THOSE OREGON BOVINES.

Animals Shipped From Corvallis Get Write-Up.

The fame of Oregon livestock has reached far-off Honolulu, and even the Corvallis stock show is mentioned in a write-up that appeared in the "Sunday Advertiser" Sep. 8-'07. The article has reference to the splendid animals shipped from the L. B. Geer stock farm a few weeks ago of which mention was made at the time in the Gazette. The Advertiser says:

The finest herd of blooded cattle that ever came to the Hawaiian Islands arrived by the Hiloian Thursday. The herd consists of thirty-three bulls from the best herds of Oregon and Washington and are for the Parker ranch, the American Sugar Company ranch on Molokai, and for John Hind in Kona.

The animals of the herd were all selected by Fred W. Carter, late manager of the Cone ranch near Red Bluff, and were shipped and brought here under his personal direction. Among the herd are a number of prize winners and almost any of them might win in good company if made ready for the ring. Most of the animals are Herefords, but there are three Short-horns and two Devons. They are all at the corral of the Union Feed Company on Ala Moana, and a good many people have gone there in the last two days to view the herd which is certainly a show.

Without question the finest animal in the bunch and the finest animal ever brought to Hawaii is "Komiakin" a perfect Hereford bull four years old, which took the first premium as a Hereford at the Oregon State Fair held at Salem in 1904, and the sweepstakes as a bull at the same exhibition, being judged the junior champion of the Northwest at that time, then fourteen months old. He was not exhibited the next two years, but he was being fitted for the show ring this year when he was bought by Mr. Carter to bring down here.

He is a beautiful animal, with the perfect Hereford markings, and of enormous size, weighing 2140 pounds now, though capable of putting on much more. When he was landed from the Hiloian he attracted a great deal of attention at the warf, the Hawaiians saying, "We have seen pictures of bulls like that but never till now did we see the real thing."

Another one of the very fine animals of the herd is "Rex," also a Hereford, forty-six months old, a bull of great individuality, a splendid sire, and showing well the Anxiety strains of Herfords. "Correction" is a short-horn three years old and a beauty. He has been in the show ring twice and has twice won first premium, once at the Oregon State Fair at Salem, and once at the Fair at Corvallis last June. The animal is a perfect type of the short-horn.

"Meddler III" is another short-horn, five years old, and the kind of an animal to take the eye of a grazier. He is light roan in color, and a well-shaped, smooth animal.

"They will all be shipped shortly to the various ranches for which they were bought. They are a decided addition to the blooded stock of the islands."

Cruel and inhuman.

"Dropping" poor, helpless kittens by the roadside, there to starve, be tortured by passing dogs and small boys is a sin that should be punished, and any person guilty of the deed has cause for being thoroughly ashamed. Two ladies drove over in Linn county one day the last of the week. After crossing the ferry and starting onward they saw four little kittens huddled by the roadside, crying piteously.

Moved by the sight, the women picked up two of the little strays and drove on to a friend's where the hungry creatures were fed. Coming back a little later and seeing the other two, the women gathered them up also and brought them to town where they will be given to persons wishing pets. So starved were the kittens that they gnawed at the women's coat sleeves, begging for food. "Ham" and "Hamlin," and "Linn" "Linn" "Linn" were the names given the little wanderers by the humane and kind hearted women, as the incident occurred in Linn county and the first two "tramps" were fed at the Hamlin home where the ladies visited.

It the sparrow's fall is noted, surely such cruelty as "dropping" kittens will not pass unheeded.

Troubles of U. O.

A letter from the University of Oregon says.

The University of Oregon opened its doors Tuesday, September 24th. The first and second days' registration showed an increase of more than twenty percent over the registration of the same time last year. Almost every high school and academy in the state is represented, and a large number are presenting credentials from eastern preparatory schools.

The year will mark the highest point in enrollment that the University has yet reached. The serious question that is presenting itself is how to take care of all students. The lack of funds has made it impossible to furnish and heat all of the rooms in the library building, and for the same reason, the new girls' dormitory will have to lie idle for the year. Students, however, are adjusting themselves readily to the conditions, and the outlook for the year's work is exceptionally good.

What to Do.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn how to tell a story. A well told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room. Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. This world is too busy to care for your ills or sorrows.

Learn to stop croaking. If you can not see any good in the world keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your pains and aches under pleasant smiles. No one cares to hear whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism.

Don't cry. Tears do well enough in novels, but are out of place in real life. Learn to meet your friends with a smile. A good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic is not wanted anywhere, and is a nuisance as well.

Above all, give pleasure. Lose no chance of giving pleasure, for you will pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that you can do, or any kindness that you can show to any human being, you had better do it now; do not defer or neglect it, for you will not pass this way again.

Corvallis Opera House October 3rd and 4th.

Next Thursday night the National Stock Company will open a two nights engagement in this city with the stirring military drama, "For Love Sake." This play is an incident of the civil war, one that develops strong climaxes, and contains elements of love, pathos and comedy. Dramatic and laugh provoking scenes follow in rapid succession. Specialities are introduced between acts. On Friday night the company will produce the well known success, "Tennessee's Partner." Popular prices, 25, 35 and 50 cts. Seats now selling at Graham & Wortham's drug store.

SCRUGGS---RICKARD.

Wedding, Thursday—Corvallis Bride, Tacoma Groom.

Benton county has lost another of her fairest native daughters. Thursday morning at 10:30, at the handsome new residence of Miss Ella Johnson on South Main street occurred the marriage of Miss Thella Rickard of Corvallis to Amos Estelle Scruggs of Tacoma, Washington.

At the appointed hour Miss Vena Rickard took her place at the piano and as the notes of the wedding march echoed through the spacious rooms the bridal party appeared, taking a position under a floral and ivy arch in the front parlor. Rev. Mowre of the M. E. church, South, of Portland, performed the impressive ceremony in the presence of about 20 relatives and intimate friends.

After the usual congratulations the bridal party and out a dozen of the guests repaired to Hotel Corvallis where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served. The bride's dress was a beautiful creation of white net over white taffeta, in which she made a strikingly lovely picture. Her bouquet was ferns and roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Leatha Rickard, was a close second to the bride in point of beauty, in a girlish costume of white organdy. She carried La France roses. Lee Scruggs, brother of the groom, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Scruggs departed on the 1:05 train for Portland. They proceed from there to Tacoma and thence for a visit with the groom's relatives in Texas and Tennessee. They will afterwards go to Jamestown and S. Louis and then return to Tacoma to reside during the winter. Next spring they expect to take up their residence in Portland.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rickard, one of Benton county's substantial and highly respected families. She is a young woman of high character and marked beauty and has many well-wishers. The groom is a railway conductor and a young man of pleasing manner. Many friends extend congratulations.

Learning to See.

One of the striking exhibits at the Oregon Agricultural College is the work done in freehand drawing under the guidance of Professor McLouth, says the Herald. A large number of students take this course. Under the direction of the professor these drawing lessons mean much more than a diversion. The ulterior motive of developing a capacity of the eye to see that to which it has been previously blind, is kept in sight.

Some of the students return from vacations expressing wonder at how many objects in the world around them they have been enabled to see as they never saw before, simply by having their attention directed to the study of objects of nature and art by these drawing lessons.

Further along, students who take mechanical drawing, sketch machinery, freehand, after which they may make the finished sketches, go into the machine shop and make the machine itself. Others sketch flowers and plants and altogether this department is one of the most noticeable at the institution. To train the eye and the hand to see and do, as well as to train the mind to think, are kept constantly to the front at the Oregon Agricultural College.

About Oregon Livestock.

At the request of the Oregon Development League, Mr. G. A. Westgate, Secretary of the Portland Country Club and Live Stock Association—the Pacific National Show—has compiled the following on the subject of Oregon live stock.

"To follow President Newell's hundred words on Oregon fruit with a brief statement about live stock brings the realization that Mr. Newell has produced a classic. Still Oregon has won almost as many honors in live stock, enough to convince the great packers of America that the packing plants for the Northwest, Alaska, the Orient, and all the lands touching the Pacific, will be built in Oregon. There are many more millions of profit immediately within reach in this state through the live stock industry, than in connection with any other industrial effort.

"Remember this: Oregon owns the prize dairy cow of the world, and the first prize herd of Shorthorns, as shown at St. Louis. Oregon horses, sheep and swine are also winners, because conditions of soil, climate, water and grasses are winning factors in the production of the best of the four footed.

"Oregon offers the live stock breeder economy in feed, continuous growth, early maturity, quality and soundness, with the world for market. Double your money in live stock while your fruit trees are growing."

Why Not in Benton?

There is no reason why Benton county can not grow apples of gold as well as Hood River, if Benton orchardist will give the same amount of care and attention to their orchards. How do Benton apple growers feel when they read such stories as the following? It's time for this section to be making money in the same way. A dispatch says:

"For fancy Spitzenberg apples $3.27 1-2 a box and for Newton Yellow Pippins $2.75 a box are the prices received by the Hood River apple growers' Union, under its contract for the sale of this year's crop of those varieties to the Davidson Fruit Company, of Hood River. The prices for this season's crop had not heretofore been made public. They are the highest ever realized by the Hood River union. It is estimated that the output of Spitzenbergs will amount to about 12,000 boxes, and of Pippins about 13,000 boxes. Oscar Vanderbilt vice-president of the union, and one of the largest apple growers in the Hood River valley, who is now at the Portland hotel, is the authority for this statement."

Additional Local.

"My guess as to the total enrollment at OAC this year is 950 to 1050. My guess as to the registration at the close of the day, today, is that it will exceed by 100 that of last year on the opening day," was the announcement made by Prof. Horner at the college yesterday forenoon when questioned as to the registration.

Girl Wanted: To work in kitchen, Cauthorn Hall. 81-2

Yesterday was a strenuous day at the college in all departments and today will be but little better. By the end of the week the work will be fairly adjusted and the students will have time to catch their breath and find out where they are "at."

Work is in progress on the new machine shops at OAC which will, when completed, be the most complete in this section of country. The north front is 274 feet in length, the west front 254 feet and the two join and form an ell. A. F. Peterson is the contractor.

Ellsworth (Mark) Hanna left for Corvallis, Friday, to attend the OAC. The young man will graduate from the pharmacy department this year, says the Hood River News Letter.
