ELDORADO SPRINGS.

To all persons suffering with any nasal catarrh affection of the throat or stomach, I will state that last Fall that myself and members of my family were suffering with catarrh in the head and myself with an affection of the stomach. That I purchased a galon of the mineral water taken from the spring on the South Umpqua, 3 miles west of Roseburg, of G. M. Jones, Dr. Hamilton agent, and can testify that both myself and family have received great benefits from its use. My son Andrew Willis was suffering very much from nasal catarrh and by the use of this water has entirely recovered and is now well. I can unhesitatingly commend it as the best medicine I have used in my family for any of the above named complaints. REV. W. A. WILLIS.

COYOTE HUNT.—Prof. Thomas of Cole's valley, after dismissing his school last week, came up to Mr. Henry Conn's with his trained dogs. On Saturday morning he and Creed Conn started for Cow hollow, where varmints that have been preying upon the sheep of the neighborhood, were supposed to be, taking the dogs on the horses, to save them for the chase. In a short time after turning the hounds loose they started a large coyote, which the hunters soon dispatched with their rifles. The young men on their return were presented with twently dollars by Messrs. H. Conn and H. Jones jointly, in accordance with offers which they had made for the destruction of these wild animals. If more of our teachers would spend their recreation in dispatching these varmints, instead of "hunting the tiger," they might find it both healthful and profitable and at the same time confer a great favor on the sheep-raising interests of our county.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Notice the advertisement of Caro Bros.

Jacob Rosenstein, a retired merchant of Oakland, made us a pleasant call. He is on the look-out for a location to start in business again.

Mr. W. Glover, Superintendent of the Roseburg and Coos Bay stage line, went down the road Monday on a tour of inspection.

At Hamilton's drug store, quicksilver, Sulphur, lime and a cheap grade of coal oil for doctoring sheep.

Hon. Rufus Mallory and wife are in the city. Mrs. Mallory is visiting friends here, the home of her childhood. The Judge is attending court.

Coal tar and pine tar for sale at Hamilton's drug store.

Hon. J. W. Rayburn of Corvallis, was in the city this week, this being his first trip to Southern Oregon. He expresses himself well pleased with our county.

H. W. Bloom, special traveling correspondent of the ever-reliable (barring certain black Republican peculiarities) Oregonian, looked into our den last Monday. He had just returned from a trip to Jackson county.

A. J. Manning, of Oakland, was in Roseburg this week. He is agent for Gardiner's Grappling Pitching Apparatus. This is the most complete fork for handling hay, grain, or straw that we have seen. He sells them for $36.

Hon. J. C. Hutchinson has opened a real estate office in Oakland, Douglas county, Oregon, and will negotiate for the sale of all kinds of real property, mill and millsites, town and city property, farms, etc. Persons having farms for sale will do well to consult him.

Sharp Dearling, son of Coe Dearling, living in the vicinity of Oakland, had the misfortune one day last week to fall from a swing and break his leg. Dr. Shambrook was called and set the broken limb and the young man is doing well and we hope he will soon recover.

A number of the prominent Masons from different parts of the county, were in the city on last Tuesday, attending a meeting of the Chapter, among whom we notice Messrs. Dodge, Hutchins, Brown and Rosenstein, of Oakland.

The Wymans closed their engagement at Marks' hall on Tuesday night. The season was not altogether a success, owing perhaps, to the fact that the public mind was more intent on the real tragedies rehearsing at the Court house than the fairly good mock ones of Mr. Alf. Wyman.

R. A. Booth having disposed of his saw mill at Yoncalla to Messrs. Thomas and Geo. Applegate, and repurchased the business and stand of Booth Bros. from J. O. Booth, will hereafter conduct the mercantile business in that place. He is a deserving and energetic young man and we speak for him a liberal patronage.

The raffle at Woodward's Harness shop for a splendid silver-mounted saddle is progressing finely, the numbers being nearly all taken. A few chances yet remain, however, to secure this prize for the small outlay of one dollar. Mr. Woodward wishes to say that the raffle will take place on the 4th of July, without fail, so ticket-holders can govern themselves accordingly.

James Flett and lady called on their old friends in Roseburg last week. Time seems to deal lightly with our ex school teacher, ex-antimony slinger, ex-editor, etc. The last thing we heard him say before his departure for the front was that he would probably find upon his arrival there that he had become an ex-Celestial herder on the grade.

The complimentary benefit tendered by the Wyman Comedy Co. on Tuesday night to the Roseburg. band was a success. The audience was altogether representative of our society in its best clothes, manners and culture. The gross receipts amounted to $136 25, but aside from any mercenary considerations the young gentlemen of the band must have felt complimented by the entertainment, its audience, etc.

ACCIDENT.—The north bound stage while coming through the south end of Cow creek canyon, on Wednesday morning of last week, was accidentally overturned and W. B. Parker, a passenger, severely injured by having his shoulder dislocated and his breast and collar-bone broken.

A REMINISCENCE.—Some years ago an amusing incident occurred in legal circles between two of the leading lawyers of Roseburg, which serves to illustrate the leading characteristics of each, and upon which their respective success depends. The younger of the two, who was better grounded in the principles of the law than in their application to the facts of the case, wished to "bum" an opinon from the elder, who is substantially a "case" lawyer, and who happened to be employed on the opposite side of a case involving a dispute as to the division of wool. Said Judge, "if I were to rent you my farm for a blank number of years and 250 head of hogs included, and by the terms of the lease you were to pay me one-half of the wool and one-half of the increase, and at the expiration of the lease return me the original number," etc. The Judge took down several of his law books and turned them over with considerable gravity. Presently a smile illuminated his countenance and he closed the book with much emphasis, and turning upon his questioner with a look of disdain, said: "Who in thunder ever heard of hogs raising wool?"

PROHIBITION VS. LICENSE.

MR. EDITOR: In the last issue of the INDEPENDENT I find an article entitled "License vs. Prohibition." In the first paragraph of your article we are told the reason why your space has been taken up with the discussion of this question, which is another way of stating that you dissent from the proposition to restrict the liquor traffic to the extent of prohibiting entirely, your editorial being in the form of an apology for the sentiments expressed by the contributors to your paper on the affirmative of this question. I am glad to note that you, in common with all people of discernment who care for the future of our already great State, have noted the demoralizing effects of the drinking habit upon society at large, but am somewhat surprised that your legal acumen should not have told you your first paragraph was a contradiction of any statement that our form of civil government was endangered by attempts to set up legal barriers against the great tide of intemperance.

If you will only turn to the preamble to the Constitution of the United States you will find the language—"Promote the general welfare"—as capable of such construction that the prohibitionists are hardly open to the charge of wanting to override the fundamental law. Take but just one of many cases illustrating this part of our position. A drunken man fires your property and destroys it. The man sober may be a law-abiding citizen, but crazed with liquor he becomes a felon. Do I understand you to say there is no remedy other than what the law provides to punish wrong-doing; or that we menace civil liberty by the promulgation of such doctrines in governmental affairs? to use your own language. If this is so where do Legislatures get their authority for enacting laws against carrying concealed weapons? If prohibition "menaces civil liberty," why is not the result the same when the free-born American citizen is denied the inalienable right of making a walking arsenal of himself? It would be very easy to prove that tenfold more persons have been irreparably injured since the settlement of Oregon by whisky, than by the unlawful using of pistols.

In the last paragraph you say "you are surprised to see the various temperance organizations, after their repeated failures at prohibition, join hands with the rumsellers in denying this right to the civil government," meaning the right to tax and regulate the business of saloon-keeping. As I understand the prohibitionists, they take that position because of the moral obliquity arising from throwing around this great wrong the sheltering arm of the law. They would take the same position upon the same grounds, were it here proposed to license the companion of grog-shops—gambling houses or other places of questionable resort. It will be news to many that prohibition is a failure. It is only too true that it has not entirely removed the cause, but it is also true that the plan has so far lessened the evil as to merit consideration at our hands. The great States of Georgia and North Carolina have recently wheeled into line with Maine and other prohibition commonwealths. If prohibition is a failure the brainy men who were in the Legislatures of these States, must have been aware of it, since it is a long tried remedy, and would have made haste slowly to cumber their statute books with a useless law. Mr. Editor, just "Come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty" and the people of Oregon will give your paper such a boom as has not been enjoyed since the aborigine built his last camp-fire on the hills of old Umpqua.

Grand Army in a Muddle.

A special dispatch to the Portland Standard of May 14th says: The Grand Army of the Republic of this city is allowing politics to interfere with its business, and consequently they are in a great turmoil, and many members have resigned. A short time ago a memorial meeting was organized, and the Republican fraternity was startled by the announcement that Col. W. A. Walker, of the new legion had been chosen grand marshal. There was a great commotion in the camps immediately, and the rank partisans, headed by Salmon and his henchmen, swore that no "dammed copperhead" could ever lead them, even to Lone Mountain. Last night the Republican central committee met, when Col. Walker sent in a communication, in which he said: "If any citizen or resident of California or any other state in the Union, has aught to say against my character as a gentleman, or a soldier, then I command that he be summoned. But if the objections that I am a democrat are valid ones with you, then I place my resignation in the hands of the committee." The meeting then adjourned until Thursday next, until the sense of the Republican party can be ascertained.

FROM DAY'S CREEK.

Hon. John Stewart will drive about 3000 head of sheep east of the mountains this spring.

Joseph Chamberlain has a very promising crop of grain.

A. W. Woolley has opened his photograph gallery and is now ready to take your picture.

Mrs. Williams of Roseburg, is having the chills at her mother's, Mrs. Garrison.

John T. Hanks, our efficient postmaster, is gardening for Hon. G. W. Riddle of Canyonville.

Miss Mary Raymond, who has been spending several weeks with her aunt, in Canyonville, is now at home again.

Rev. Mr. Woods has employed Allen Stewart to build a residence during the coming summer. The Parson has a splendid farm and a handsome mansion will add much to its appearance.

Uncle Grace Boyle is busy planting an extensive corn crop, which has the benefit of the genial showers.

Uncle John Perdue, one of Virginia's noble sons, came and remained a few days among his many friends on Days creek last week. He has one of the largest farms on South Umpqua.

Last Sabbath the citizens of this place met at the school house and organized a singing society, for the social and intellectual improvement of the community. Ephraim Raymond was unanimously elected President, and Lewis Chapman Secretary. The old and the young seem very much interested in the science of music.

Miss Florence McNeal and her brother Charley were over visiting relatives and friends, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. N. B. Poole's mother, who is one of the oldest residents of Canyonville, is quite sick. Her many friends and realatives are anxious for her early recovery.

The grain is looking fine and bids fair to yield abundantly.

THE WOOL MARKET.

A special to the Oregonian of May 5th, from San Francisco, says: The condition of the wool market is not such as to cause dealers to become enthusiastic over the situation, inasmuch as with few exceptions, no important transactions have taken place. The causes leading to this state of affairs is variously given. The general opinion of dealers is that some time will elapse before the market assumes a firmer tone. Receipts here of spring wool to date amount to 18,000 bales, and considering the quantity as well as the quality of the wool, the market is unusually quiet, if not stagnant. In conversation with a prominent firm it was learned that, as a rule, during the corresponding periods of previous seasons, representatives of Eastern purchasers were in the field in numbers varying from twenty to thirty, looking after California and Oregon clips, but that this year only three of the principal buyers had put in an appearance, one of whom had just arrived. The latter has done nothing as yet, and the others have bought sparingly. Reports of the dismal character of the market which have reached the East, up to the present, account for the tardiness of buyers in being represented here. The past dullness which has characterized transactions will in all probability continue till early next month, by which time the Eastern wool trade will have had ample time to decide what may be expected from Texas and the Territories, in which wools they expect lower prices for scoured. An impression prevails that they will be disappointed in both the condition and value of Texas wools, and that they will, during the first part of June return to the local market.

Oregon wools have found favorable demand when business is such as to admit of speculation. This is particularly the case as regards the higher condition and better grades of Eastern Oregon clips, which is desired by manufacturers and scourers. Beyond the sale of three small parcels of very choice grade, ranging from 21 to 23 cents, no transactions of note have occurred in Oregon wools. These prices for equally good wool are expected to continue. Shrinky wools from Eastern Oregon will hardly equal former prices, for the reason that the duller the market the greater the discrimination among buyers. Many of these wools that were quoted last year at 17c and 20c will be sold at reduced figures. Samples of Oregon clips received show that the clip will be very fine.

Prompt Action in Acute Cases.

In acute cases Compound Oxygen has been found to act with great promptness. Says one of our correspondents: "I was suffering from a cold at the time I received your Treatment—with a pain in the head, sore throat, and violent cough—and kept getting rapidly worse, till in a in few days I was compelled to keep in my bed. In three days I was able to get up, and was entirely over it in less than ten days, which, considering that I am now an invalid at the best of times, is doing well; and I give the Oxygen credit." Our Treatise on Compound Oxygen, containing large reports of cases, and full information, sent free. DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard st., Philadelphia, Pa. All orders for the Compound Oxygen Home Treatment directed to H. E. Mathews, 606 Montgomery street, San Francisco, will be filled on the same terms as if sent directly to us in Philadelphia.

LOSS OF LIFE.—On Sunday night, May 6th, the steamer Grappler, when within four miles of Seymore Narrows, British Columbia, burned to the water's edge and sank. About fifty lives were lost, mostly Chinamen. The fire was first discovered by the engineer about ten o'clock in the evening, and as soon as it was found that it could not be controlled, the captain headed for land, but in a short time the ropes leading to the rudder were burned off so that it became impossible to steer the ship. In the contusion two of the ship's boats were lost, and before the passengers could be taken ashore the fire drove them into the water so that only about half the lives were saved.
