How to Treat Typhoid Fever.

What seems an almost interminable discussion has been going on in the French Academy of Medicine, ever since the typhoid epidemic of last autumn, as to the proper mode of treating that disease. The system to which most prominence has been given is that recently intreduced into German practice by Dr. Brand, the main feature of which is the immersion of the patient in long and frequently repeated cold water baths. German medical statistics show an excellent result from this mode of treatment; though they are, it is said, vitiated by the inclusion of typhus patients in
