

On an English Railway.
Bells are scarcely needed, for all crossings are guarded by gates and attended by gatemen, who close them at least ten minutes before the passage of a train is expected.

"Small Fruits."
The following is from the Burlington Hawkeye:
"Here rolled out here from the grocery store a little green apple, as it passed on the sidewalk for a moment's chat with the banana peel."

The Wheel Horse.
There is a wheel horse in every family, some one who takes the load on all occasions. It may be the oldest daughter, possibly the father, but generally it is the mother.

Pool Friends.
Nothing hurts a man; nothing hurts a man so much as to feel friends. A fool friend is the sewer of bad news, of slander and all base and unpleasant things.

Watch Young Orchards.
Allow no green hands to prune them unless you are with them. A man will then show some reliable and experienced pruner.

WIT AND HUMOR.
Virtue comes in small packages, but vice by the barrel.
The game of Smith was sacked by Pochobas trumping her father's club on a soft heart.

AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS.
"Yea, they had a hard time of it there," says a short, hollow, keen-eyed man, glancing over the illustrated newspaper which contains an engraving of Mr. Augustus Van Cleave's fine monument to the "unknown dead" at Salisbury, North Carolina.

"Too late to slap up," muttered the engineer as he opened the third door of the wider, accelerating if possible the speed of the train. The horse was standing with its tail toward the approaching locomotive.

There is never any time that seems convenient for the mother of little children to leave home on her own useful errand. "Trus," said the banana peel, "you cannot lift up a 200 pound man and break a cellar door with him, but you can lift up a 200 pound man and break a door with him."

An Engineer's Need of Nerve.
Unquestionably the bravest men in America are those who can stand upon the foot-boards of the locomotives which draw the great passenger trains. But few persons are aware of it, but on the leading railways, where connections must be made if possible, only engineers known to the public are allowed to do so.

The Cowardly Lawyer.
You recognize the courteous lawyer at once. He places a chair graciously for his client, and then sits down in the chair, and looks at the lawyer in a deprecating way. He says the fees to the clerk before he has taken a single word, and draws the bill out of his pocket book slowly, one by one, as gently as he would draw a bill from the coat of a millionaire.

George Abraham was extravagantly fond of cold cabbage, and one day, seeing that quite a dismal wife let after dinner, asked his wife if she would make him a cabbage salad.

He was a young man in Germany, by the name of Hermann Uthman, without arms, who is said to be an admirable violinist.

There was a Kansas City reporter on the train, visiting some relatives in New Jersey a few weeks ago. His name was to be very much puzzled over the Democratic state of affairs in our Republic.
