Santa Fe, May 20.—A letter to the Daily New Mexican from Fort Wingate, states that on the 18th, a party of drunken Navajo Indians attacked a buckboard near Blue Water, cut the mail sacks open and threatened the driver. There was a large package of silver in the mail, but the Indians did not molest it. Fears are expressed that this is a premonition of an outbreak on the part of the Navajos, and encouraged by the success of Victoria's band. These Indians can't now be whipped by the small number of troops in the tarritory. in the territory, and if reinforced by the Navajos, 10,000 troops will hardly be able to subdue them. The present insubordinate spirit of the Navajos is attributed to their not liking their agent, and letters have been sent to the interior department, signed by all the agency employes,
