SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

RECEIPTS—Wheat, 2,500 ctls.; flour, 6,500 qr. sks.: oats, 890 ctls.; potatoes, 650 sks.: eggs, 8,500 doz.

FLOUR—San Francisco extra, best, at $5.00@5.20; medium, $3.50@4.50; shipping superfine, $3.00@4.25.

WHEAT—The market is apparently shaping in favor of the buying interest. Choice export parcels were offered at $1.38¾ without finding custom. Receipts are becoming more free, and a fair movement is in progress, considering the fact that foreign markets are anything but encouraging at the moment. From $1 35@$1.87½ ℔ ctl will represent the full range at which the better grades of shipping change hands. Call business is not as general as many operators would desire, though transactions will likely enlarge in the near future. Sales last week were:

Buyer season—200 tons, $1.46¾.

Buyer season, city—100 tons, $1.46¾; 100, $1.46¾.

Seller 1884—200 tons, $1.35½ ℔ ctl.

Closing prices were:

Buyer season—200 tons, $1.46; 200, $1.35½ ℔ ctl.

Seller 1884—100 tons, $1.35.

Seller 1884, city—200 tons, $1.35½ ℔ ctl.

BARLEY—No buoyant tone prevails. New crop is coming to hand in fairly liberal amounts, and is being more or less pressed for sale. The demand is as good as can be expected, but no eagerness is displayed by buyers. Sampling was somewhat general, though the market was slow of movement. The range for the best feed grades is 82½@85c ℔ ctl, but purchasers incline to the belief that values will tend yet lower, and bidding is limited to 80c ℔ ctl. Holders, however, show some firmness, and will not make concessions until forced to do so by possible circumstances that just at the moment seem more likely to happen than otherwise. Brewing is less brisk, and prices show signs of weakness. For more than a week strictly fine parcels could be placed at $1.10, but $1.07½ is now a full figure for even a fancy parcel, while the market for this description can be quoted down as low as 95c ℔ ctl, according to color and weight. There is nothing of consequence transpiring in Chevalier, and therefore no guiding quotations can be given. Something fancy in this line would probably bring $1.40 and perhaps a trifle more, while lots that are any way off would likely go begging at $1.15@$1.25 ℔ ctl. Sales were:

Buyer season—200 tons, 93¾c; 500, 93¼c; 500, 93c ℔ ctl.

Buyer 1884—100 90c ℔ ctl.

Seller season—100 tons, 81c‡; 300, 81½c ℔ ctl.

OATS—The market is steady. Many consignments of new crop are foul and are hard to place. Choice old are scarce and bring quotations readily. Receipts must necessarily enlarge in the future.

We quote: Surprise and milling, $1.60 @1.70; No. 1, $1.45@1.55; No. 2, $1.25@ 1.35; black, $1.15@1.25 ℔ ctl.

CORN—California yellow is quotable at $1.57½@1.60 for large, and $1.62½@1.65 for small; white, $1.50@1.55; Nebraska, white, $1.42½@1.45 ℔ ctl.

APPLES—℔ bx., 40c@$1.00.

HIDES—Dry, ℔ lb., usual selection, 16½ @17c; dry kip, 16½@17c; dry calf, 20@22c; salted steers, 50 to 55lbs, 9@9½c.

BEANS—We quote as follows: Bayos, $4.70@4.75; butter, $2.25@3.50; pinks, $4.60 @4.75; red, $5.00; limas, $2.60@2.70; small white, $2.65@2.75; pea, $2.75@2.80 ℔ ctl.

HAY—Alfalfa, $8.00@12.00; wheat, $13.00 @16.00; oat, $12.00@16.00; barley, $9.00@ 12.00: mixed, $7.00@11.00 ℔ ton.

GROUND BARLEY—Quotable at $20 @22 ℔ ton.

BEESWAX—This article finds poor custom. Quotable at 24c ℔ lb.

MIDDLINGS—Active at $19.00@21.00 ℔ ton.

BAGS AND BAGGING—The promised boom in Wheat Bags is still delayed. Prices continue weak and nominal. Some inferior goods are offered under 7c. We quote best quality Calcutta wheat bags, standard size and weight, at 7@7½c for spot lots and 7½@7½c for future delivery; San Quentin factory make, 7½; California Jute Mill make, 7½c; potato gunnies, 11½@12½c; wool bags, 35@40c apiece.

THE TROUBLE TO COME

Unless Rich and Poor Learn to Respect Each Other More.

[Joaquin Miller's Letter.]

In the city of New York, however, there is sign of serious trouble ahead. But it is such that an army could no more compass than in Paris. I have made my home both in Belleville, Paris, and the Bowery, New York. They are much alike in elements of destruction. I remonstrated with a communist, a workingman, during the excitement of the siege. "What," said I, "would you burn Paris?" With hand thrown wildly in the air, he replied: "Monsieur, we built Paris; we will burn Paris."

The French, only after Paris w s in ashes, saw their error. Gambetta had outgrown his Belleville and left its fierce spirit of strife, its hatred of the rich, its misery, hunger, madness, behind him. But Belleville remained the same, bided its time, and burned Paris. And yet this Belleville was comparatively but a small place.

But in New York the whole populace and packed lower half of the island is given up to poverty, to toil, tenement-houses, to misery and crime, as was that one little place in Paris. There are a million of the poor, the miserable, set apart by themselves in the lower part of the island. There are a thousand of the rich, the luxurious and happy on the other end. This unfortunate division will some day be fatal.

"The people, the poor and the rich," said Gambetta, "should dwell together and learn to respect and love each other."

He said this after the most terrible lesson that fire and blood ever taught. But it is a lesson which is being entirely lost on Americans. Of course there are many rich people and many noble, peace-loving people in the lower end of New York; and there are a few laborers at the upper end. But the mixture is slight. And any one who studied even so small and peaceful a thing as the freight-handlers' strike last year, can clearly read between the lines much that I have not space to set down.

Unless the rich and the poor melt more together and come to know and respect each other more, there must be tremendous trouble in that city soon, whose rich despise the poor and the poor in return bitterly hate the rich.

I undertake to say that a modern prophet might rise up and without much risk to his reputation, proclaim it in the streets that the ambitious billy-goat shall some day soon nibble the grasses from the blackened ruins of Fifth avenue. And as indicated before, all the armies of "a strong government," when the day of destruction comes, will be laughed at just as they were in Paris.

No, trust the people with your property, your money, your liberty and your life. Treat the people justly, and the people will not betray you. "We the people;" "this government of the people, by the people, and for the people." "A stronger government." Bah!

The Grave of Washington's Mother.

["Curtis" in Inter Ocean.]

Gen. Casey has just returned from Westmoreland county, Virginia, where he went to make the necessary arrangements for the monument to be erected at the birthplace of Washington, and Congressman Wise, of Virginia, now proposes to secure an appropriation from congress to erect a memorial tablet upon the grave of Washington's mother, which is now in a lamentable state of neglect and decay. The grave, which is in an old cemetery a few miles below Fredericksburg is covered with a pedestal which was placed there by a New York gentleman thirty or forty years ago. He intended to complete the monument, but lost all his money before it was finished. There now lies at the foot of the pedestal, hidden by rank weeds, a shaft of undressed marble, with simple marks where the work was stopped. The grave is surrounded by a wire fence, but that is all the attention that ever was paid to it. I think the state of Virginia ought to have patriotism enough to put this sacred place in order; but as it has not, congress can well afford to reduce the surplus in the treasury by a few thousands to mark a historical spot and honor a noble woman's memory.

I met an old gentleman from Fredericksburg the other day, and asked him if there were any people residing there whose memories went back far enough to recall the Washingtons. He said there were plenty of reminiscences in the neighborhood, but they had been handed down from past generations, for the oldest inhabitant was not born when the family had gone to their graves. Washington's father, he said, was not given a very high character in the local legendary lore, for he never amounted to a great deal, and died young, leaving his wife a heavily mortgaged farm and a large family of children. Mary Washington, or "Mother Washington," as they all call her, was a woman of noble characteristics, and her memory was very much revered. After her husband's death she lived in a little house on the outskirts of the town, which is now occupied by the village watchmaker, but is in the last stages of decay. Here she died, and the room in which she breathed her last is still shown to the few visitors who come that way.

A Land of Cripples.

[Croffut's Letter.]

I have never elsewhere met so many cripples of all sorts as one sees in Mexico; lame and with gnarled arms; blind or of imperfect vision. But the Abbe Clavigero, one of the early priests, said of the Aztecs: "There is scarcely a nation on earth where there are fewer deformed persons; it would be more difficult to find a single humpback, lame or squint-eyed man among 1,000 Mexicans, than among 100 of any other people." Indeed cripples were so rare that Montezuma set up a museum of the few in the country as an exhibition, and the number was so small that some parents mutilated their children's comely proportions so that they might be eligible, and thus support their parents in luxury. Alas! the diseases of the Spaniards, spreading from generation to generation, have made cripples no longer a marvel, and some of the beggars that crouch along the cathedrals to-day have almost lost all semblance of the human form.

125 YEARS OLD.

Messrs. Francis Newbery & Son, London, England, established for 125 years, write: As a testimonial from one of the oldest drug houses in Great Britain, respecting your household remedy, will no doubt be of interest to you, we are pleased to make the statement that we have sold St. Jacobs Oil with satisfaction to the public, for several years, and that owing to the extraordinary merits of the article, the demand is continually increasing, and that we have heard of many favorable reports regarding its great virtue as a pain-curing remedy.

Charles Reade as a Worker.

[New York Tribune.]

Charles Reade was a very methodical worker, and neglected no helps. It was his habit to form scrap-books containing whatever strange, new or startling events or stories appeared in the daily press, and of these books, which he called his "brains," he had accumulated a formidable number. Believing as he did that an author is entitled to appropriate matter wherever he finds it, provided that he adapts it, it is not remarkable that he should several times have been charged with plagiarism, nor that in some of these instances his defense should have been rather adroit than satisfactory.

He possessed a fertility of invention which made him independent of extraneous assistance, however, and his original work will bear comparison with the strongest in English fiction, either past or present. He has been charged with inordinate vanity. The truth doubtless is that he was aware of his own ability, and did not hypocritically depreciate it. That he possessed a most sterling character is certain. He was ever ready to defend the oppressed, careless of the odds, and with a fire and energy which nothing could restrain. His hand was always open to a pitiful tale, and the many authentic stories of his benevolence show him to have had a knightly and tender heart.

The Pitch-Pine Industry.

["M. Quad's" Georgia Letter.]

That curious industry—the extracting of oil and turpentine from pine by distillation—is represented in Augusta. Five cords of fat pine are used in the kiln or oven at a single charge. This charge is smothered, the same as if intended for charcoal. The first result is a quality of turpentine as clear as crystal. The second is turpentine oil, pure and unadulterated. The third is a liquid resembling tar, but much thinner and having a pleasant odor. Three or four drops of this on a bit of sugar will cure an ordinary sore throat in an hour, and instantly relieve hoarseness or tickling in the throat. It is largely used south for both man and beast, and most people regard it as a sure cure for everthing except a broken neck. The fourth result is a mixture largely used by gravel-roofers, and to some extent by painters. It is not only water-proof, but a great preservative. The fifth and last result is a mass of the cleanest and purest charcoal which can be produced in any known manner. The cost of operating these works is very slight, while there is a steadily increasing demand for the products at a fair profit.

A Turtle of Note.

A correspondent writing from Norwich, N. Y., says: "In the summer of 1840 A. R. Warner, of Guilford, while walking through a meadow in Unaville valley, came across a large turtle. The shell of the turtle showed the marks where initials and date had been cut in it, but the initials of one person only and the date on which they had been carved could be made out—E. R. J., 1835. Mr. Warner cut A. R. W., 1840, in the shell and released the turtle. In 1880 the turtle was discovered in the same locality by some boys. The 'E. R. J., 1835,' and 'A. R. W., 1840,' were still very distinct. In addition were 'H. J. H., 1870,' 'E. B., 1875,' and 'S. D. A., 1880.' The turtle was again turned loose. A few days ago it was found again in the field where it was seen in 1840 by Mr. Warner. No additional carvings were on the shell. The turtle is no larger than it was forty years ago, showing that it must have been full grown at that time."

TUBERCULOSIS.

Remarkable Improvement in the Case of a Physician's Daughter.

A physician in the State of New York, whose daughter was in rapid decline, sends us a report, which we give, showing a prompt arrest of the disease and a rapid return healthward.

"Your Home Treatment was duly received, and my daughter immediately commenced its use, stopping all other treatment. The results are marvelous indeed. She says that she feels nearly well, except that she has some cough yet. You will see by reference to my former letter that she had a very bad train of symptoms. Two physicians whom I called to see her pronounced it a case of Tuberculosis, and gave it as their opinion that she could not recover. She had a cough for a year; was very hoarse; had a severe pain in right side; chill for last two months, with night sweats, emaciation, weakness, and loss of appetite, and nervousness; could not sleep at night; pulse a hundred and over at times; respiration about twenty-five to thirty-four. She began to improve in about one week from the time she commenced the Oxygen Treatment, and has continued up to the present time All the bad symptoms enumerated have passed off. I cannot find words to express my gratitude."

Our "Treatise on Compound Oxygen," containing a history of the discovery and mode of action of this remarkable curative agent, and a large record of surprising cures in Consumption, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, Asthma, etc., and a wide range of chronic diseases, will be sent free. Address DRS. STARKEY & PALEN, 1109 and 1111 Girard street, Philadelphia.

All orders for the Compound Oxygen Home Treatment directed to H. E. Mathews, 606 Montgomery street, San Francisco, will be filled on the same terms as if sent directly to us in Philadelphia.

Style at the White House.

[Washington Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.]

While I was in Washington I went through a portion of the executive mansion which I have not seen for the past two or three years. It has been refurnished according to the prevailing style by Tiffany and other imitators of what is going on in Europe. The east room is now a kind of silver and gold room, and it has only two portraits in it—Gen. Washington, by Stewart, and Mrs. Washington, by Andrews. In the long corridor, which connects the east room with the staircase and bisects the lower floor, I looked at the portraits of the presidents, and it seemed to me that the best of them was that of Garfield. The artist has made the light shine on his forehead so as to bring out his intellectual nature strongly and also to give a kind of tender halo to his eye expressive of that almost feminine sensibility he had.

A number of women were going through the apartments with the manservant, and I was struck with the want of refinement and delicacy among these, and it seemed to me that the older the women were the more crotchety and disagreeable were their remarks. There was one old woman who seemed to think that the White House and its treasures were designed to illustrate her private biography. She would look up to the portrait of Hayes and say: "Who is that?" "President Hayes," replied the custodian. "I never seen him. Who is this man?" "That is President Pierce." "Yes, I seen him once."

PRESIDENTIAL FAVORITES.

Some Interesting Facts Concerning the Men who Stand Closest to the Chief Executive.

Visitors who, from curiosity or business, have called at the White House, must have been impressed by the courteous yet systematic manner with which they were received and escorted through the mansion. The gentlemen whose duty it is to receive all persons coming to the White House are Colonel E. S. Denmore, Mr. John T. Rickard and Mr. T. F. Pendel, and they have occupied their present positions through the various administrations since and even during the war. Mr. Pendel was President Lincoln's body-guard; saw him to his carriage the fatal night on which he visited Ford's theater, and he now has in his possession the blood-stained coat which Mr. Lincoln wore on that memorable occasion. There is not a public man in America to-day who does not know, and who is not known by, these gentlemen, and the reminiscences of public and social life which they can recount would fill a congressional volume. During the weary yet exciting years of the war; through the more peaceful times of Grant's administration; while Hayes held the reins of government, and when Garfield was shot, it was these men who stood in the executive mansion, welcoming the advent of each new administration, bowing at its departure, and receiving both martyrs through its portals.

During that long, hot and never to be forgotten summer when President Garfield lay between "two worlds," the nation became aware of the deadly malarial influence which hung about the White House. But all through that period these three men never deserted their posts for a single day, although each one was suffering intensely. In conversation with the writer, Colonel Densmore said:

"It is impossible to describe the tortures I have undergone. To be compelled to smile and treat the thousands of visitors who come here daily with courtesy when one is in the greatest agony requires a tremendous effort. All that summer I had terrible headaches, heart-burn and a stifling sensation that sometimes took away my breath. My appetite was uncertain and I felt severe pains in the small of my back. I was under the doctor's care with strict instructions not to go out of the house, but I remained on duty nevertheless. You would be surprised to know the amount of quinine I took; on some days it was as much as sixteen grains."

"And was Mr. Rickard badly off, too?"

"I should think he was. Why, time and again we have picked him up and laid him on the mantel here in the vestibule, he was so used up."

"Yes," exclaimed Mr. Rickard, "I was so weak I could not rise after lying down without help, and could only walk with the aid of two canes, and then in a stooping position. Oh, we have been in a pretty bad condition here, all of us."

"And yet you are all the embodiment of health," said the writer, as he looked at the three bright and vigorous men before him.

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Rickard, "we have not known what sickness was for more than a year."

"Have you some secret way of overcoming malaria and its attendant horrors."

"I think we have a most certain way," replied Colonel Densmore, "but it is no secret. You see, about two years ago my wife began to grow blind, and I was alarmed at her condition. She finally became so she could not tell whether a person were white or black at a distance of ten feet. One of her lady friends advised her to try a certain treatment that had done wonders for her, and to make a long story short, she did so and was completely cured. This induced me to try the same means for my own restoration and as soon as I found it was doing me good I recommended it to my associates and we have all been cured right here in the stronghold of malaria and kept in perfect health ever since by means of Warner's Safe Cure. Now I am not a believer in medicines in general, but I do not hesitate to say that I am satisfied that I should have died of Bright's disease of the kidneys before this had it not been for this wonderful remedy. Indeed, I use it as a household medicine and give it to my children whenever they have any ailments."

"Yes," exclaimed Mr. Pendel, "I use it in my family all the while and have found it the most efficient remedy we have ever employed. I know of very many public men who are using it to-day and they all speak well of it."

"I weigh 160 pounds to-day," said Mr. Rickard, "and when my physician told me over a year ago I could not hope to recover I weighed 122 pounds. Under such influences you cannot wonder that I consider this the best medicine before the American people."

The above statements from these gentlemen need no comments. They are voluntary and outspoken expressions from sources which are the highest in the land. Were there the slightest question regarding their authenticity they would not be made public, but as they furnish such valuable truths for all who are suffering, we unhesitatingly publish them for the good of all."

Everybody's Nose One-Sided.

[Boston Globe.]

A very singular fact has been observed with regard not so much to the shape of the nose as to the setting of it in the face, so to speak. To be strictly correct, from the artist's point of view, the nose should be accurately in the middle of the face, and at right angles with a line from the pupil of one eye to that of the other. As a matter of fact it is rarely or never found thus placed. It is almost invariably a little out of "the square," and the fact of its being so is often that which lends a peculiar expression and piquancy to the face. A medical writer points out that there are anatomical reasons why a slight deviation from the true central line may be expected, and that the nose which is thus accurately straight between the two eyes may be considered an abnormal one, and that the only absolute correct organ is that which deviates a little to the right or left.

"WONDERFUL EFFICACY."

Some people are slow in telling what good things have been done for them, but Mr. John P. Daly, of Gillisonville, S. C., says he takes great pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Brown's Iron Bitters in dyspepsia, fever and ague, and general debility of the system. He has personally experienced the most satisfactory results from the use of this valuable medicine. Make a memorandum of this, all ye whose systems are run down. Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you.

Read what a San Francisco lady says about Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron: "For two years I had been suffering from a serious nervous trouble, accompanied with pain and palpitation of the heart, impaired digestion, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and fearful spasms, which my family and friends thought would prove fatal. To alleviate my suffering I took laudanum by the spoonful. Most of the time I was confined to my bed and was rarely able to get about the house. My physicians (I had three) could find no remedy to relieve me. When my case seemed desperate my son brought me a bottle of Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron, which I reluctantly consented to try. I was at once benefited, and three bottles have given me a new lease of life and health. I am now able to walk anywhere and have gained more than twenty pounds in weight. It gives me great pleasure to certify to the great relief this valuable remedy has given me and I cordially recommend it to those similiarly afflicted."

HOW TO SHORTEN LIFE.

The receipt is simple. You have only to take a violent cold, and neglect it. Abernethy, the great English surgeon, asked a lady who told him she only had a cough: "What would you have? The plague." Beware of "only coughs." The worst cases can, however, be cured by DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. In Whooping Cough and Croup it immediately allays irritation, and is sure to prevent a fatal termination of the disease. Sold by druggists.

Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron is the best Nerve Tonic ever discovered.

A CARD.—To all who are suffering from errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, etc., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send self-addressed envelope to REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York.

Vital Questions!!!!

Ask the most eminent physician

Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves, and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always?

And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!!!"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians

"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention, or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women"—

"And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically "Buchu!!!"

Ask the same physicians

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia; constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malaria, fever, ague, &c," and they will tell you:

Mandrake! or Dandelion!!!!"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable,

And compounded into Hop Bitters, such a wonderful and mysterious curative power is developed, which is so varied in its operations that no disease or ill health can possibly exist or resist its power, and yet it is Harmless for the most frail woman, weakest invalid or smallest child to use.

CHAPTER II.

"Patients

"Almost dead or nearly dying"

For years, and given up by physicians, of Bright's and other kidney diseases liver complaints, severe coughs, called consumption, have been cured.

Women gone nearly crazy!!!!!

From agony of neuralgia, nervousness, wakefulness, and various diseases peculiar to women.

People drawn out of shape from excruciating pangs of rheumatism, inflammatory and chronic, or suffering from scrofula, Erysipelas!

"Saltrheum, blood poisoning, dyspepsia, indigestion, and, in fact, almost all diseases frail"

Nature is heir to

Have been cured by Hop Bitters, proof of which can be found in every neighborhood in the known world.

PAPILLON

HAY FEVER.

Many members of the Hay Fever Association of New England, have used Papillon Catarrh Cure with remarkable results. We have numerous testimonials testifying to its efficacy. Its curative powers are so positive, and the effect of its use so pleasing, that when once used, it is ever used. Unlike every other HAY FEVER REMEDY, it is not a temporary relief, but a permanent cure. No change of climate is necessary when this remedy is used. It stops the snuffles, the sneezing and the watery eyes. It permits breathing through the nostrils, and cures the inflammation. Any one wishing positive evidence from the many who have and are recommending this remedy, can procure a list of testimonials by sending us their address by postal card.

A prominent reporter on the staff of the Chicago "Tribune" says: "Papillon Catarrh Cure has saved me hundreds of dollars in expenses, and months of time."

Mr. J. C. Emmons, Attorney, Macomb, Ill., says: "I have had more relief from one dose of Papillon Catarrh Cure than from all other HAY FEVER REMEDIES I ever tried; it cured me at once. I traveled among rag weeds during hay fever time, without a recurrence."

It is not a new remedy; it has been in use for nearly ten years, and never fails to cure CATARRH, ROSE COLD AND HAY FEVER. Use it by insufflation or with an atomizer, or any other way that will reach the seat of the disease; it cures by healing the inflamed membranes of the nostrils, which is the cause of the disease.
