POOR SHEEP.

The prospect for sheepraisers is not altogether pleasing at this season of the year in Southern Oregon. Those who have not overcrowded their ranges will not be much losers; but those who have thought the more sheep the better, and have crowded their pastures without consideration will lose at least one-third of their flocks before the winter is over. The trouble, in the first place, is that our stock-raisers have not planted any lasting grasses, but depended alone on the native varieties. These have in the sheep ranges been almost entirely tramped out, and in them it has only been during favorable seasons that the sheep have fared well enough in the fall to be able to withstand the hardships of winter. The mortality in sheep last winter was more owing to the scarcity of grass in the fall months than to cold weather. And it is beyond doubt a fact that we have less grass this year at this time than in November last year, and in consequence the sheep are in worse condition to meet the winter. If the sheep are poorer than they were last year at this time, and with less feed, it is but reasonable to suppose the loss in flocks will be greater.

The want of forethought in our sheepraisers, in not planting hardy varieties of grass, is now established, we think. Were they to look to such work their sheep would not be to-day trying to eke out a starvation living on barren hills, nor would they die during the winter for the reason they had starved nearly to death during the fall. The native grass on the hills will not grow thrifty and become fattening unless it has a start from early fall showers; and it is true, while late rains may bring forth grass, that same grass does not mature and have proper strengthening powers. Grass to grow properly must have the warm rays of the sun; and if the variety is not hardy enough to hold its own against a drouth, comparatively speaking, similar to the one we have experienced this fall in Southern Oregon, until the rains come, in the meantime gathering fattening substances, then it is of no account; for this year, before the grass can come, the sun will be too far in the south to give the grass its necessary aid. Let our sheepraisers think of this; and let them remember that while we say one-third of the sheep in Southern Oregon will perish this year, to see if we are not a prophet when next spring arrives.

Jacob Thomas, a St. Louis cooper, came home drunk the other evening. He retired to his room. Not long after closing the door his wife heard a pistol shot. Knowing he was drunk she did not go into the room. She said says she thought he had discharged the pistol for amusement. She heard him breathing very hoarsely for awile, but suddenly all was hushed and she knew he must be asleep. She did not retire until about half-past nine. When she went into the room she found her husband in his cutomary place on the front side of the bed. She got in at the foot and climbed over to the other side. She did not awake until nearly nine o'clock the next morning. When she got up to dress she was surprised to see a pistol in the clenched fist of her husband. Looking closer she could see blood on his face. She called him, shook him, and found that he was dead. He had shot himself.

There are some republicans (? in town who say they have "spotted" other republicans who voted for Hancock. Well, this may be true; yet we find, strange as it may seem, the fellows "spotting" others, are the very same republicans who scratched Hon. E. B. Watson in June in favor of P. P. Prim, the democratic nominee for Supreme Judge! Those very men may be "spotted" also.

A young man named Noftsinger was hanged at Gainsville, Texas, a few months since, for the murder of a man named Kline. The evidence showed that the murder was committed on a warm summer night, while Kline and his wife were sleeping out on the porch, his head being blown to atoms with a shotgun. The widow of the murdered man was recently confined with twins, thought she was going to die, and confessed that she prepared the pallet on the porch for the deed to be committed, and was not beside him when the deed was committed, as believed, but had arisen while her husband was asleep that the assassins might do their work. She says the shots were fired by one Gardiner, but he was seconded by Noftsinger. The latter was her lover before her marriage with Kline. The woman is recovering and will probably get well

The Dom Pedro II. railroad is largest and with perhaps one exception, the most important in Brazil. The total length of the main line is 365 miles, and extensions are made almost every year. The road was commenced under the management of an incorporated company, interest of 7 per cent on the capital stock being guaranteed by the government. But in building the first portion of the road it was necessary to cross the mountains near Rio, and by the time a hundred miles were completed the capital was entirely exhausted. In 1865 the government bought the road of the stockholders, and it has since been built and run as a branch of the imperial service. On the invested capital of rather more than $40,000,000 the government realizes an average yearly income of five and one-half per centum yearly.

A wrinkle to brain-workers—especially for those who are suddenly called upon for an extra amount of work. Too generally they fly to tea and coffee, powerful auxiliaries undoubtedly, but they exact too heavy payment for their services. Brillat-Savan recommends a cup of chocolate, with the smallest piece of amber added as one would sugar, though not a substitute for sugar. He declares this mixture enabled him to get through an immense amount of work, while allowing him to sleep tranquilly when his labors were over. On the other hand two cups of coffee prevented him from sleeping forty hours. Marshal Richelieu, who took Minorca from the English, was the inventor of this innocuous stimulant. Its only fault is that it costs money.

A man at Antwerp, Michigan, thought he discovered the way to throw his sister-in-law out of his house, without committing what the law regards as an assault. This was to take up the chair in which she sat and dump it out of the window, including its occupant. He had a legal right, according to his theory, to do what he pleased with his own furniture. He executed his plan with violence. Though he was careful not to touch the woman, she was badly hurt by the fall. A justice disregarded his argument and fined him $25.

In illustration of the peculiar dangers which attend the bringing up of babies in St. Louis, a paper of that city relates the following: In the parks of this noted summer resort some of the benches have but one standard, and the other day, after one of the nurse girls set a baby down on one of these benches, and turned away to devote herself to her duty of gossip, a substantial gentleman sat down on the other end of the bench, and, as it had no leg the baby flew up into a tree and had to be taken down by the man with a step ladder.

The consumption of mules and horseflesh is steadily increasing in France. The weight has risen from 171,300 pounds in 1866 to 1,982,620 pounds in 1879. In the principal cities of the province the consumption of horse flesh may be considered to have fairly taken root. The average price of horse meat is from 25 to 35 cents per pound. Each horse furnishes about four hundred weight of meat, which is capable of being prepared in many ways, such as pot-au-feu, boiled, roast, hashed, haricot, jugged, fillet, etc.

We should all go to work, now the election is over, to build up the county. Douglas county needs many improvements in the way of county roads; she needs branch lines of railroads to the coast. Let us pull off our coats and go to work in this direction.

FELLOWS'
Compound
SYRUP OF
HYPO-PHOS-PHITES

Consumption—Bronchitas—Asthma.

WHERE Fellows' Compound Syrup useless in all other diseases, the benefit which it undoubtedly yields in consumption and other diseases of the Respiratory organs would vindicate its claim to the attention of every medical practitioner. From the statistics of England and America it is estimated that nine-tenths of the entire deaths is caused by consumption alone. If the syrup is used perseveringly it subdues the tendency to consumption, and in many confirmed cases, as in that of the inventor, it has effected a cure.

Indigestion and costiveness almost always arise from weakness of the nerves and muscles of the bowels. In such cases, Fellows' Syrup of Hypophosphites has proved itself of the greatest service. The evacuations soon become copious and healthy.

This syrup will cure pulmonary consumption in the first stage, and will give great relief and prolong life in the second and third. It will cure asthma; bronchitis caryngitis, and coughs. It will cure all lure all diseases originating from want of muscular action and nervous force.

PUBLIC SPEAKERS AND SINGERS

Will find this syrup of inestimable value. A dose should be taken before speaking or singing.

Aphonia, or loss of voice is usually cured by a few doses. We have known cases where a single dose has been effectual.

S. Jacobs, M. D., writes:

"I had occasion to use your syrup in a case of Aphonia which would not yield to to regular treatment; it proved to be all that you claimed for it, having acted with expedition and entire satisfaction."

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a imilar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this, under any circumstances.

I used a Plummer Fruit Dryer bought of Grubbe & Co., last year and dried nearly 10,000 pounds of apples, for which I realized ten cents per pound. It did better work than was promised and I made more money than I could from any other business. I only ran the machine two months.
