DEATH OF VICE PRESIDENT THOS. A. HENDRICKS.

We were both shocked and grieved last Wednesday evening to learn of the death of Vice President Hendricks which occurred at his home in Indianapolis on the 25 inst. at 5 P. M.

Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks was born near Janesville, Ohio, September 7th, 1819 and was consequently a little past sixty six years of age when he died. When an infant he was taken to Indiana where he was raised and ever since made his home. He went to the bar in 1843 and soon attained high rank in this profession. He entered political life in 1848 and since then filled with fidelity and honor many exalted positions. He was elected Governor of Ind. when that state was Republican, United States senator when no other Democrat could have controlled the Legislature. In 1876 he was nominated by the National Democracy for Vice President and with Mr. Tilden experienced success at the polls and defeat at the hands of the Electoral Commission. He was again nominated for that place in 1884 and a year ago this month was again vindicated by the people. Whilst an earnest and unflinching Democrat he was deeply loved by members of both parties in the state where he was best known. His personal life was pure and blameless, his political life honorable and great. In short he was a true man, a conscientious citizen, a cultured lawyer, a kind friend and a statesman of rare ability. The Union honors his memory.

GEN. McCLELLAN.

We said in the former paper that if the government had supported McClellan in the peninsular Campaign he would probably have taken Richmond in 1862. But this it failed to do. From the time Stanton became Secretary of War the administration adopted a singular attitude towards its commanding general. Its support of him was vacillating and half hearted in its nature, wholly military of which the President and Secretary were wholly ignorant and of which McClellan was acknowledged to be a master, his own opinion was disregarded and their ideas substituted. As one reads the full history of those days, the recommendation of McClellan to the authorities at Washington, his plans, and then read how those recommendations and plans were treated—how they were ignored and disregarded, it is difficult to come to any other conclusion than that the administration was reluctant to have McClellan succeed. And this I believe to be the true explanation of the anomalous course pursued toward the general of the army, McClellan was too popular. Everybody knows that his army idolized him. Had he been allowed to overcome the enemy and finish the war he would have been the most popular man in the country; and as irresistible at the polls as was Grant afterwards.

This I believe to be the reason of the administration's failure to support McClellan. We know how unpopular this view is to ardent admirers of the Lincoln administration. Lincoln was a good man but he was human. He was not insensible to the siren voice of fame, and he did not care to see his sun eclipsed by the young commander. Then I think he feared that if McClellan should succeed he would not be able to carry out his plans of emancipation which were already forming. In this however I think there was no cause for fear. But the most disturbing element, probably was the Secretary of War-Stanton. There can be little doubt but that he was filling the mind of the President with suspicions of McClellan. Some one was base enough to suggest to Lincoln that McClellan's plan of a movement by the lower Chesapeake was "leaving Washington unprotected." (See McClellan's account of the "Peninsular Campaign" in the May Century page 140.) With what we now know of Stanton's attitude towards McClellan it is not hard to believe that this came from him. What any fair mind must admit is that McClellan never had a chance to carry out his plans. He was continually hampered by "orders from Washington." Whatever may have been the reason, the President did not allow him to command the army, but kept it in his own hands. Hardly had he started on the Peninsular Campaign until he was deprived of the command of the western army. Then followed a series of orders extracting section after section of the army of the Potomac until he had but about half of the force with which he expected to make the campaign. McClellan continued movement and steadily asked for reinforcements, and these were as steadily denied. The rest is familiar to every one. Every one has read of the "change of base" from the Chickahominy to the James. It is well known that against his earnest protest McClellan was ordered to evacuate the peninsula, that immediately afterward a command was transferred to Pope, and defeat after defeat followed the union armies, a second Bull Run disaster demoralized the army of the Potomac, and that McClellan had to be recalled to save Washington, and that as soon as he had accomplished that, he was again removed from command and there his military career ended. What will be the final verdict is impossible to say. Prof. G. T. Curtis is authority for the statement that the great Von Moltke said to an American that if the government had supported McClellan the war would have ended two years sooner than it did. This is high and impartial testimony and I would give more for it than all the testimony of McClellan's enemies. The same writer is authority for the following: "Shortly before the battle of South Mountain General Lee was seated in his tent reading a dispatch that had been brought to him at that moment. General Longstreet, who was with him, asked for the news. 'The worst possible news,' said Lee, 'McClellan is again in command.'"

THE SENATORIAL QUESTION.

EDITOR REVIEW: Having witnessed the sad spectacle of a life-long Democrat ratifying with Republican office holders. The election of John H. Mitchell to the United States Senate on the eve of that eventful occasion, and noticed in your last issue what seemed to be at least a partial endorsement of those renegade Democratic legislators who prostituted their positions as Democratic members by voting for a Republican. I take the liberty of asking if there is not something sacred in the principles of the grand old party as taught by the fathers which rises above political policy or party intrigues that would in itself condemn the course of those Democrats who are willing to sacrifice principle for party advantage.

When I contrast the action of those men with the honest straightforward and fearless course pursued by the Honorable Emmit, Riddle and Manning I am forced to admit that party honesty does not belong to Democratic members alone. No doubt those Democrats who have figured in securing the election of Mitchell believe they have done their party good service, and there can be no doubt that Mitchell has pledged himself to support the Administration of President Cleveland. But the character and methods of the man are too well known to rely on his pledges alone as an evidence of his good faith, and should he do all that he has promised can the Democratic party as an organization prostitute itself to a man suing, for a temporary advantage. Whatever you and the Judge may think upon this subject; I, for one am opposed to such a policy and believe that the Democratic party will repudiate such a doctrine in toto.

"A DEMOCRAT."

The Daily World speaks right out "in muting" and has something to say after this fashion; "Reform has come to stay." The Albany Argus is in some measure an Administration organ. It is owned by the Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. Manning has been more closely associated with the President than any other member of the Cabinet. Therefore we are pleased to find the Argus making this declaration: Civil-Service Reform has come to stay. There will be no half, no backward step, under the present Administration. The offices have grown to such an extent and the desire to hold office has become so general that some barrier has become necessary to protect the appointing power.

Every word of this is sound and true. The Democratic party was restored to power, after a proscription of twenty-four years, on a mission to restore and reform the Government. The people believed that the Democracy would faithfully fulfill this mission, not only because it had taken issue with the methods of Republicanism and had solemnly pledged itself in its platforms to the cause of reform, but because in its State Administration under Tilden, Robinson, and Cleveland it had zealously put its professions into practice. To falter now would be to falsify the past of the Democracy and to endanger its future.

Correct.

"From private sources we learn that Hon. J. H. Mitchell was elected U. S. Senator last Wednesday, receiving 53 votes, or nine more than necessary to elect him. It was learned further that he received the votes of 37 Republicans and 18 Democrats. No doubt he would have received more Democratic votes, had he needed them. Under the circumstances prevailing in the case, the Democrats who voted for him acted wisely and for the best interests of their party and the State. Their course will no doubt be fully endorsed by their constituents. Senator Dolph is not proving the people's servant, by any means, and some efficient, clever and painstaking Senator was needed to fill the void created by the retirement of Hon. J. H. Slater."

We heartily endorse your views Bro. Nickel. The Democrats acted wisely, considering all the aspects of the situation.

Harvey Scott is a disgrace to Oregon journalism, and he should resign his position at once. If he persists in inflicting his ravings upon the public through the "great daily," people will soon lose confidence in newspaper "influence." For heaven's sake, Harvey, go feed yourself to the cows.—Statesman.

The Republicans in New York and elsewhere, are much put to, to account for their defeat in the Empire State. Now Davenport in New York was in the same boat with Hoadly in Ohio, neither received votes enough to secure his election, and that is the end of it. To say it "rained in the interior," and was cold and stormy, and therefore Republicans did not go to the polls, is a subterfuge not worth considering, as if Republicans are more delicate, and likely to catch cold than Democrats. Well we rather think the Republicans did catch cold in New York and Virginia, and in several other states they show symptoms of bilious-remittent, which is liable to result fatally, if Conkling does not prescribe for the sick ones soon. Here is the very latest, which caused Ira Davenport's defeat, read it, see the harmony in the Republican ranks, and how Blaine, the great standard bearer is regarded.

Albany Nov. 20.—The statement is made here, on authority of a member of the republican state committee, that Ira Davenport insisted on the suppression of dispatches of congratulation from Blaine to himself, during the canvass. According to this story he was afraid that such congratulations would scare away the mugwumps, and he consequently kept the first dispatch he received secret, even from the committee. When another to him was received by the committee he objected to its publication, although the committee loudly protested against its suppression as discourteous. He asked time to consult with Sherman S. Rogers, and the latter agreed with him, adding that such publications would render the stalwarts indifferent. Mr. Blaine heard of it, and the effect was visible at once in the absence of all the leading Blaine speakers. The committee fell back on Sherman and Edmunds, with absolute regret. Word was sent of the outrage to all of Blaine's friends in the state, and they took no interest in the subsequent proceedings.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the most insidious of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Nothing else gives such immediate relief and cures so sure a cure in all affections of the throat and lungs. The eminent physician, Prof. F. Switzer, of the Maine Medical School, Bangor, Me., says: "Medical science has produced no other remedy so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for the relief of the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first introduced to the public. There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has not been introduced, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease, susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.
