LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Born, Sunday, to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Schriber, a daughter.

Marion Hayden of Alsea was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Miss M. Christensen, the milliner, is suffering from a sprained ankle.

Miss Edna Groves went to Hood River on Thursday to attend the fair.

S. N. and E. L. Shedd went to Newport Thursday to spend a little season of rest.

Mrs. Daisy Porter and children, of Ashland, are visiting in the city. Mrs. Porter was formerly Miss Kitridge and lived near Monroe.

We were favored with a call by L. W. McAdams of Portland, who is in the city in the interest of cranberry lands in the Tillamook bogs. He is a very pleasant gentleman and knows how to talk business.

Dr. Jas. Harper, E. B. Horning, Z. H. Davis, M. S. Woodcock and Norm Lilly were visitors at the Albany Chapter Wednesday night. They were loaded into Rickard's automobile and landed in Albany in 40 minutes.

Mr. Wm. Lane returned from Silver Lake, in Lane county, where he has been looking after property interests. He brought out a fine lot of bunch grasses and stopped over one day in Corvallis. He took them to his ranch near Harrisburg.

The OAC Studio is now open for business and welcomes the students as well as citizens to try our ware. Located just over Blackledge's, one-half block south of Graham & Wells. Come one! Come all!

A. L. Prather has the material on the ground for another nice new house, on his lot facing on VanButen, between 11th and 12th. The man young displays good taste in the matter of construction and certainly has the grit, as he works day and night.

Asa Alexander was celebrating his 58th anniversary on Wednesday by washing the windows at the Benton county National Bank. He carries his age remarkably well and seems as full of snap and vinegar as many young men of 40. This, perhaps, is due to early piety.

We are informed by Sheriff Gellatly that there are perhaps $1,000 of taxable assessments on which nothing has been paid. There is also quite a little list of those who have paid one-half the assessment and are certainly acting unwise by waiting for further penalties to be added.

Captain L. B. Chambers came in from Potlatch, Idaho, Wednesday, and was given a hearty reception by the OAC boys when he landed at the depot, thus not only showing their appreciation of his services at the college but their pleasure at the honor conferred upon him in the recent appointment.

John Curn, an old citizen of Benton county, is very sick at the home of Mr. John Biers. He is suffering from Asthma with a complication of other diseases. His son and his wife came in from Oakland California on Monday and will look after him. The daughter-in-law is a professional nurse.

Did you get one of those beautiful waists at the Elite?

The writer attended a very interesting meeting of the Eastern Star Lodge Tuesday evening and was highly gratified to see the prosperous condition of the order. Rev. J. R. N. Bell gave a very interesting talk along his topical lines in connection with the work. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies. The evening was pleasantly and profitably spent.

The kind of kid gloves that satisfy are sold by the Elite.

The services at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning were exceedingly interesting. It was communion day and the house was well filled. Four names were added to the church roll. The evening service was principally devoted to song by the elegant choir, interspersed with a few snap shots by the pastor to set the people thinking along religious lines. Rev. Bell knows just how to do that part of it and is very popular with all classes of people.

College View Hotel, between Depot and College—Elmore Hotel, opposite Court House. $1 per day; $3.50 per week; $20 per month. 84-92

Prof. and Mrs. Fulkerson entertained the teachers of the public and high schools Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 5 at their home on Ninth street. Dainty refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. Among the interesting features of the hour was the organization of a club by the teachers to be devoted to educational and social pursuits. The forming of such a club will be of great benefit to the principal and teachers and is a matter of congratulations.

Mr. S. L. Kline went to Portland on Tuesday and heard the speech delivered by Senator Beveridge at the Armory. He presents a glowing picture of the enthusiastic receptions given the Senator and was so thoroughly impressed with the eloquent word painting as he wore the mask from the Bryan fallacies that he immediately wired the President that Oregon was safe. Being a thoroughly business man Mr. Kline knows what the election of Mr. Bryan would mean hence his enthusiasm.

Hon. John Barrett, Director of the International Bureau of American Republics at Washington, D. C., who was in attendance at the National Irrigation Congress last week in Albuquerque, will be present at the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress at San Francisco, then comes North for a visit to points in Oregon and Washington. His addresses will be non-political and will deal with the creation and fostering of the trade of the Pacific Coast with South America, a subject upon which he has bestowed special attention.

Mrs. P. O. Wilson is clearing up her business affairs and expects to leave Corvallis in a short time, going from here to New York to make her home with a daughter. For many years Mrs. Wilson has been a resident of Corvallis and has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances who will miss her motherly advice and kindly greeting. Hers has been a life of usefulness, and as the shadows of old age fall across her pathway she can have no remorse of conscience but calmly await the setting of the sun, looking forward to the glorious future that awaits her on the other shore.

The people of the Northwest, but particularly those of Portland, were not entirely satisfied with the attendance at the show of the Portland Country Club and Livestock Association, and immediately upon the close of that meeting a canvass was commenced for 1909 season tickets. The success of this campaign has been phenomenal. The tickets are $5 each, and it is proposed to sell 5,000 of them and from the present outlook this can be accomplished without any trouble. It is the intention of the committee to have special guaranteed trains from points throughout Oregon, Washington and Idaho to bring an attendance, including those from Portland, of 150,000.

Prof. O. Bousbrake representative elect, paid us a friendly visit yesterday.

A reception was tendered Rev. Leech and family Tuesday evening by the members of the M. E. church, and a large crowd was present. Short talks were made by the presidents of the various societies in the church, in which they expressed their pleasure and appreciation of the fact that the family will remain in Corvallis, and were earnestly responded to by Rev. Leech. Ice cream and wafers were served the guests and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

If you are a lover of art just step in to Horning & McKenzie's and note the contrast between the beautiful china displayed in the window and the hand painting produced by the fertile brain of E. B. Horning. One is a thing of beauty; the other a thing—without any beauty, but worthy the cause it represents.

Tuesday evening the members of the Congregational Christian Endeavor society met with their pastor, Rev. Hughes, at his home on Fifth street and held their monthly business meeting and social hour. In the games which followed, Prof. C. L. Knopf, one of the new and popular professors at OAC, won first prize, the guests being supplied with gum which they were instructed to chew and with a card and toothpicks were to mold it into little animals. Prof. Knopf's work was splendid and was a subject of general comment. Mr. Hall, a senior at OAC, won the second prize, and several others were worthy of mention. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Hughes and music closed a pleasant and profitable evening.

If you get it at the Elite it is sure to please.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

The Necessity For Secondary Agricultural Schools Described.
[Special Correspondence.]

Of late there has been a marked increase in the number of agricultural colleges, and they are all improving rapidly in their equipment and facilities and are all engaging more in various forms of university extension work, such as farmers' institutes, correspondence courses, reading courses and experimental researches. They are thus attracting a large and ever larger class of students. But all this development of agricultural colleges and their work has only brought out the fact that under the best conditions and working to the fullest extent of their possibilities they can meet the educational requirements of only a small fraction of the youth upon our farms.

If any considerable body of the farm boys and girls are to receive definite instruction in the principles of agriculture (not to mention the class of city bred boys who are interested and want definite instruction as to farm life), there must be supplied a system of schools of a lower grade than the college or what is known as secondary schools of agriculture. There is a strong demand for and a disposition manifest to place the teachings of agriculture in the curriculum of our public and graded schools, but neither their present condition nor the possibilities of their future development promise any very definite hope of great value in this direction. Without doubt their courses of instruction could be much improved so as to cultivate a love for and an interest in nature study and impart many facts that would be of lasting benefit to the young people who shall go out from these schools to live upon the farms; but these schools will never be able to teach the sciences relating to agriculture itself without interfering with the general scope of their work. What always has must always continue to constitute the principal work of the schools. To these general lines of work may well be added a limited amount of nature study, of wood working, domestic science and the elements of agriculture, but not enough instruction regarding any art can be given to perfect the student in any of these, and especially in this true of agriculture and the science of farm economy. This must be taught if taught at all in schools of higher grade and yet to be within the reach of all must still be secondary to the college and of easy access to all who would avail themselves of the benefit. W. N. GILES.
