

The Standard on the Wool Tariff.

The Standard, a newspaper published in the city of Portland, by A. Noltner, familiarly known in certain circles as "Tony," took occasion in its Sunday edition of October 14th, to let off a superabundance of bombast which it hurled at a society of wool growers of Wasco county, who in a convention condemned the action of the late Republican Congress for reducing the tariff on wool and increasing it on manufactured woolen goods, and declared in favor of restoring the tariff of 1866 on wool.

In our issue two weeks ago we denounced this position of the Standard as undemocratic, for which we find ourselves the recipient of nearly a column of the precious space of this leading metropolitan journal, in which the editor tries to be sarcastic. In the outset he says: "Will the brilliant editor of the Roseburg Independent tell us whether the infamy of placing an additional duty on manufactured woolen goods justifies the tariff on wool," and adds: "Our talented friend of the Independent will have hard work to convince Democrats that it is any part of Democratic doctrine to so regulate a tariff as to 'protect' any special industry, and if it is right to do so on wool it is right and just to guard all others. Our government raises a revenue for its expenses and not for protection. We hope the learned editor of the Independent will not deny Sam. Randall protection for his iron and claim prohibition for wool. The truth of the matter is just this: Some people like to play the part of a demagogue, and they imagine their readers are a set of fools. In this such brilliant misadges the editor referred to will find out their mistake. The tariff on wool does not figure at all in the price the producers are receiving."

Exactly what is intended by the reference to our advertising patronage and subscription we are at a loss to understand, or what it has to do with the double dealing of Congress with the farmers on the wool tariff. If, however, he wishes to insinuate that our patronage is limited, we can easily admit it, for it is not all that we might wish it to be. But since taking charge of the Independent our patrons have never before heard us complain. We pay all our bills, are clear of debt, never have had any mortgage or lien upon our office, and cannot understand why we should need any special protection in this respect. It might not be out of place right here, to ask the Standard man if he can say as much, or what was the consideration for his changing the mortgage held by Senator Flater, a Democrat, upon the Standard office, to a leading Republican politician of Portland, and does not the official records of Multnomah county show that such a change was made? Does said Republican politician have anything to do with the course pursued by the Standard and the numerous semesters which it makes on all political questions? We are pleased to know that the pricking which we gave the Standard for its stupidity on the tariff question, has caused the concern to manifest some little animal life. An ordinary government mule, however, would not be so stupid as to suppose it could convince the farmers that the tariff on wool has nothing to do with the price they are receiving for their product, after John Sherman and his co-workers had failed to palm such a dogma on the farmers of Ohio.

We can assure the Standard that it is no part of our mission to convince Democrats, or any one else, that it is any part of the Democratic doctrine to regulate a tariff as to protect any special industry, and the person must be very stupid who imagines we ever advocated such a policy. The donkey who would construe our published statements into such a doctrine, would not be expected to know that the tariff on wool and woolen goods is one and the same act.

When the Standard asserts that the present tariff on wool is equal to 40 per cent ad valorem, he proves that his mathematics is as specious as his logic. The fact is that the present tariff levies a duty of ten cents per pound on wool worth 30 cents per pound in the country where shipped, and 2 1/2 cents per pound on wool worth 12 cents per pound in the country where shipped. The maximum of the tariff of 1866 on wool in its crude state did not exceed 40 per cent ad valorem, which is not equal to what it would have been under an equal tariff for revenue only, where all imports would have been taxed equally, according to their value, for each year since 1866.

Woman Suffrage.

"Father" Duniway has taken exception to the statement we made in our notice of Mrs. Loughary's lecture on woman suffrage, in which we said that the doctrine contended for by the speaker was turning the heads of the giddy young women of the period and bounding our courts with numerous divorce suits, etc. Mr. Duniway devotes nearly a column of space in the New Northwest of October 18th, in refutation of our statement and asks that we publish his answer, which we would gladly do did our space permit, as the arguments made use of by this veteran woman suffragist, proves the truthfulness of our assertion, if proof was necessary to establish the self-evident axiom that this woman suffrage movement has a tendency to break up domestic relations, which must be apparent to every one of the least observation, who has given a moment's reflection to this question. Mr. Duniway in his article makes the point which we are ready to admit: "That the home is the foundation of good society and the bulwark of our government." "That the woman is pre-eminently the home builder." All we have to do to be convinced that this doctrine taught by the Duniway publishing company is breaking up domestic relations, despoiling homes and leaving the tender offspring to the guardianship of divorce courts, is to compare the records of courts in States where this doctrine has held sway with the record of courts of adjoining States where the movement has but little or no following. Compare the divorce record of Indiana, where the movement has held sway for many years, with that of the adjoining State of Ohio, where it has had but little or no following and the comparison must be convincing.

Again the article asserts that the leaders of this movement are "women who have happy homes and creditable families." In contradiction of this statement we have only to name the founders of the movement; Victoria Woodhull, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Laura DeForce Gordon, Elizabeth Tilton, Mrs. Dr. Sawtell, Dr. Mary Walker, etc. etc., and ask for your happy home and creditable family.

The Governor has authorized District Attorney Cappelles, of the fourth judicial district, to commence a suit against J. W. Rook to gain possession of a piece of land once owned by Aaron B. Yarnell. Yarnell died without any known heirs. During his last illness he lived at Rook's and made him a deed of the land, the consideration expressed in the deed being $15,000. Gov. Moody claims that the deed was obtained by fraud, and Yarnell dying without heirs, the property escheated to the State.
