the reasons therefor, the moral concept of men has had a rapid, steady and healthful development on moral lines exceeding even his intellectual growth.

So with man's religious or spiritual development. Men cannot grow, expand, develop, spiritually and religiously unless they first have made intellectual and moral progress, and a good deal of it. "Ignorance is the mother of superstition." Where superstition dwells bigotry, selfishness, persecution and intolerance exist. Where these are found true religious and spiritual growth are impossible. But never in the history of the race have so many men held nearly so high and rational a concept of spiritual and religious life as just now.

We need not stop to seek for the influences which fairly impel men to development along intellectual, moral and spiritual lines. These may be influences working within the human breast or wholly extraneous, or from both directions; it matters not. We simply record the facts, point to the indubitable evidence that in spite of all baseness, vice, corruption, immorality and gambling there was never before so many men and women living in so high, pure and life-giving intellectual, moral and spiritual atmosphere than just now.

Minstrels.

If you desire to participate in an evening of rare enjoyment go to the opera house Saturday night and see the high grade performance of Richards and Pringle's Famous Georgia Minstrels.

People sometimes say, "All minstrel shows are alike," but this is a superficial blunder. Go and see for yourself and you will proclaim that the "Georgias" are in a class distinct and by themselves. This season they bring an entire new show, retaining only Clarence Powell from last year.

Additional Local.

Mrs. Prudence Chipman was injured in an accident at the F. L. Miller chicken ranch west of town, Tuesday. With her daughter, Mrs. Miller, she had driven to the farm for fruit. Passing through the gate which was opened by Mrs. Miller, a ladder in the rear part of the buggy caught on a wire on the gate, frightening the horse which started to run. Mrs. Chipman fell out of the vehicle and was rendered unconscious for a time. A physician was summoned and it was found that a blow on the back of the head and an injury to the back had been sustained. Mrs. Chipman could not recall any of the incidents connected with the accident and did not know what had happened, although she was able to converse on any other subject. She is recovering.

To bring up a child the way he should go, travel that way yourself. Stories first heard at a mother's knee are never wholly forgotten; it is like a little spring that never dries up on our journey through scorching years. The sooner you get a child to be a law unto himself the sooner you make a man out of him. Children need models more than criticism. We can never check what is bad in the young unless we cherish what is good in them.—Ex.

Is worth a pound of cure. There are many sufferers, Consumptives who are hopeless of getting well—who, if they had taken care of themselves, would now be well. A cough is the foundation of Consumption. Ballard's Horehound Syrup will cure that cough. Mrs. S., Great Falls, Montana, writes: "I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup in my family for years. My children never suffer with coughs." Sold by Graham & Wertham.

A Good Trade.

Every boy, no matter how rich or how poor his ancestry, should learn thoroughly some good trade, so that if his circumstances become reversed at any time he could immediately do service at his trade and start again on a successful road to prosperity. The printing trade is not only artistic when completely learned, but it is also highly educational in every particular, and one of the best trades that anyone can learn, as opportunity for labor is ever ready each working day in the year.

There is one of the best opportunities in all the land for a young man of steady habits, good principles, well educated, having a will to work and excel, to learn the printing trade in the Gazette office. Proper explanation will be given on application. 6711
