Contents.

We call special attention to the contents of the REVIEW this week as an index to what may be expected in the future. On the first page can be found a general miscellany and all the State news. Our editorial page this week discusses the leading issues of Prohibition and Labor. One of the articles being a correspondence fro n one of the best posted citizens of our county; besides this are many editorial notes on the principal issues. Our local page is replete with a summary of the news of the county, and interesting communications from the different sections. We call special attention to the contributions, "Piscatorial," "Our schools," and Casaraltan's descriptive trip. Also Mr. Reed's timely article on "Immigration." On our fourth page is the "People's Forum" but this department seems to have spread over the entire issue this week. An excellent article on "Secular Journalism" can here be found, as well as a good suggestion concerning a "County fair," but the whole paper is well worthy of perusal this week and we are greatly pleased that the people are being aroused in the cause of gener al advancement "all along the line" and find the KEVIEW so convenient a ve-Licle to express their opinions and interchange ideas. We fancy that the REVIEW is filling a unique and some-

PLAYGROUND,- Mr. J. hn Rast, of this city, has very kindly donated the use of his large vacant lot, near the school house, for a play ground for the present. This, under the circumstances will prove to be a great benefit to the school.

FIRE.-Considerble excitement prevailed Monday last just at noon by the ringing of the fire bell. A. C. Mark's house was on fire from a stove pipe. But little damage was done, except some good running by the fire boys about $100.

> FINE HAT .- The Editor of the REVIEW received by express this week from Portland a fine silk hat, from his old friend at Independence with this note,, "with compliments from your pious friend, M. Rosendorf. We thank our Hebrew brother, for this token of regard, and wish him much prosperity and long life, and sincerely hope that he may be admitted to the society of Abraham, his father.

DIED,-Mrs. Mollie E. Davis, wife of Dr. M. W. Davis, died in this city on Saturday morning, Sept. 5th. She was the daughter of Joshua Mathews and was born in Douglas county January 25th 1856, and lived a peaceful religious life in this county until her untimely death. She was a member of the Baptist church. Last October she was married to Dr. Davis and leaves one child by this union and two by a former husband, Glendening. For nearly six weeks she had been ill with ty phoid fever, now and then making a rally only to sink lower. She looked forward to death with calmness and strong christian hope. Her remains were buried in the Masonic cemetry, Rev. John Howard conducting the services both at the Presbyterian Church and at the grave. During her illness everything was done that was possible and her husband was constantly at her bedside. She has solved the those wishing to purchase will find it to their sublime problem, crossed over the dark valley and shadow of death and through the blood of lesus Christ rests in a blissful and eternal happiness.

THE REFORM CLUB. - The increased attendance at the meeting of the "Roseburg Reform Club" is evidence that the grand cause is gaining momentum. After a song by the choir prayer by the Chaplain, reading and approval of the minutes, Prof. Horner delivered the regular address, showing the evil effects of intemperence on the human family as individually, and as a society, comprehensive statistics were given when it was shown that enough money is squandered in the U. S. A. annually It seems that the soil of Douglas county never to pay off the national debt. Particular incidences were given where men under the influence of liquor did that which they would have done under no other circumstances. "Be ye temperate in all things," This was followed by a tribute to the objects also the success of the Roseburg Reform Club. After a recess office or of Thomas Hervey, Clark's branch. there was singing, recitations, five minutes speeches und an extempore dialogue that exhibited the "Student's Troubles." It was heartily appreciated and discovered to our satisfaction some real talent for the comic. W. F. Benjamin was unanimously chosen speaker is a necessity and would be a paying institution. of the next meeting.

Our Schools.

MR. EDITOR:-The past and present conditton of our schools, their many deficiencies likely to receive, unless something be done to bring them more fully to notice. With the view to excite interest, elicit discussion, and stimulate action, it is proposed to write a series of articles upon teachers, discipline, instruction, of the school, involving incidentally the duties of superintendents, teachers, parents and scholars. These articles will embody the views and pinions of the writer only, for which no one else will be responsible. If in themselves they shall contain nothing of especial value, there may grow from them a resultant interest that shall amply compensate for your space and my labor. A thorough and critical analysis of the subjects would extend these articles beyond the proper limits of newspaper space, so there will be no attempt to make them exhaustive, but merely suggestive. First: Teachers, if there is any calling where large natural endowments are specially desirable, it is that of the teacher. He will find full exercise for all the strength and depth and breadth of soul he can sponsibility of stamping upon the receptive mind of the child an impress that will be indelible and may shape forever a human destiny From the cold dead marble the sculptor shapes it becomes a goddess a satyr an angel or a fiend. But it is lifeless still. His glowing sou cannot transfuse its energy into the marble. He can appeal to the aesthetic sense through the perfection of form, but he cannot touch life's hidden springs, for there is no life. The teacher is the sculpter of the human soul. Each element of the child's nature, physical, mental and moral and spiritual shall by the hand of the faithful teacher be molded nearer the symmetry by which the divine mind created it. It is no field for bunglers, mistakes are too costly. The sculptor spoils his image, he can take a new block of marble and redeem his error. When the teacher spoils his work a numan soul is destroyed or distorted, he cannot redeem his error. The material is too costly can grasp with a master hand the truths he is to impart, and that he may have great perception, sound judgment, and wise foresight in the methods of instruction and discipline. He needs a strong moral sense to give him accurate perceptions of duty and hold him steadily in its performance, to give him a due sense of responsibility, and especially to fit him properly to inculcate those moral truths that are as much his duty to teach as the intellectual studies of the school, and to sustain him in doing that which he knows to be right, though to do it he may have to stand alone He needs deep spiritual inspirations to give him faith in the ultimate success of his work, though he sees no present results, so that he can feel that the present toil and care and weariness, shall bear fruit that shall bless the world when his hands have been folded in rest, and that shall told you briefly, of our visit to Gardner and vicinity, and promised a continuation of the narrative. Being desirous of visiting Smith river, and having missed "steamer day," the doctor and myself bade a tearful adieu to the General, who was compelled by business cares surveyor, to locate, survey and change said to tear himself away from our fascinating company and camp grub. We then looked about us to find a small boat for our trip. We were fortunate enough to meet Mr. Wes. Reed, who in the fullness of his genial good nature, provided us with one of the best boats on the river. We desire to record the fact that our kindest regards and gratitude for the kindness shall never be forgotten. As was usual with him, the doctor sat at the dinner-table so long that we got a late start and were compelled to pull for about fifteen miles of the trip, against the tide, and did not reach our objective point, the residence of Mr. C. D. Ricker, until after Mrs. George Settle is visiting her parents dark.
