The purser and boat's crew of the steamer State of Virginia landed at Sherbrooke. They left Sable Island Sunday when all the passengers are dever well. The weather had been fine after leaving New York till they got into the fog in which the vessel went ashore Saturday night. Assistance will be sent from here to passengers on the Island. The yeasel is likely to be a total wreck. Four women and five children are lost. The purser says that after the steamer struck a gun was fired, which brought the governor of the island. Mr. McDonald, to our assistance in a surf boat. This boat took ashore 11 women, 4 men, the purser, 4 officers and the doctor, all of whom were safely landed, though the surf was very heavy. Two boats left the ship with 18 persons. The second when 50 feet from the shore capsized and all the occu paints were thrown into the water. Presidential Possibilities.

New York, July 15.—The Herald, speculating upon the presidential election possibilities, says: If the four California districts should return Republican representatives at the election two months hence, which is not improbable, and if the next year the nomination of three presidential candidates should happen to throw the election into the house—which is at least possible—in that case the Rev. Gilbert De la Matyr's vote in the house might make a president for four years, beginning the 4th of March. If the Republicans carry California, the house, voting for president, would be equally divided, counting the Indiana delegation as Democratic; but De la Matyr's vote, cast with the six Republicans in the delegation, might decide the choice for president,

An emissary has already approached the opposition with the subject of a compromise, but Mr. Coleman's answer was that Schultz must abdicate and pay up what he owes or take the pensity of the law. Cappers of the Schultz ring, in order to shield their masters from popular indignation, have circulated broadcast upon the streets reports that Schultz was not the real controller of Bullion and Exchequer, and have hinted that the bonaura firm was the power behind the throne, at whose direction the assessments were levied. On hearing these rumors, Mr. Coleman immediately waited upon Mr. Flood and told him what was said on the streets. Flood immediately etamped these rumors as falsehoods.
