ABOUT SARDINES. - Very few are aware, when they purchase a tin box of sardines, that in spite of the gaudy and attractive label it bears, with its French inscription and Napoleonic head, these "little fishes biled in ile" are not the culpea sardine from the coast of Sardinia and from other parts of the Mediterranean sea, but are nothing more or less than a Yankee herring, caught off the coast of Maine, put up driving between Roseburg and Laird's. in cotton-seed oil. The imitation, deception, or fraud (whichever you see fit to term it) is so complete that the ing of H. C. ## The Big Show of New Orleans.

The Centennial display at Philadel phia is to be left away in the backfor the purpose of getting everything in good ground, in New Orleans, as far as immensity is concerned, if the project is carried out as anticipated. The main building at New Orleans, now nearly completed, covers 1,656,000 feet. Both the New York of 1852 and Philadelphia structures of 1876 were of less dimensions. It has required in its construction 9,000,000 feet of lumber, 4500 kegs of nails and 5000 boxes of glass. It is 60 feet high, with a tower 115. Its music hall, in the center, has a seating capacity of 11,000 people. The steam required for its purposes will be 3000 horse-power. It will be lighted by 15,000 incandescent lamps. horticultural bail, to which California is expected to contribute liberally, is an artistic structure 600 feet long, 194 feet wide, and with a glass roof, the tower of which, also of glass, is to be ninety feet high. This will be the largest conservatory in the world, and is expected to contain in beautiful and diversified arrangement, specimens of the choicest plants obtainable from Central and South America, Mexico, Florida, California, and indeed, from all parts of the United States and Canada, as well as from the principal countries of the Old World. A special commission is to visit Europe for the purpose of securing contributsons of fruits and flowers from the various nationalties of that continent, in order to render the exhibition more distinctively international. The fruit exhibit is expected to be exceptionally attractive in a display, as some 20,000 varieties, twice the number ever before displayed at one time on any occasion. art gallery will have its walls adorned with gems of painting from the easels of both home and foreign arcists.
