A. H. Deputy, a former Corvallis citizen, but now a resident of Seaview, was shaking hands with old friends on the streets Friday.

The first steamer on the river this fall came up last night and landed here about 6 o'clock. It is very pleasing to hear the whistle.

Where are you going tonight? "Hans & Nix," a polite comedy set to music, will entertain at the opera house. Arrange your troubles and be on hand.

Miss Juliet Greer, dean of the school of domestic science and art of OAC, will be one of the instructors at the Clackamas County teachers' institute to be held in the Barclay school building at Oregon City, November 5, 6.

S. L. Kline was one of the guests at a private dinner given Saturday at the Hotel Corvallis to Senator Bourne and Chas. B. Merrick and John C. Young of Portland.

M. Mitchell is erecting a nice new porch in front of his house on 3d and Washington streets which will add very materially to the general appearance of the home.

The Home Telephone Company has made arrangements to furnish election returns free of charge at the Commercial Club Rooms and at the office of the company.

Mrs. A. J. Brown, nee Twomey, the former trimmer at Mrs. Wetherla's has left for Portland. She has been succeeded by Miss Julia House, an experienced millinery artist.

H. Hobson, of Jean, Washington, was looking over the city Monday with a view of buying a home. He is a very pleasant gentleman and is much pleased with the situation.

Messrs. Geis and Preston have rented the old Wiley restaurant and fitted it up for both meals and lunch. These gentlemen are hustlers and seem to understand their business.

H. A. Wicks, of Albany, was taking a birds eye view of the city on Sunday. He used to be a good citizen of Corvallis and we would not object if he should decide to come back home.

A. E. Wann, of St. Andrews, Washington, is in Corvallis looking for a home. Scarcely a day passes without some good brother knocking at the door and we always extend a hearty welcome.

Dr. Withycombe gave a very interesting lecture to men in the Agricultural Hall on Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The Dr. is a very interesting talker and devotes much time in the interest of the young men at the college.

The Merchants' association will meet Friday evening, November 6th. A full attendance of members is desired as the question of parcels post, city improvements, street matters and other subjects of importance will be discussed.

The October number of the Philomath College Chimes is out and is crowded with interesting matter connected with the well known institution at that place. The Chimes has been ringing for four seasons and this issue marks the beginning of another successful year.

The county court has shown a commendable spirit in the many little improvements around the court house and yards, but one convenience is still lacking. Place a light at the front entrance of the court house. It is very dark coming down the steps after night. Some person may get hurt.

Mrs. F. M. Day and her grandson, left Monday for Portland to visit Mrs. Day's sister, Mrs. A. F. Hirshner for a few days before returning to California. Mrs. Day is a step-daughter of Mrs. J. Mason and this is her first visit to Corvallis since her marriage 30 years ago.

Prof. Angell, director of athletics, together with Captain Pendergrass, left Friday for Seattle, Wash., to arrange the OAC game with the University of Washington, to take place at Seattle Thanksgiving day. Mr. Angell will endeavor to arrange for Seattle to play here next year.

The lunch counter, opposite Kline's store, has been remodeled and is to be conducted by George Geis, of the College View Hotel, as a first class short-order restaurant. Meals will be served at all hours, day and night. Several more tables have been placed in the place to cater to the family trade.

Election returns will be announced from the opera house stage during the performance of "Hans & Nix" tonight. You can combine business with pleasure—be entertained and hear election news at the same time. Arrangements have been made for a special wire to the opera house, and messages will be announced as soon as received.

The latest song show, "Hans & Nix," will play at the opera house tonight. It is chock full of music that makes you tingle songs that reach the heart, laughs a-plenty, girls as pretty as their costumes and as tuneful as nightingales. An extraordinary company of thirty people and the original dancing Kandy Kids. Election returns will be read from the stage.

J. C. Lowe, the telephone man had a severe jolt Sunday. He was riding his wheel at a rapid gate on the walk in front of the Gazette office when the handle bar came loose throwing him on the sidewalk with great force. It looked as though a first-class funeral would be in order for he was unconscious for some time. It's a hard matter to kill a Kentuckian at election time.

On account of a hole in the cable some 50 or 60 telephones on 9th and Jackson streets are out of commission and will be until repairs can be made. In an interview with Manager Lowe he states that the matter will have attention at once. He is as truthful as George Washington ever was, hence you will see his men jumping around like a hen on a hot griddle until sweet communion is established.

A good story is told on Harry Circle, the Portland policeman who spent a few days in hunting with Monroe Cameron down in the valley south of town. They killed four nice Belgian hares, brought them to town and had them nicely dressed and cooked. Circle undertook the herculean task of cleaning up the platter, leaving a nice little pile of bones on the plate. When he had finished Monroe pictured the hares as direct descendants of Tam Case's cross and Circle has been in the hospital at Portland ever since.

The reception tendered the young men of Prof. J. B. Horner's Bible class at the Barden home on Thursday night deserves more than a passing notice, as about 30 young men and their lady friends were royally entertained by these most excellent people. Refreshments were served, games played, a speech of welcome by Prof. Horner and response on part of the young people by Mrs. Barden. But the most gratifying feature of the event is the interest taken by the young men in biblical study under the instruction of Prof. Horner who spends an hour of valuable time every Sabbath morning at the Presbyterian church with these young people, thus storing their minds with useful knowledge, which is an essential feature in a finished education. It is interesting to look at this class of bright young men and particularly pleasing to Brother Horner to know that his efforts are appreciated.

Our citizens should be getting ready for the free mail delivery which has been arranged for Nov. 15th. It would certainly make it nice for the delivery boy if you would put a nice little box on the front porch to receive your mail thus saving lots of time for the boy as well as giving you assurance of careful delivery. The carriers will be Harry B. Harlan, Ralph Lane and J. T. Scott. If you will give this matter some attention you will help to make the system very acceptable to the public and particularly convenient to yourself during the rainy season.

The first number of the Corvallis Lyceum Course occurred at the armory Thursday evening after the Gazette press hour and was in every way worthy of the liberal patronage it received. The number was a Concert Company, four musical artists, each one of whom is so highly talented that no name can be agreed upon. Every number proved the performer an artist in his or her line, and the audience gave them a warm and hearty reception. Not often does such talent come to Corvallis and the course bids fair to become one of the most popular features of the season's entertainments.
