Lost.-Mrs. Buchanan lost her purse or the south bound train last Tuesday, containing some money and a valuable check. Her tittle child was playing with the purse at the car window and it is supposed it threw the purse out. Moral-don't let your children throw away your money.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. - The Centennial Temperance Convention for southern Oregon will be held in Roseburg on Sept. 23d and 24th. It is expected that many earnest workers will be present and that a finer and stronger organization will be effected The convention will hold open sessions to which everybody is invited.

VISIT .- At the home of Hon. W. R Bilyeu, during Conference, at Albany, we were well entertained, and made to feel that to cultivate an acquaintance with them is a point in one's history that will not be regreted in after years. We had the honor of joining Mr. and Mrs. Bilyeu in the bonds of matri mony some years ago, and at time wished them much prosperity, and we are now glad to say that they are in the enjoyment of our desire.

GRAIN CIRCULAR No. 16 .- The rate upon Barley in car loads from all points South of and neluding Yoncalla, to Portland is hereby reduced to twenty-five cents per hundred pounds and upon Wheat Flour and Mill Stuffs, in car loads, from all p ints South of and including Nichols, to Portland to thirty cents per hun dred pounds, to remain in force until further notice. These rates subject to change. Notice of change will be given fifteen days prior to the time of its taking effect.

SERENADE. - Thursday evening the 10th the junior band serenaded their new publi school teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Horner. They furnished excellent music and were invited in to a royal feast of water melons, and spent the evening. Prof. Horner is a musician himself and entertained them with his flute to his wife's accompaniment on the organ. It was a pleasant episode and shows that the Juniors are attentive and respectful. They will make a most excellent band and should be encouraged by our citizens.

JOURNALISTIC CHANGE .- Hon. D. S. K. Puick, of Myrtle Creek, has purchased the Plaindealer and will assume charge in a couple of weeks. Mr. Buick is a gentleman of fine abilities and will doubtless find the journalistic field congenial. We wish him success and congratulate him on possessing a fine property. Hon. E. G. Hursh retires from the editorial triped which he has graced for several years. Under his management the Plaindealer has been succeesful conducted, and in our intercourse with him we have always found him agreeable and pleasant.

THE POMPOUS SOIREE.-Last Friday evening the grand and brilliant Pompous Scirce under the guidance of the desciples of Gutenthere took place at Slocum's mammoth hall in this city. It was a well attended, orderly conducted and truly pompous affair. Our society people enjoyed it very much, the music was par excellence and the presents were give: away deservedly and with great caution. We are sorry that lack of space prevents us giving the list of prizes, and the modesty of our foreman prevents us from telling who walked good fix. off with the watermelon for grace, elegance and beauty of the light fantastic toe.

THE REFORM CLUB .- The hall was again filled at the meeting of the Reform Clui Tuesday evening. After the usual form of singing by the choir, prayer by the chaplain, reading and approval of the minutes, work according to the programme prepared by the executive committee was at once commenced. W. F. Benjamin delivered the regular address showing the general and comprehensive significance of the Reform movement, and the objects reached when men and women as well, vote straight prohibition; after which there were songs, recitations, declamations and a good time in general. S, F. Floed was unanimously chosen to speak at the next meeting. The door is open to all as the labors and teach ings of the club are for common benefit. TEACHERS.

In continuing my subject from your last issue I would add, a good teacher needs a good physical constitution. If his strength to perform does not second the knowledge and the will to do, the latter valuable requsites los their value for lack of executive force. Mus Uncle Johnny Wright, of French settle- cular energy often becomes a most potent ally schools. Exigencies often arise where brawn counts more than brains toward the success of to be crabbed and morose and despondent. and the school grows dyspeptic too, and sometimes decidedly billious. A cheerful demeanor is a wonderful help to the teacher, and will carry him successfully over many a rough place, but he cannot be cheerful when he is sick, nor can the brain work with the accustomed clearness and energy when suffering from sympathy with any other organ of the body that is disordered. Physical courage is a good thing to have in conducting a school When it is clearly understood that the teacher has the nerve and the will to maintain his control of the school at all hazards, there is seldom any occasion for exercise of force. When pater families sends word to the teacher: "If my children are to be punished at school, I'm coming to school too," it has a happy effect to inform pater families that if he chooses to come to school, the teacher will most cheerfully endeavor to instruct him "in those branches re quired by law to be taught the children and youth of the state," but that he will be expected to take his seat and behave as the rest of scholars do. Teachers have rights as well as parents and scholars, and they should not only be sufficiently familiar with them to maintain them properly, but have the stamina to do it. When an indignant parent interrupts a school in session to berate the teacher because a child has complained of punishment, it is well for the teacher to know and the parent to learn, that if the child is of the age required by law to attend school, the parent has no more absolute control over that child during school > nours than if it was in prison for crime. Teachers should he neat and cleanly in their dress and person. If there is in this universe anywhere a place for a frowsy woman with untidy clothes, hair looking as if combed by a tornado, and a generally "massed-up" appearance, it certainly is not in the schoolroom. and failure.

> Marked personal peculiarities and eccentrishould be overcome or suppressed by the teacher as much as possible. In their thought, lessness or malice, children seize eagerly upon any such pretext that can operate to place a teacher at a disadvantage in any way. Especially does the failure of any sense of the teacher unfit him for his work. If he is so near sighted that he cannot see all over the school room, or is growing blind, so that his sight is seriousschoolroom. If he is deaf he cannot perserve good order in school. The average "small boy" has not yet approximated sufficiently to an angel of light, that he can withstand the temptation to "raise Cain" just once every day and that once will be all the time if the teacher is too blind or deaf to detect his mischief. any gaudy or unbecoming article of apparrel worn by a teacher, or crudeness or vulgarity of manner, will be at once detected by the sharp eyes of the children, always quick to perceive, and doubly so where by such discovery the disposition for mischief may gain chance

But if the instincts of the lady or gentleman are lacking in the teachers, it is not of much use either to read Chesterfield, or to attempt to teach. As the spring of all gentlemanly conduct is unselfishness, the conduct of the true teacher will be characterized by kindly feeling and uniformly by courteous bearing tow ard scholar and parent, regardless of wealth, nfluence, intelligence "race, color or previous condition." If Mrs Lofty keeps a carriage and servants twice a score, and Hon. Mr. Bullion is a millionaire, they and their children are entitled to precisely the same consideration from the teacher, as plain John Smith who works for a dollar a day, or Bridget O'Flahery who takes in washing and their children are. Indeed if any one is entitled to more consider, ation than any other, it is the little deformed boy or girl whose soul, too big for its body, has crowded the poor dwarfed frame all out of shape in its efforts to expand. The law of attraction and repulsion is not confined to material things. If the pupils find the teacher takes a firiendly interest in them, it will be returned in kind, and they will more readily become interested in the work. If the teacher possesses the happy faculty of making the pursuit of knowledge seem interesting, and relieving the dull routine questions of the text books by the introduction of facts of interest connected with and growing out of the lesson, it will greatly relieve the tedium of his own work and add largely to its effectiveness. A still greater gain is made if he comprehends that education is a drawing out not a filling up process, that his work is not so much to make plain to the preception, and fix in the memory of the child certain facts, as having learned those facts, to make them the stepping stones to the knowledge of other facts, and especially to make the facts known the basis for thought, reason, reflection, and strenghten the judgment of the child to fit it to make a proper application of its knowledge to the businesss of

That Dirty Dandruff.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable ! every way. It soils the clething continuall and is accomplished by a hardly less amoging sensation of itching. The scalp is discared. There is nothing in the world so there oughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balsam. It cleauses and heats the original softness, gloss and color. Is not oily, highly perfumed, an elegant dressing.
