NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

A Thing of Beauty and a Credit to the City.

Very few of our citizens realize the importance attached to the imposing structure now in course of construction on the hill adjoining the college grounds, known as the new Y. M. C. A. building. They are aware, perhaps, that the dirt has been removed and that a pile of building material has been used, but they have not stopped to notice the magnificent building or the architectural beauty which characterizes every part of the structure. Nor do they realize the important part it will play with the student body at the college, in the formation of character or moral influence it will have in spreading Christian sentiment among the students now attending this great institution of learning. With the mind of the student thoroughly impressed along these lines, they will go from the college to their homes and there the ameliorating influences here impressed will find lodgment in other hearts and other minds.

Necessity, the mother of invention, impressed the idea of constructing such a building on the minds of the student body, and it assumed a tangible shape under the able leadership of the lamented Clay Shepard, whose soul was enkindled with the fires of enthusiasm for the cause of Christianity. Private donations were made by the students and an appeal to the citizens of Corvallis was not made in vain. Two prominent citizens of Portland gave $1000 each, and further donations came from various sources until the management felt justified in the erection of the building.

The contract was let to Chas. Heckert and Rev. C. T. Hurd was placed in charge as superintendent of construction. Under their able management the building has progressed rapidly and we are assured it will be ready for occupancy by October 1st. They are using great care in the manner of construction, earnestly endeavoring to make it conform to the spirit as well as to the letter of the contract and we feel safe in saying that no fault can be found along this line by the most skeptical.

The building is 50x72, two and one half stories, with basement under the entire building. The first story is built of brick and then comes the belt line that encircles the entire building. The remainder is frame board lined, then covered with building paper and steel lathed, after which will follow concrete cement plaster. Cement sills are built over the windows which are very neat and durable.

The building faces the south and the general appearance, viewed from the outside, is very attractive and reflects great credit on the architect. The porch to the south entrance is 12x30. The floor of the porch is supported by steel girders and floor laid in cement, making it very durable. Cement steps will lead up to the porch. The columns on the porch are built of brick and extend to the second story.

It will be heated by independent steam plant in the basement, and the plumbers, Senger & Freeman, are now at work installing it.

The southwest corner of the basement will have a swimming pool, 19x36 and 8 feet deep, and will be drained by a 6-inch drain tile. Three shower baths are also to be seen separated from view of the main room by marble slabs. A banquet room extends across the east end of the basement from north to south, 20x44, with a fireplace on the side. The entire floor of the basement will be laid in cement.

The entrance to the first floor will be from the south porch to

OAC BOARD OF REGENTS

Buy Twenty Acres to Clear College Way.—Will Pay Nearly $60,000.

An important meeting of the Regents of the Oregon Agricultural College was held today at the office of W. W. Cotton. The board met for the purpose of arranging to purchase 20 acres of land which has been for a long time a hindrance to the progress and development of that institution. The state of Oregon has elected that the agricultural college shall be located at Corvallis but when the site was selected for the erection of the buildings title could not be secured to all of the lands contained within the tract settled upon. Numerous imposing and costly buildings have been constructed and between the buildings were lands owned by private citizens. The meeting today decided to purchase these, says Thursday's Evening Telegram. The state will pay from $1200 to $3000 an acre.

President J. K. Weatherford, of the board of regents, arrived in the city at noon. He said:

"The agricultural college is in splendid condition. We will have from 1500 to 3000 students next year and to accommodate them we will be compelled to ask for an addition to the administration building, but that matter will be taken up at a later meeting. We will complete the new agricultural building by October 1st and have enough money to complete an addition to this building. I note that the good roads conference recommended that the college establish a chair of road building in connection with our engineering department. We have had such a chair for some time, but we will intensify its usefulness by employing more skilled assistants."

Those in attendance at the meeting were Governor Chamberlain, State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. H. Ackerman, President Buxton, of the State Grange, and Regents J. T. Apperson, Oregon City; W. P. Keady, Portland; J. D. Olwell, Central Point; W. W. Pierce, Hot Lake; B. F. Irvin, Corvallis; E. E. Wilson, Corvallis; W. J. Kerr, president of the college faculty, and Regent Mrs. Clara B. Waldo of Salem. Regent W. W. Cotton was absent.

The lobby. This lobby will seat 400 and will be used by the student bodies. It will have paneled wainscoting, 5 feet high. On the east side will be the secretary's office and at the side a neat cloak room. The northwest side will be a trophy room where medals awarded and scalps of football men stored as a warning to all comers. This room will also be used by the Y. W. C. A. girls.

The second story will be used by the various literary societies and is divided into six elegant rooms, which will be equipped with all modern improvements. The third or one half story will be left for future consideration at the hands of the management. The incidental expenses will be furnished by the various literary societies who will give it their attention which means that it will be well taken care of in a financial sense.

We congratulate all who have donated toward its construction, and if you will go and look it over you will not only be pleased with the investment but wish you had given more, and if you made no donation you will feel so humiliated to think that such noble work has been done without your assistance that you will at once draw a check to establish a sinking fund to make needed additions which are sure to follow.

A BEAUTIFUL WEDDING

Celebrated in Corvallis, Thursday Evening.—Colbert-Mallow.

Probably the most beautiful wedding of the year in Corvallis was celebrated Thursday evening at the new home of the young couple on Sixteenth street, when Miss Olive Mallow became the bride of Wallace Colbert of this city. Every appointment was perfect and all went merry as a marriage bell.

A few moments before the appointed time, Mrs. Gertrude Strange, Miss Lena Tartar and Miss Winona Woodward sang a very pretty trio, following which Miss Woodward, at 8:30, went to the piano and began the wedding march. As the music filled the rooms, five little girls came slowly down the stairs. They were little Marie and Gladys Walgamott, nieces of the bride, carrying yards of white ribbon with which they formed an aisle as they entered the parlor and marched to a floral bower in one corner. Next came two more dainty little Misses, Ruth Waters and Maureen McCausland, flower girls, followed by Esther Davis, ring bearer. Alone, behind the ring bearer, came the bride, beautifully gowned in an exquisite costume of cream crepe chiffon over silk, with veil, carrying a shower bouquet of white carnations and ferns. In the floral bower of white and green the bride was met by the groom, and Rev. D. H. Leach of the M. E. church performed the impressive ring ceremony.

About 55 guests extended congratulations and partook of the sumptuous two-course dinner that followed. The bride tossed her bouquet and it was caught by Miss Frances Belknap. The ring in the bride's cake fell to the lot of Miss Callie Howe. Inspiring music was furnished throughout the evening by the Misses Inez Johnson and Winona Woodward.

The decorations were elaborate and beautiful, the parlor being in green and white and the dining room in pink and white sweet peas and festoons of satin ribbon. Many handsome and costly presents were received by the happy couple.

OAC Day at State Fair.

Friday, the fifth day of the great state fair at Salem, has been set apart as Oregon Agricultural College day and we would urge our citizens to lay aside every worldly care and show the officials of the fair association that we appreciate the recognition given our college, which is so dear to the heart of every citizen of Corvallis.

Besides the large exhibit that the Oregon Agricultural College will make at the Oregon State Fair, at Salem, September 14-19, next, the officers of that institution have arranged to give the fair visitors some special entertainment each day. Each afternoon the commodious auditorium adjoining the main pavilion will be darkened and from its platform different members of the faculty will give lectures, illustrated by stereopticon views, pertaining to their respective departments at the college, all of which have a bearing on the agricultural industries of the state.

Friday, the fifth day of the fair, has been set aside as "Agricultural College" day and special efforts will be made to have this the most important occasion of the entire week. The Oregon Agricultural College has the reputation of being one of the leading educational institutions on the Pacific Coast and its participation in the program of the fair shows that its president and his co-workers fully appreciate that the fair is a worthy cause which has been a great factor in the state's development.

Miss Carrie Daneman has been visiting in Portland the past week.

too well and favorably known to need introduction to the public at this time. Both are Corvallis young people who number their friends by the score, and the hearty good wishes of all are extended at this time.

They left Thursday evening by automobile for Albany, en route to Portland, and from there they are to go to either California or Washington on a wedding trip. They will reside in their recently completed home on Sixteenth street, in Corvallis.

That Fire Alarm.

TO THE EDITOR:—There has been some adverse criticism of the action of the operator for the Telephone Company in connection with giving the fire alarm for Wednesday night's fire, and particularly by those who were unable to obtain central. It should be remembered by the public that from 9 o'clock at night until 6 in the morning there is but one operator on duty, and that when an alarm of fire is turned in it is necessary for the operator to give her entire attention to the ringing of the bell, which is accomplished by a mechanism situated in the central office. It is impossible for her to operate this mechanism and answer calls at the same time. Subscribers are therefore asked to be patient when calling central in the night time when an alarm of fire is being given, and to wait until the operator has had an opportunity to finish ringing the bell.

The operator's instructions are that she shall ring the bell regardless of calls and not give attention to her switchboard until the alarm has been sufficiently given. She will then answer calls as speedily as possible. In this connection I would suggest that it would facilitate matters if those who first arrive at the City Hall while the bell is being rung by the operator, would take up the matter and ring the bell from the hall. This would relieve the operator and give her an opportunity to answer calls, thus informing patrons generally of the location of the fire.

W. G. CUMMING,
Asst. Mgr.

The fellow that took W. F. McMahon's money, Thursday night, did a pretty slick job. He sir ply pulled down the window from the top, hiked over it and went upstairs to the foot of the bed where W. F. had left his pants, took them down on the front porch and quietly proceeded to examine the contents of the pockets. In the purse he found about $15 in good, cold cash and appropriated it to his own use, leaving the pocket book on the porch.
