Bob Burdette on Art.

Bob Burdette has gone in for art criticism. His maiden effort is too good to be lost. Here it is: "Miss Honora Daubigne has just completed a portrait of her father in oil. It would have looked more like the old gentleman and would have smelled infinitely more like him, had she worked the portrait in whisky. Still, as a work of art, it is a very valuable painting; $13 worth of tube colors were used in its construction, and the frame alone cost $45. The hair in the picture; and the right ear which was bit off in a fight down at the red bridge ten years ago, has been restored by the magic touch of the accomplished artist. The nose of the subject, also, has been toned down, being treated in rose lakes instead of vermillion. To get at the true soulfulness, the tout ensemwork of art, however, the portrait is one of which our city may well be proud. It can be recognized by a glance at the name of the subject, which was neatly
