PHILOMATH SNAPSHOTS.

Happenings of Interest in and About the Busy Burg.

In another week the call will have sounded and a great army will muster at roll call in the public school buildings throughout the length and breadth of our land and school masters and mistresses will be "teaching young shoots how to idea." Our pretty school building, resplendent in its new coat of paint, will soon echo with the many feet of our men and women of tomorrow. The best of everything for these lads and lassies for as "we measure out to them, it will come back to us again."

Philomath College opened Sept. 25th at 10 a. m. Prof. Sheak gave the opening address. Prospective students are gathering in and among them are familiar faces. The Misses Neva Kisor and Grace Van Slype of Eastern Oregon, are again here and also the Misses Pherne and Ola Miller of Sunnyside, Wash. The prospects are for a promising school year. Several changes have been made in the faculty. P. O. Bonebrake, D. D., is president. Miss Matel Merrick will take Prof. Kenoyer's place and Miss Eva Pugsley will assist Prof. Gressley in the commercial department. Miss Eila Perrin, as previously reported, will assume the duties of musical instructor.

Prof. Gressley and family will occupy the newly remodeled and modern dwelling, recently acquired by Earnest Castle and known as the McCullough property.

Prof. P. O. Bonebrake placed a fine new piano in his home last week. Another piano was placed in the Philomath College.

Mrs. E. A. Parker and son, Charles of Pleasant Valley, greeted friends in Philomath, Thursday.

Geo. Curtis and family, from California, who occupied the C. G. Springer residence, departed for Dallas last week.

Thos. Burns of Portland, a former student of the college of Philomath, arrived at the S. O. Watkins home last week and is stopping there for the present. He contemplates taking a course at the OAC and will probably be in Corvallis by the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Crail are the proud parents of a baby girl born Sept. 16th at Turner, Oregon. Their many friends extend congratulations.

A party of local nimrods ascended Mt. Chintimini last week to see what they could slay. No report has reached us of their prowess, however.

A number of coyotes "made night hideous" for several nights last week, in the hills north of Philomath.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Reynolds have returned from Kingstons, where they had been in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Reynold's grandmother.

Mrs. J. R. Fehler departed for Salem last Monday to be with her sister, Mrs. J. H. Merryman, for a number of weeks. In two or three weeks Miss Metha Fehler will join her at Salem and after a week or so they will proceed to the state metropolis to visit with friends and relatives for some time.

J. E. Wyatt, and son Elbert, passed through the burg enroute for the Peak last Monday to vie with other nimrods in search of large game and incidentally to look after the large herd of cattle that J. E. and Frank Wyatt have annually pasturing on their Peak ranches.

Miss Alice Pimim arrived home from Corvallis last Saturday preparatory to a journey into the Alsea country where she has been employed as a teacher in the Hayden school district. This is her initial school and her many friends wish her success.

James Archibald, who is home on a visit from Hood River, was a guest at the Proctor home Sunday.

Mrs. W. P. Morris, who was reported as having run a needle into her foot about four weeks ago, is still very lame and unable to wear a shoe.

Miss Fay Newth went to Salem last week to take up her work in the institution for deaf mutes but was called home last Monday on account of the death and burial of her brother Charles.

Arthur Pugsley, junior member of the firm of Pugsley and son, was attacked with pleurisy the forepart of the week.

Mr. Van Blaricom of this place sold his mercantile interests at Shelburn recently and is to give possession the first of next month.

Some of our people attending the great State Fair at Salem last week were Mr. and Mrs. Jolly and daughter, Miss Grace, Mrs. A. M. Gray and children, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Warman, Robert Gellatly, Frank Burnap and J. E. Becker.

Homer Allen, in the employ of the C. & E. R. R. Co. in Corvallis, was a guest of Philomath relatives Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker, new students of the Philomath college will occupy the Samuel McClain house for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Baldwin moved into Robert Clark's house in the east part of Philomath recently.

Dr. C. H. Newth and family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement by the death of Charles, which came like a bolt of lightning from a clear sky. Only two short weeks ago he was reported as being indisposed with typhoid fever and now disease has done its work. "Charlie," as he was familiarly known, was an estimable young man and many hearts are saddened by his early demise. Truly, Death ever loves a shining mark.

Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Newton, two of our valued pioneers, visited at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Lon Henkle, last Sunday. Mrs. Newton has been in very frail health all spring and summer and her many friends are glad to know that she is gaining strength.

Mr. Newton has added dignity by donning the official star in the absence of the City Marshall.

Another old pioneer, J. C. Wood, is Uncle Sam's agent for delivering mails to and from the Big Elk country. Their days of usefulness are not yet over.

M. K. Watkins of Portland, who visited with his mother for a short time has gone east to Chicago. He will visit his sister, Mrs. Jennie Smith in Iowa for a short time before he returns.

Frank R. Becker returned home from Kennett, California last Tuesday and will go to Corvallis the last of the week preparatory to re-entering OAC next week. He was accompanied home by Carl F. Dittmar, editor and publisher of The Copper Outlook of Kennett and The Coram Recorder of Coram in Shasta Co., who will visit at home for a week or ten days. C. F. contemplates a trip to the state metropolis during the interim.

A. E. Taylor has improved from his recent affliction that necessitated a surgical operation, to such an extent that he is able to be about the house at present. His daughter, Mrs. Zella Myer and child have returned to their home at Butte, Montana.

Miss Sophia Dixon of Corvallis visited at the Merryman home last Sunday returning to Corvallis on the returning train. Miss Dixon will accompany her parents to Yamhill Co., near McMinnville but expects to return soon to visit with friends in Philomath.

Melvin Miller of Sunnyside, Wash., drifted into our burg Tuesday to enter college on Wednesday.

Miss Eila Perrin, the musical instructor of the college, having not yet arrived, Mrs. O. V. White will substitute until her arrival.

Mrs. Z. Custer who has been visiting with her daughters, Mrs. Thos. Cooper of Salem, and Mrs. George Lilly of Corvallis, arrived in Philomath on Tuesday, and will remain here a few days before returning to her home at Newport.

Mrs. Mary Felger was a Corvallis visitor last Tuesday.

Miss Eda Allen, who has been visiting relatives near Mt. Angel, Marion county for the past month is expected home next Monday.

Mrs. Frank Wyatt and children, acolyte her mother, Mrs. J. G. Becker, and nieces, Metha Fehler and Emily Hartless visited at the J. R. Fehler home Sunday.

B. L. Hacker's crop was finally threshed last Monday by the Hood threshing-machine and now old Benton can write "Finis" with regard to the grain crop for 1907. With the grain, hops, peaches and prunes all harvested and the hay and straw baled and stored and the surplus burned, the husbandmen are preparing for another season, and planning for 1908.

Next on tapis is the gathering of the winter's supply of fruits and vegetables of which there are enough for all.

Fools Elsewhere.

All fools are not native Oregonians. There are fools to the south of us—across our southern boundary line—as is evident by the following letter which reached the Simpson pheasant farm a few days ago:

"Gents: Please give me price of stock the description of stock and what way to handle them and the size of them and the date of them in markets I am in the Poultry Biz and if Pheasant Pays Better I want them I keep the full Blood Rhode Island Reds fine chickens almost size of Plymouth Rocks Great and Hardy cockerels $1.50 each eggs for hatching in season will sell eggs from first of Feb at $1.00 Per setting please give me Particulars of your Pheasants and the increase of stock and what is for market and Price they Bring and size of Birds when in confinement

"Will you also quote me Oregon Potatoes (Burbank) by carload or by sack"

Then follows the signature which in turn is followed by this postscript:

"do you Know of the Mason family that moved in Oregon from Mclean co Ills they were my neighbors give their address and full name the ones I have referred to moved there in 1854"

Well! Who says a Californian is not a scholar, no matter if to the manner born or not? We know of no Oregonian who could make himself more ridiculous than this Californian, no matter how hard he tried. "Tis a mad world, my master;" proof of this stares us in the face during our wakeful hours and haunts our dreams by night.

The Schenectady, New York, Gazette of Sept. 18th says: "Mrs. Thomas J. Thorpe of Corvallis, Oregon, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Hall of 131 Park Place. Mrs. Thorpe is the wife of General Thos. J. Thorpe, who graduated from Union College during the war, his diploma having been sent to him while in the field." Mrs. Hall was formerly Miss Ethel Kyle of this city.

Virgil Watters went to Portland, Wednesday, to attend the conference of the M. E. church.

The Mrs. Katie Tharp place of 180 acres, four miles southeast of Corvallis, was sold this week to Joseph F. Finch for $4,200. The sale was made by Virgil Watters.

CHARLES W. NEWTH.

His Funeral Tuesday—Was Promising Young Man.

Charles Woodward Newth was born in Graham county, Kansas on the 15th of April, 1882 and immigrated to Vernonia, Columbia county, Oregon with his parents at the age of seven.

Ten years ago he accompanied his parents and sister to Philomath where he has grown from youth to promising manhood.

He completed the public school course and then entered as a student in the college at Philomath where he was graduated in the Normal course.

In the spring of 1901 the family was bereaved by the death of the mother, whose remains were interred in the Mt. Union cemetery.

Since 1904 the subject of this sketch has been battling in the world's great van, the greater part of the time having been employed in and near Portland but for the past six months has been in Washington.

He came home on the 29th of August, only a little over three weeks ago, for a short visit, little dreaming what the termination would be. Two weeks ago symptoms of typhoid fever appeared and rapidly ran their course, taking from our midst one who will be sadly missed by all, especially by the heart broken sisters, Minnie and Fay.

Besides his sisters he leaves his father, step-mother and little baby brother Carrol, his maternal grandfather in Kansas, aged 89 years, to whom his sad death will prove a sore affliction, and many relatives and friends to mourn his early death.

After two weeks of severe illness, which wore him to a shadow in both mind and body, life took flight last Sunday, Sept. 22, 1907 at 11:20 p. m. Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday at 10 a. m. at Radical United Brethren church by Rev. Walter Reynolds assisted by L. B. Baldwin, after which the sad procession wended its way to the Mt. Union cemetery where the remains were laid away beside those of his mother and baby brother.

"Let death do its worst, there are moments of joy,

Bright dreams of the past that death can not destroy;

They come in the night time of sorrow and care,

And bring back the features that joy used to wear."

Waldo Hall.

Mrs. J. B. Horner took charge of Waldo Hall, as matron, Wednesday. Up to that time 40 girls had made application for rooms; more are expected to apply later. The dining room is one of the finest of the kind in Oregon, while all the rooms occupied by the girls are comfortable and roomy. All rooms are supplied with wardrobes, chiffoniers with mirror, washbowl, bedstead and mattresses, steam heat and other conveniences, all new.

As is generally known, Waldo Hall is the largest edifice by far of the kind in the Northwest. It is four stories high, 231 feet long and 138 feet wide. There are about 400 doors in the building and about an equal number of windows. It is reliably declared that there are very few men who can sweep all the floors in Waldo Hall in four days' time, working ten hours per day.

The south end of the building will be made ready for occupancy Saturday as the young ladies arrive.

Water pipes are being put in and wiring done for electric lights this week, and when finally completed the building will stand without a superior on the coast,
