The Incas of Old.
 A Lima letter to the Chicago Inter-Ocean says: No man can see Peru without wondering at the grandeur, the industry and intelligence of the Incas, Emperors. They had arts which the world never knew; their knowledge of their conquerors could never imitate, and wealth which made them the prey of the adventurer of the sixteenth century. Their temples and palaces were built of hewed stone from quarries that the Spanish have not been able to discover, and the means by which they lifted blocks of granite weighing hundreds of tons is a problem no antiquarian has been able to solve. They knew how to harden copper until it had an edge as keen and enduring as the finest of modern steel; they had ornaments of gold and silver and cut jewels as skillfully as the lapidaries of to-day, and their fabrics of woolen and cotton are spun and woven as smoothly as modern looms can make. They surpassed modern civilization in many things and had a system of government under which millions of people lived and labored as a single family, with every thing in common, knowing all arts but those of war, and worshipping a deity whose attributes were almost parallel to those of the Christian God. Hemmed in on one side by the impassable snows of the Andes, and on the other by a desert, lifted above the rest of the world unknown to them, in spirit as well as fact, as peaceful and as calm as the Andean stars, they established a system of civilization in which, for the first time since creation, the equal rights of every human being were recognized by them as a symbol of the infinite, the omnipotence, whose force and majesty their simple logic could not understand; while the sun, whose heat and light made existence possible, was recognized as the source of all good. Hence these two elements the sun and the ocean, were personified and were the objects of the Incas' worship.

Was It a Mistake?
 The young girl at the Thirteenth street crossing, wore a saucy little feather in her hat that seemed to take the conductor's eye at once as he helped her on his Madison avenue car. All through the tunnel the feather nodded at him in a jolly way that argued a friendly interest in the new blue uniform he had not yet paid for. He glanced at her two or three times out of the corner of his eye and seemed really hurt when she motioned him to come and take her fare. With a careless grace of one accustomed to handle large sums of money, he glanced at the quarter the young lady dropped into his hand to see that it was not plugged. Then his hand closed tightly over it. It was a lozenge, not a quarter. He took it out upon the platform, where he could read its message away from the cold eyes of the other passengers. The candy simply asked: "Will you marry me," in warm, red letters. "She" was looking earnestly at him, and he forgot to stop at Fortich street for an old lady with a green veil. All his energies were concentrated in framing a proper answer to the sacred message. She beckoned him to come to her, and as he bent above the friendly feather the soft voice said: "I will trouble you for my change." Four nickels came sally out of the blue pocket and dropped into a white palm. He was a quarter out that trip.

GOOD WORK.
 Arizona Gazette.
 The present administration has had but little opportunity so far of perfecting any reform work, owing to the fact that there has as yet been no session of congress, to bring to its assistance acts and laws necessary to support the measures looking to the welfare of the country. However, a few noticeable acts may be called to the attention of the people as worthy of their indorsement:
 The amendment of Teller's order issuing patents to the land grant of the Backen's railroad, by which a portion of the lands were saved to the government.
 The order restoring to settlement a large body of land in California, claimed without authority, by the Southern Pacific railroad.
 The decision that put an end to the Reavis land grant fraud in Arizona.
 The action taken to set aside the patent for the fraudulent Maxwell grant in New Mexico.
 Steps taken to prevent frauds in homestead, pre-emption and desert land entries.
 The order forbidding the fencing of the public domain by large cattle companies.
 Resisting trespasses upon the Indian territory.
 Making railroad companies select indemnity lands at the nearest point, within their limits, to their tracts.
 The report of Inspector Armstrong saving $105,000 annually appropriated for feeding Arapahoes and Cheyenne Indians that were not in existence.
 Opening the cattle trail through the Indian territory.
 Settling the controversies in Indian territory.
 Inaugurating a vigorous and earnest campaign against the Chiricahua Indians.
 Stopping the frauds and impositions of John Roach upon the government.
 Protecting American interests and citizens in Panama and elsewhere.
 Abolishing sinecures in the department at Washington.
 Preventing the $400,000 grab of the Pacific Mail steamship company.
 Enforcing the civil service law, and placing faithful and efficient men in public places.
 The acts above mentioned are recalled to mind incidentally, and without reference to date, and form but a small proportion of the system of reform which the present administration has inaugurated. The showing is not such as to inspire the feeling of alarm which the Republicans so vigorously predicted in the last campaign, neither is it apt to impair the credit of the country. Cleveland is making no mistakes.

THE STATE.
 Mountain fires everywhere.
 The Portland mechanics fair will open on October 8th.
 The crops throughout the state are not up to the average yield.
 It is said that over a hundred horses will take part in the races at the State Fair.
 Immigrants from the East continue to arrive in Portland, from thirty to fifty daily.
 The Lane County Fair has changed its day of meeting to September 30th, to hold three days.
 The canal and locks at Oregon city will be closed for repairs from August 15 to September 1.
 The Yamhill County Fair will be held at McMinnville from the 15th to the 18th of September.
 E. J. Dawne, recently appointed chief justice of Alaska will leave for his northern home Oct. 1.
 The adjutant general of the army reports that the number of men in Oregon available for military duty is 33,000.
 Mrs. A. L. Humphrey, a well-known pioneer resident of Lane county, died at Eugene City, August 13th aged 77 years.
 There is business enough in the Lakewood land office to keep two clerks constantly employed, besides the register and receiver.
 A party of soldiers from Fort Klamath, in charge of Capt. Miller, are engaged in repairing the military telegraph line between Ashland and Linkville.
 Miss Forey, of Grant's Pass, was poisoned by eating ice cream at Jacksonville on the Fourth of July, and died from the effects of the same last Saturday week.
 Thos. Kay, one of the owners of the Brownsville woolen mills, has sold a tenth interest in that concern for $10,000. From this can be seen something of the value of these mills.
 The brick work of the first story of the new University building at Eugene has been completed and the work on the second story has already commenced. The work is being done in first-class style.
 Three thousand pounds of specimens from the Pine Valley mines were reduced at the Omaha works last week with the most astonishing results. They yielded all the way from $80 to $670 per ton.
 Alfred Guild was fined $100 at Hillsboro the other day for smearing the seat of P. B. Lewis' buggy with tar whereby the Sunday go-to-meeting trousers and Prince Albert coat of the latter were seriously damaged.
 Hon. Wm. S. Holman, of Indiana, Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, and Thos. Ryan of Kansas, congressional committee to examine the condition of Yellowstone park and Indian reservation, will reach Portland sometime between the 20th and 25th inst.
 Astorian: From North Beach come stories of sharklets seen by daring bathers. A real live shark would be a thrilling, though unusual, sight along that sand-strewn coast. But for a real genuine sand-strewn coast equals a devil fish. Let some of the Clatsop or North beach romancers invent the appearance of an octopus and the boats from Portland will be crowded with passengers coming down.
 Old "Clubfoot," an immense grizzly bear that has destroyed hundreds of dollars worth of stock, and long been the terror of Siskiyou, says the Shasta Courier, was slain some days ago by three hunters, who were induced to go after him on the strength of a liberal reward. In the fight the bear made mince meat of a herd of dogs, and only gave up the ghost after a pound or two of lead had been pumped into him from Winchester's short range.
 Very rich gold quartz has been discovered on the Petch farm near North Yamhill by a man named John Ross. A company has been formed and have leased the farm for ninety-nine years. The formation of the ground is volcanic and an extinct crater is to be seen there. On Sunday last a very rich vein was discovered, and the ledge has been traced for miles over the place. It is thought the mine will prove a bonanza. Some of the ore is so rich as to be almost pure gold.
 R. S. Balknap, an old resident of Jackson county, called upon the Jacksonville Times Tuesday. He had just returned from the Josephine county caves, which he had visited in company with L. B. Hall, of Josephine. Mr. B. reports a new discovery in the interior of the caves, being a chamber 364 feet long and about 50 feet wide, its vaulted roof rising to a height of from 50 to 75 feet. The entrance to this great chamber is so narrow that only one person of medium size can enter at a time, but preparations are being made to widen the passage, so that the new wonder can be visited by all who desire. Besides this large chamber others of great beauty have been discovered this season, and no one can yet tell the extent of these wonderful caves. Mr. Barch, who resides in the vicinity and acts as guide to sight-seers, is continually making new discoveries, and when a good road is secured thousands of people will doubtless visit these wonders of nature every season.

Mind Readers.
 The mind readers and face readers may find hints of use in the signs of the face given by a clever reader of physical expression. Dr. J. Simmons pronounces the round eye like that of a dove, an unfolding sign of faithful attachment and good love. The much admired almond-shaped eye is given to roving attachments and romantic loves. The fulness and size of the eye are significant of the sentiment of love. The lowslanted lip is a sign of intense affection and kindness of nature, apart from amatory qualities. A roundness of the upper part of the cheek is a sign of great friendliness; a long upper lip shows self-esteem, as in the picture of Herbert Spencer and Whitier, the poet. Modesty is shown by the deep groove in the upper lip down from the nose; but says authority, modesty is large in all those in whom the brain and nerve system predominate, whether this sign be present or not. Wherefore friends, let us all cultivate modesty as significant of brain. - Boston Gazette.

Tombs of the Presidents.
 Almost every President has been buried at the place which he considered his home when his death occurred. Garfield is buried near his old home at Lake View Cemetery, near Cleveland. Lincoln rests at his old home, Springfield, Illinois. Buchanan lies at Woodward Hill Cemetery, Pennsylvania, near to his last residence. Andrew Johnson is buried at Greenville, Tennessee, at a spot selected by himself. Pierce lies in the old cemetery at Concord, New Hampshire. Fillmore rests in Forest Lawn Cemetery, near Buffalo. Taylor's remains, after several removals, now rest permanently near Louisville, Kentucky. Harris's grave is not far away, at North Bend, Ohio, in the family cemetery. Van Buren sleeps in the village cemetery at Kinderhook, New York, his old home. Polk and Jackson rest at their old home near Nashville, Tennessee. Virginia, the mother of Presidents, is also their resting place, for her soil contains the dust of no less than five. Tyler's grave and that of Monroe are near Richmond, in Hollingswood cemetery; Madison's is near Montpelier; Jefferson's at his family burying ground at Monticello, and Washington's at Mount Vernon. John and John Quincy Adams lie together beneath the Unitarian Church at Quincy, Massachusetts.

The Ideal Cabinet officer.
 From the Washington Post.
 Secretary Whitney is the ideal Cabinet officer. He has youth with all its vigor; he has experience with all its wisdom; he has industry with its propelling power. He is courteous to everybody; never peevish or pre-occupied by overwork, though always busy; not rendered vainglorious by his position, but approachable by all. He has serious convictions, but they do not relate to the splendor of his personal prominence or to the inferiority of the rest of the world. He has aspirations, but they do not contemplate his own apotheosis or a corresponding abasement of the masses. Secretary Whitney is, in a word, an active, intelligent, and modest official, who realizes his obligations to the country, and has both the disposition and ability to discharge them. He accepted office with a full understanding of its responsibilities and with a firm resolve to fulfill them, one and all. There is a wholesome and refreshing air surrounding him. He is zealous without ostentation, busy without fuss, efficient without parade. He is a distinct and conspicuous success.

Things in General.
 EDITOR REVIEW: Your paper seems to be taking quite an interest in the Josephine County Court House and also in the proposed extra session of the Legislature. The former issue will be settled by the courts and I trust the county officials will be upheld as they are honorable men and accepted Mr. Abraham's offer simply because it was the best one made. With regard to the extra session the REVIEW has done much to place that question properly before the people. Its keen cut and pointed articles are thoroughly endorsed by the people. Allow me to congratulate you on conducting so bold and fearless a journal. REX.

A Good Appointment.
 A Corvallis exchange says: Rev. Joseph Emery, of this place has lately been appointed to the agency of the Klamath Indian reservation. The appointment was made at the instigation of Mr. Nicholson, the present agent, who has tendered his resignation on account of failing health. Mr. Nicholson will continue to act as agent until October, when Mr. Emery will take charge and continue the good work which his predecessor leaves for a better climate. The appointment of Mr. Emery meets with universal satisfaction but is a sad blow to his many admirers in the State Agricultural college. His connection with the college for the last eighteen years as one of the principal educators, has endeared him to a host of friends, who will regret to see him sever his connection with the same, but are confident he will fill his new position efficiently.

A Literary Society.
 DEAR REVIEW: I noticed some time since in your valuable journal an account of a Massachusetts town that had a society of two-hundred members that was organized something on this plan. The monthly dues were fifty cents each and as the society had lived for several years they owned a good hall and a library of several hundred volumes, which were free at all times to the members. Regular weekly meetings were held of literary exercises, music, debates, and lectures. Now wouldn't this be a delightful organization for Roseburg? I remember the good old days of the Philathean society in Roseburg and suggest that it be re-organized on the above plan and made a permanent institution. Let it be done at once by calling a meeting and organizing. September will soon be here and in that month it should be started as through the winter months it would get a firm hold. KATHIE.
 Roseburg, Aug. 15th, 1885.

At Corvallis there is strong talk of the extension of the Oregon Pacific road this season as far as Albany; and while the Yaquina Post does not speak from any actual knowledge in the matter, yet says it should not be surprised to hear that Contractor Hunt had commenced work at Corvallis in earnest. It is satisfied that if the management can possibly reach it, the work will be done. Manager Hoag is at present in New York, or was there a few days, in consultation with the directors, and if the finances are in a condition to do it the road will be pushed as rapidly as the coin in sight will allow. This, says the Post, means ships with railroad supplies to arrive here on the bay, and hundreds of money to be expended in the erection of warehouses, etc., and a further scattering of money among the valley farmers for a vast number of railroad employes.

War! War! War!
 "I wish I were a daisy, a daisy; I wish I were a daisy, a daisy, oh!" sang a young Wall street broker with a high tenor voice.
 "I wish I were a cow, a cow; I wish I were a cow, a cow, moo-oo-oo!" bawled a big fat banker, in a stentorian tone.
 "Don't you like my singing?" asked the tenor warbler.
 "Certainly; that's the reason I wish I were a cow."
 "So I could chew your head off if you were a daisy."
 It's the little rift within the lute that often makes the music mute. - New York Journal.

Nurse to fashionable mother: "The baby is very restless, ma'am. I can't do anything with her." F. M. "She's teething, I suppose?" N. "Yes'm. I think if you were to take her in your arms all while it might soothe her." F. M. "If impossible, I haven't the time to spare. I am just making ready to attend a meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Give baby some paregoric." - Boston Courier.

Judge Webster on the 6th inst. reversed a decision in the case of the state vs. T. C. Gaunt, of Linkville, who was indicted at the last term of the circuit court for Klamath county for selling liquor without a license. This is the first violation of what is known as the Kealy law, passed by the last legislature, and was intended as a test case. His honor held that the law was operative and could be enforced. The demurrer being overruled. Mr. Gaunt's trial will come up at the next term of court. - Jacksonville Times.
