

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET. FOR PRESIDENT: GROVER CLEVELAND, Of New York. FOR VICE PRESIDENT: THOMAS A. HENDRICKS, Of Indiana. ELECTORS: L. B. ISON, of Baker. W. D. FENTON, of Yamhill. A. C. JONES, of Douglas.

In the nomination of Cleveland, of New York, and Hendricks, of Indiana, the National Democratic Convention have presented to the people for their suffrages a ticket which every true patriot who holds country above party can conscientiously endorse and support with their votes. Grover Cleveland, a young man who has scarcely reached the meridian of life, has by his energy, industry, honesty and ability made for himself a world-wide reputation which commands the admiration of the nation. For far-sighted policy and true statesmanship he occupies a position second to none in the American nation. Personally, he comes up to the old Roman standard for an executive ruler; in him we find a sound mind in a strong, athletic frame. He is not subject to sun stroke or paralytic leprosy which has characterized the plumed knight of Maine. He is fully able to withstand the fatigues of the campaign and gracefully administer the affairs of the Government after the 4th of next March. The name of Thomas A. Hendricks, of Indiana, is a familiar household word. He belongs not to Indiana alone, but to the whole United States. He has been in public life for more than a quarter of a century, and we challenge the opposition to place their finger on a single page of his public record, or point to a single vote or speech of his that has not been in favor of the people. His record is an open book, commensurate with the his tory of our country and needs no commendation from us. They will be elected.

Press Comments.

The New York Times says: The independent Republican leaders are much gratified over the result of the nomination. Gen. Barlow, chairman of the New York conference, said last night that steps would be at once taken to put the organization again in working shape. Secretary Allerton will issue letters inviting members of the Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey auxiliaries to a meeting to be held here, probably within ten days, at which a circular will doubtless be authorized endorsing the Democratic ticket. The scope of the movement may be widened to take in other forams of dissatisfied persons than the primary moving cause, but this is a matter to be arranged later on. Central headquarters will doubtless be established here. State committees will supervise the local work.

The Philadelphia Times' leader this morning (July 12) is a lengthy dispatch from Col. McCure, at Chicago, headed "The Revolution." He says: "The convention was the most thoroughly deliberative convention that has met since the organization of the present parties, with the single exception of the Lincoln convention in this city, nearly one-fourth of a century ago, and it has inaugurated a revolution, as that did. Its results involve a sweeping political revolution, not merely the transfer of power from one political party to the other, but a revolution by the overthrow of the worst methods and purposes of both parties, and the triumph of the best inspirations of every political faith. The conflict will be one of the most violent and exhaustive of our political history. The Republicans have their ablest leader. Cleveland will lose thousands of Democratic votes, but more than 100,000 men of Republican faith in doubtful States will espouse his cause, and press resolutely to a successful revolution. Only some monumental Democratic folly can hinder the success of Gov. Cleveland."

Tammanites to Support Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—A friend of John Kelly, who was interviewed this morning, said: "Tammany hall is coming around all right. It fought Cleveland most bitterly, but it is Democratic to the core, and it would accordingly support the ticket. Hendricks' nomination cannot fail to afford Tammany much pleasure. The ticket will win in New York State with 40,000 votes to spare."

Hendricks' Speech.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 13.—At the ratification meeting last night Mr. Hendricks continued as follows:

The question is, fellow-citizens, will you support the ticket just nominated? [Cheers and cries of "We will!"] And in asking that question I want to ask you another: Do you not, all of you, Democrats and Republicans, believe that the affairs of the Government have been long enough in the hands of one set of men? [Cries of "We do!"] And do you not believe that we have reached a period where there ought to be a change? [Cries of "We do, and we will have it!"] I do not ask that all shall be turned out; that is not the idea. If a man has done his duty well and faithfully; if he has not used the powers of his office to disturb the rights of the people; if he has not furnished money to corrupt elections; if he has simply confined himself to the duties of his office, I am not clamoring for his official blood; but, my fellow-citizens, of the 120,000 men that now fill official positions in the country, we have no right to suppose from what has taken place, that they are all honest [Cheers and laughter]; and the only way that we can do now is to make a change. A month ago everybody supposed that all the employes in the bureau of medicine and surgery were honest, and now, at the very first examination, it turns out that they are not. But what is the remedy? Put them out, and put honest men in. [Cheers and cries of "That's it!"] We cannot do that if we leave the same President and heads of departments and heads of bureaus in. I have every faith that this ticket will be elected. [Cries of "So have I."] I think I know something of Indiana. [Great cheers and laughter.] We will probably stand here together, won't we? [Cries of "You bet!"] And this banner of liberty, of right, of justice, and of fair government, that has been placed in the hands of Cleveland and Hendricks, shall be carried and placed in glorious triumph on the top of the national capitol in November next. [Great cheering and cries of "We will put it there."] Shall this be the people's banner? [Cries of "It is."] You have no interest except in good government, and I think I have none. I have lived among you a long time; I have tried to secure your confidence and preserve it. [Cries of "You have it, too."] And I ask of you is your support, not for myself, but for yourselves and for your children, and all the people that are interested in good government. [Cheers and cries of "Go on."] Now, I have spoken longer than I intended. [Cries of "Go on," and "We are not tired of you."] I know when any of my Republican friends, who are intending to stand by their party still longer, shall see this numerous crowd here to-night they will think the doom of fate has come at last. [Cheers and laughter.] Why, I happened up the street a few weeks ago. It was just after Blaine and Logan were nominated, and I saw a little gathering of very honest and honorable people behaving themselves exceedingly well and very quietly, and General Harrison was delivering to them a speech about the nomination made at Chicago [loud laughter]; and really, if you were to bring the crowd here, you would not notice it at all. [Great cheers and laughter.] What does it mean? It seems that the people intend to have reform [cheers]; and that is the watchword that is written upon every Democratic banner. It was written upon the Democratic banner eight years ago [cheers], but reform was defeated by defeating the right of the people to elect their own ruler. [Cheers.] And what is the consequence? There has been no reduction of expenditures; although the war is all the while further and further away from us, still the Republican party makes no reduction of public expenditure. Shall we have it? Shall we have cheap government? Shall we have lower taxes? They tell us that the government can be well carried on for $100,000,000 less than is now collected from the public. If Cleveland shall come into the Presidential office I believe he will cut expenditures down to the last dollar that will support the government, economically administered [cheers]; and then, when he does that, he will have accomplished what Gen. Jackson said was the duty of any government. A government has not the right to collect a dollar from the people except what is necessary to meet the public service. [Cheers and cries of "That's right."] What a government needs she has a right to come to you, or to me, or to all of us, and make us pay for it; but when she gets all that she needs for an economical administration, she has not the right to take another sixpence out of the public; and that is all we ask; when the ticket shall wave in triumph that idea will be established in this country. [Cheers.]

I thank you very much for the attention you have given me. I ask you simply as a citizen interested in all that interests all of us, that you will give your attention to this campaign and never cease your efforts until your Democratic banner, with Democratic principles of reform and cheap government is found waving in all the skies above your heads. [Cheers.] At the close of Hendricks' speech, ex-Senator McDonald was introduced and spoke briefly, being followed by D. S. Gooding and other local speakers, and the meeting adjourned.

Andrew Jackson on the Tariff. [From his farewell address.]

"There is, perhaps, no one of the powers conferred on the General Government so liable to abuse as the taxing power. The productive and convenient sources of revenue were necessary to it that it might be able to perform the important duties imposed upon it; and the taxes which it lays upon commerce, being concealed from the real payer in the price of the article, they do not so readily attract the attention of the people as smaller sums demanded from them directly by the tax gatherer. "But the tax imposed upon goods enhances by so much the price of the commodity to the consumer. And as many of those duties are imposed on articles of necessity which are daily used by the great body of the people, the money raised by these imposts is drawn from their pockets. "Congress has no right under the constitution to take money from the people unless it is required to execute some one of the specific powers intrusted to the Government; and if they raise more than is necessary it is an abuse of the power of taxation, and unjust and oppressive. "It may indeed happen that the revenue will sometimes exceed the amount anticipated when the taxes were laid; and in such a case it is unquestionably the duty of the Government to reduce them, for no circumstance can justify it in assuming a power not given to it by the constitution, or in taking away the money of the people when it is not needed for the legitimate wants of the Government."

How the Nominations Were Received in Roseburg. The nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks was received at this place with warmest enthusiasm by Democrats and independent Republicans, and by the Blaine managers with gloom and forebodings. The Saturday night after the nomination one hundred salutes were fired and a grand ratification meeting held at the court house. The meeting was called to order by J. W. Hamilton, chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, and speeches made by Messrs. Jones, Owens, Lane, Ball and Flood. The meeting was the largest and most enthusiastic political gathering that has been held here for many years. A feeling of general rejoicing pervades the entire community, and a hope that Republican misrule that has imposed such burdens upon the people is soon to be done away with, and that the nation is about to enter upon a new era of reformation in economy and commercial prosperity.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.—We caution the public against purchasing trees from parties pretending to represent Oakland Nurseries. We are credibly informed that one R. L. Freeman, from San Jose, Cal., has in several cases, pretended to represent Oakland Nurseries, which he is not authorized to do. We have only two agents in Southern Oregon, Messrs. O. H. Hull and J. P. Schafer, who have certificates of agency signed by us and acknowledged before a notary public. We guarantee all our trees free from insects and that most dreaded pest the "San Jose Scale Bug." J. Lusk & Sox, Proprietors Oakland Nurseries.

He was Crazy. "Podge, you're a fool!" yelled the good lady, threateningly. "Yes, dear, I suppose so," replied the poor fellow, trying to smile, "but I was not always crazy." "You've been crazy ever since I knew you," she howled. "Was I off my base when you married me?" "I think you must assuredly was." "Yes, yes," mused Podge, thoughtfully, "it's a self-evident fact that I was crazy, or you never would have got me." The curtain rose then and the circus began.—[Atlanta Constitution.] LUMBER.—I have on hand and offer for sale 200,000 feet fencing lumber and 75,000 feet flooring and rustic of A 1 quality. Cash purchasers will find it to their interest to get quotations before placing orders. Orders for all kinds of lumber solicited and promptly filled. Address R. A. Booth, Yoncalla, Oregon. ESTERLY Twine-Binding Harvester.

Newest and most complete harvester on the market, with all the modern improvements. The binding apparatus is so simplified that seven parts do the complete work of the forty-seven pieces used in all other binders. The sickle rim has pinion gearing and does away with the chain, making it lighter and more durable. The main drive wheel is made of the best hickory, with heavy wrought-iron tire, welded and shrunk on. The raising and lowering apparatus is so arranged that it is raised and lowered on a level, so that grain can be cut within two inches of the ground, or at any height desired. The upper dra. per is arranged on springs, so as to carry the thinnest or thickest grain without choking. It binds the sheaves into uniform size desired. It is so simplified that it can be worked by a boy. For sale by Bowen Brothers, at their shop on Main street, in Roseburg. Call and examine this machine before purchasing elsewhere.

Tombstones for Sale. I desire to call the attention of all persons desiring to purchase tombstones that I have a select assortment of dressed marble, which I will sell on reasonable terms.
