Then by inductive reasoning deduces a theory to der immutable laws.

The differentiation of the lower protoplastic life into the higher order of sentient being is a riddle to some, especially to theologians. Theology combats evolution with a zeal not unlike that against astronomy in the days of Galileo and Bruno. Theology plays upon the words "differentiations," "protoplasm" and "the survival of the fitest" with the flippancy of a child with the words papa and mamma, and as little understandingly. But as Sir William Thompson did not tell us nor the Rr-VIEW inform us of the reasons for his may the fitest survive. EVOLUTIONIST.

EDITOR REVIEW: I believe there is no country in the world that has the recuperative qualities so fully developed as Oregon, were you to press the vitality out of the New England States as we have it pressed out of us every year and she would be as dead as a haddock. I mean that were the New England States to pay in excess for her imported goods over her exported goods she could not live. Again if she were te pay the high rate of interest for her borrowed money as Oregon she cannot survive a single decade, and the question with us at this time seems to be how much can we stand and live! If year by year our home manufacture were shrinking and our importations | because he has not explained why geological increasing and our indebtedness growing larger and larger how long can we stand it? Don't you think it is about time we were waking up to this question that is staring us so plainly in the C. A. REED. face? I do.

MR. EDITOR: After having examined the elaborate diegesis of the mound theory by your correspondent, P. A. Moses. I can not concur with him in his belief and conclusion forces have caused those mounds nor explained the nature of those forces. We find that the same natural causes produce the same effects under the same circumstances. Therefore it is strange that these mounds do not exist in all countries along water courses as in North America. It appears more obvious that these mounds are the earthly remains of Indian habtations as they are accustomed to building their wigwams on or near the borders of streams and forming them of a large portion of earth. Where these mounds exist we do not find debris of cities or antique relics of civilization, such as exist in other parts of the world where they do not exist. Besides if these mounds existed prior to the existence of the Indians they would not be visible now for the same reasons that ancient cities are imbeded in the earth. Therefore the mounds that are now visible must be of modern formation. Some, and in fact many of these mounds are on alluvial deposits of modern formation. L. C. HILL.

Frequently he is given opiates like paregoric, laudanum drops, or soothing yraps. Every such remedy is dangerous. Every one of them contains opium in some ernment property since my arrival on form. Candid physicians everwhere now agree that there is known but one harmless popular medicine for children, Castoria, originated by the eminent Dr. Pitcher. It has been in use over thirty years and stands alone as a child's remedy. During this time Castoria has saved to sixteen years of age than have all other remedies known to man. Mothers of the secand generation are using it, with whom puny children are not seen. This testimony may
