Hunting Forbidden.

$50 reward is hereby offered for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who trespassed upon my lands, situated west of Corvallis, on or about Sunday the 27th day of September, 1908, and while there shot and crippled one of my registered ewes. The punishment of trespassing upon enclosed lands of another, while hunting, accompanied with a gun and dog is a fine of from $15 to $100 or imprisonment from 7 days to 100 days or both fine and imprisonment. The penalties should be inflicted for each offense, because men raising stock cannot afford to have it killed by those directly violating the laws of the state.

M. S. WOODCOCK,
Corvallis, Oregon.

Pacific National Fair and Live Stock Show

At Portland, Sept. 21st to 26th, inclusive. For this occasion the Southern Pacific Company will sell round trip tickets on Sept. 21st, 22nd and 23rd, with final limit for return Sept. 27th, 1908 at rate of $3.50. Children between 5 and 12 years of age, $1.75. Parties may go or return via Albany or west side, as desired. R. C. LINVILLE, Agent.

Trans - Mississippi Commercial Congress.

Will be held at San Francisco October 6th to 10th, 1908. For this occasion the Southern Pacific Company will sell round trip tickets from Albany to San Francisco, on October 3rd and 4th only, at the low rate of $25. These tickets are limited for return 29 days from date of sale. Tickets will be good for first class continuous passage in both directions.

R. C. LINVILLE, Agent.

Reward for Trespassers.

$20 Reward is hereby offered for the arrest and conviction of any person or persons for trespassing at any time upon my lands, near Corvallis, Oregon, while hunting thereon or when found carrying a gun, pistol or other firearms, or accompanied with a dog or dogs, on or across said lands. This is made necessary because I have had valuable stock crippled several times through carelessness of hunters.

The penalty for trespassing upon the enclosed lands of another, while hunting, accompanied with gun or dog is a fine from $15 to $100, or imprisonment from 7 to 100 days or both fine and imprisonment. Posting of notices to warn trespassers is not necessary. The crime by statute is made a misdemeanor. These penalties will be inflicted unless such parties absent themselves.

Corvallis, Oregon.

ROOSEVELT'S STORIES

Of His Experiences in Africa This Year.

The Gazette will soon begin to publish "Roosevelt's Hunting Stories," written by Theodore Roosevelt and completely illustrated. The publication of these stories will be according to the custom heretofore of the Gazette to publish popular stories during the long evenings of fall and winter, when readers enjoy interesting reading matter during the long evenings after the busy work has become more quiet. It is now time that all persons subscribe for the Gazette, who wish to read these thrilling stories, as they will soon appear in the paper. Similar writings of President Roosevelt are to be paid $2 per word for the writings by eminent publishers.

Subscribe now for the Gazette so you may not miss any of this interesting reading matter. These stories are complete with the excitement and dangers of the chase. They breathe the free air of the mountain and the plain, and reflect the glow of the camp fire and express the unique personality of the author.

During the fall and winter the Gazette will also publish others of the latest popular stories.

A MILITARY MARTYR.

The Tragic Fate of the Drummer of Castine.

In 1779 the British built a fort commanding the bay of Castine and the little village of Pentagoet and called it Fort George. It was constructed with four bastions, marking the four points of the compass, and with an elaborate labyrinth of cells far underground, where the only light that ever illuminated the moldy walls was that shed feebly by a sentry's lantern. In the hollow square formed by the bastions the gibbet was erected on which Ball and Elliott were hanged a few years later. Soon after the fort was finished it was evacuated by the British, who did not again set foot within its frowning walls until September, 1814, when General Gasselin, with 3,500 men, came sailing in from Halifax and again took the town after a half hearted defense.

The invaders were not altogether unwelcome to the thrifty inhabitants of the Castine country, as they scattered the king's gold with a lavish hand and kept open port for the traders. But if they rewarded generously they also punished severely, and when for the second time Fort George was evacuated the following April the underground cells were full of prisoners, many of whom were redcoats awaiting sentence for breaches of military discipline. All the prisoners were released on the morning of the evacuation except a drummer, who was confined in a cell at the extreme end of the subterranean passage, and in the excitement of a hurried departure he was forgotten.

It must have been several hours before the silence, unbroken by the footfalls of the jailer or the songs and shouts of the other prisoners, made it plain to the doomed drummer that the fort was deserted. His drum had been left with him, and, seizing the sticks, he began to beat upon it furiously in the hope that some loiterer above might hear and come to his rescue. How many hours or how many days he drummed frantically away in the pitch darkness and gravelike silence of his living tomb can only be conjectured, but villagers passing near heard the muffled sound of rattle and reveille, tattoo, assembly, charge and retreat and the regular beat for columns to march by. The superstitious country people ascribed the drumming to supernatural cause and gave the fort a wide berth. The strokes, becoming fainter and fainter, soon ceased altogether, and it was not until years afterward that the underground cells were accidentally explored and the skeleton of the drummer, still dressed in faded scarlet, was discovered lying by his moldering drum.

Long after the bastion walls crumbled and the site of the fort was almost obliterated with weeds and bushes the beating of a ghostly drum was said to haunt the place with its sound on each recurring 15th of April, but as the surrounding wood was the home of hundreds of woodpeckers the mystery was easily explained.—New York Press.

TILLAMOOK CRANBERRY LANDS

I have secured for sale to investors of Corvallis and vicinity twenty acres of a tract of 103 acres of as fine cranberry land as there is on the coast, and am selling this land in tracts of one or more acres on such terms that a reasonable cash payment and for a limited time, will secure acreage on this property, which will be brought to full bearing for purchasers by present owners. Other Pacific Coast cranberry lands are paying which must increase with the population and wealth of the United States as there are, according to the United States census report of 1900,

MONTHLY PAYMENTS OF $10

PROFITS OF $250 TO $800 AN ACRE

Only 25000 Acres of Cranberry Lands in U. S.

of which less than 4000 acres remain to be improved. MR. CUSTER, salesman for this property, will be at my office for the next week.
