

A POLITICAL CYCLONE
REPUBLICANISM REPUDIATED

We give the latest election news up to the time of going to press, from the dispatches to the associated press. They may be changed somewhat but are in the main correct.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.
Election close. Hale, Republican, probably elected Governor. Both Republican Congressmen elected.

VERMONT.
The joint assembly of the senate and house elected Homer E. Royce chief justice of the supreme court, and T. P. Redfield, Jonathan Ross, H. Henry, Powers Wheeler, G. Vasey, R. Tatt and J. W. Powell Justices of supreme court.

MASSACHUSETTS.
Ben Butler elected Governor by 25,000. The Democrats elect four congressmen out of 12. A gain of 3.

CONNECTICUT.
The State Democratic ticket is elected. The legislature is Republican. The Democrats elect 3 congressmen, the Republicans 1.

NEW YORK.
Cleveland, Democrat, has 174,000 majority. The entire Democratic state ticket elected. Both branches of legislature Democratic with a majority of 50 on joint ballot. Congressmen, Dem. 19, Rep. 15.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Pattison, Dem., has 27,000 plurality. The State Democratic ticket is elected. Republicans lose 6 congressmen, legislature probably Republican by a small majority.

NEW JERSEY.
The Democrats have a clear majority on joint ballot. Congressmen, Dem. 3, Rep. 4. Robeson is defeated.

DELAWARE.
Stockler, Democrat, for Governor, 1,535. For Congress, Love, Democrat, has 2,280 majority.

MARYLAND.
Democrats elect four Congressmen, Republican two.

VIRGINIA.
The readjusters have probably carried the State. The Congressional ticket is even.

NORTH CAROLINA.
The Democrats have elected every Congressman, except in the second district, where O'Hara, Republican, had no opposition. The Legislature will be Democratic.

SOUTH CAROLINA.
Returns indicate the election of six Democratic Congressmen.

GEORGIA.
The Democrats have elected everything.

ALABAMA.
The only real contests in the State for Congressmen were between Herndon, Democrat, and Smith, Republican, in the first district; Herbert, Democrat, and Rice, Republican, in the second; Shelley, Democrat, and Craig, Republican, in the eighth. All have gone Democratic. The third district elects Oates, the fifth Williams, the sixth Hewitt, the seventh Forrey. Pryor will be the only new member.

MISSISSIPPI.
Everything Democratic.

LOUISIANA.
Democratic.

TEXAS.
The entire Democratic ticket is elected.

TENNESSEE.
The Democratic State, Congressional and Legislative ticket elected.

KENTUCKY.
All Democratic Congressmen elected except Culbertson in the ninth district.

INDIANA.
Democrats claim the State by 10,000. The Democrats have nine Congressmen, Republicans four, a gain of four. The Democrats have a clear majority in the Legislature on joint ballot.

ILLINOIS.
Returns from the State are still incomplete and at this hour it is still impossible to state the result, which is estimated to be very close. The Republicans will have a majority of three to five on joint ballot in the State Legislature, though the Democrats will probably have a majority in the house. Latest returns indicate that on Congressmen the Republicans held their own, while the Democrats have gained the additional member given under the re-districting.

MICHIGAN.
Republican Governor defeated. Both parties claim the State. Returns incomplete.

WISCONSIN.
The Republicans carry the State ticket. Additional returns to noon make sure the election of five Republicans and four Democratic Congressmen, a Democratic gain of two.

IOWA.
From returns received, the State Register puts the Republican majority in the State at 40,000, with nine Republican Congressmen.

MINNESOTA.
The Republican ticket entire is probably elected by reduced majorities.

NEBRASKA.
As far as can be estimated from scattering returns the Republican State ticket will receive about 15,000 majority. The woman suffrage amendment was defeated.

WYOMING.
M. E. Post, Democrat, is elected to Congress.

KANSAS.
Glick, Democrat, is elected Governor. Democrats claim one Congressman.

COLORADO.
The Democratic state ticket is elected by about 3,500. The Congressional ticket by 1,000. The legislature is Democratic.

ARIZONA.
Oury, Dem., elected to congress and the entire Democratic ticket.

NEVADA.
Returns show the election of the Democratic state, congressional and legislative ticket.

CALIFORNIA.
Stoneman, Dem. elected Governor by 15,000 majority. The balance of the state ticket elected by 10,000 and upwards. The Democrats in San Francisco made a clean sweep of the municipal ticket. The Democrats have a working majority in the legislature. Democrats have elected all the congressmen. A private dispatch dated the 9th inst., says: "Victory is ours, we have carried everything."

THE RESULT.

The result of the elections on last Tuesday surprised even the most ardent Democrat. The vote of New York and Pennsylvania was expected—of course no one anticipated such an overwhelming majority—but when the tidal wave swept the whole Union from New Hampshire to California it demonstrated that the people at last had determined to assert their rights. The Republicans attribute their defeat to Stalwartism and confidently predict that now the "bosses" have been defeated the true Republican party will regain its ascendancy and again control the government. They also predict that the Democrats, having the control of congress, will make such mistakes as to give a Republican victory in 1884. They are welcome to all the consolation that this view of the question affords them. It may be admitted that the victory in New York and Pennsylvania may be due to the divisions in the Republican party, but the general uprising of the people throughout the whole United States indicates that the people have determined to relegate the whole Republican party to private life, that the corruption, the oppression of the high tariff, the overwhelming power of corporations fostered by that party must be put an end to, and to accomplish this work the government must be placed in the hands of the Democratic party. Let us thank God that our day of deliverance has come.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Mr. Richard Proctor, the noted astronomer, though not an astrologist, predicts that the end of the world is at hand. He is confident the comet which recently astonished the universe by its untimely appearance, the one so loved of lovers last year, is now rapidly approaching the sun, and will disappear in that body next year. The consequence of such a catastrophe can only be surmised, but as Mr. Proctor has been recently married the second time he is inclined to take a gloomy view of the situation, and predicts the end of the world.

It is not worth while worrying, says the Courier-Journal, over this prediction; the comet is beyond the jurisdiction of the planet earth, and is no more responsible than an independent voter in Ohio. No one can by taking thought prevent the occurrence, so it should be treated philosophically. While most of us would consent to a postponement of the matter, it will, after all, relieve us of many perplexities, solve many doubts and settle many vexed questions. If assurance can be given that Mr. Proctor is correct in his prognostications, the nation escapes any action on the report of the tariff commission; the manufacturers need not prepare for a reduction of subsidies and dividends; the Presidential contest of 1884, the preliminary canvass, the conventions, the ratification meetings, the tampering with the returns—all this, to which we are now looking forward with more or less anxiety, is avoided, and we will admit that it is a blessed dispensation. As to the one hundred thousand officeholders, haunted by Jay Hubbell on one side and the fear of Democratic ascendancy on the other, they should hail Proctor's edict as a new proclamation of emancipation. No more assessment circulars; no more threats from headquarters; no more warnings from George William Curtis! It is a veritable millennium, well worth anything it costs.

To the frightened anti-monopolists it is a perfect godsend. In this way the diabolical Jay Gould can be thwarted and punished. He cannot buy up any more railroads, he cannot consolidate any more telegraph companies, he will not be able to throttle the press, and his schemes to form an alliance with Vanderbilt, overthrow the government at Washington and enslave fifty millions of human beings must come to naught.

This, too, is a happy solution of the temperance question; it will matter little after next year whether liquor is sold on Sunday or not. The crops will not disturb speculators; individuals hopelessly in debt see a short way out; convict-sentenced for life complete their sentence; insurance companies will not be expected to pay any claims; many of the hollow pretenses of society will avoid exposure, and the matrimonial aid associations may escape a complete collapse if the comet moves rapidly.

While all this is cheerful enough and makes one feel that the year 1883 is to be a real year of jubilee, the end of the world in 1883 must indefinitely postpone the election of a Democratic President. This is a view calculated to depress the most cheerful optimist. Everything now points to a Democratic triumph in 1884, but, as usual, some unforeseen accident occurs to dash the hopes of the people. Hubbell and Proctor must be in league, and the recklessness of Radical leaders during the late session of Congress indicates that they had private information of the coming event. A Democratic victory in 1884 means a purification of the civil service, a reconstruction of the American shipping, a reduction of all forms of taxation, radical improvements in the postal service, a return to the practices of the fathers of the Republic, and he who can contemplate the destruction of such high hopes with any feelings than those of deep distress must be devoid of all feelings of patriotism. Besides, the outs have been out so long, hope has so often been postponed, that another disappointment, caused not by natural, but by supernatural, causes is apt to shake the faith of the multitude in the ultimate triumph of virtue.

Giving due weight to all such objections, the good effects of the end of the world overshadow all partisan considerations. The party must be sacrificed to the good of mankind. A Democratic victory would inaugurate a glorious reformation. Yet perhaps all that the party could accomplish under the most favorable circumstances will be more rapidly and thoroughly done by a fire which will purify, if it does not consume, the entire planet.

A Small Farm for Sale.

Having become tired of batching, I offer my place for sale, with or without household and kitchen furniture, on reasonable terms. It contains 73 acres, more or less, 11 of which are under cultivation, a nice young orchard, a good sized barn and box house, with four rooms; also, the outdoor improvements. It is situated in a good neighborhood, within a half mile of a large school house, seven and one-half miles west of Roseburg, in what is called the French Settlement, in Douglas county Oregon. Inquire of me on my farm.
